PRESIDENT FORBIDS LANDING OF CABLE ON FLORIDA COAST

NO PERMISSION GRANTED

Cable Would Join British Line, and the Company Is Asked About Monopoly.

BRITISH CONSUL WARNS SHIP

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—Five destroyers are patrolling the entrance to the Miami (Fla.) harbor under orders from President Wilson to prevent, by force if necessary, the landing of a cable which the Western Union Telegraph Company is having laid from Barbados, a British possession in the West Indies.

A British cable ship, the Colonia, has been chartered by the Western Union Company to land the American end of the cable, which would connect with the British cable line from Barbados to South America.

At the State Department it was stated today that the British Embassy had been asked to inform the master of the ship that such a landing would be in violation of American law. Officials explained that there was no significance in the fact that the vessel was British; that she probably was the only cable craft available to the American company when she was chartered.

Work on the cable line from Barbados was begun last Summer. Some time ago the Western Union Company applied to the State Department for an executive permit to land the wire at Miami, but officials said that action on it had been delayed pending the holding of the International Communications Congress called to meet in Washington on Sept. 15.

A British cable company, it was explained, now has a monopoly of cable rights in Brazilian waters. An American concern desires to construct a direct cable line from the United States to Brazil, and it was stated that the American Government desired to know before issuing the permit to the Western Union Company whether the arrangement entered into by that company with the British concern, the Western Cable Company, controlling the line from Barbados to Brazil, would add to this monopoly.

World Congress on Communications.

In this connection it was asserted that at the forthcoming International Communications Congress the whole theory of international communications was to be examined "in a very different temperament" from that existing in the past.

There were reports today that after the Western Union Company filed its application for a permit the State Department requested that a copy of the contract with the British cable concern also be filed and that the company had refused to comply. No information as to this was obtainable at the department.

While there is a direct cable line between the United States and the Pacific Coast of South America, cable communication between this country and Brazil is possible now only by way of London, unless the messages are sent to the west coast and relayed.

A direct cable line to Brazil, officials said, was much to be preferred, as it would afford a means of faster and probably cheaper communication.

Some officials expressed doubt today whether there was a law requiring permits for the landing of cables in the United States, but when questioned as to this the State Department officials declared emphatically that there was such a law.

The orders from the President which resulted in the destroyers being assigned to patrol the three-mile limit off Miami were issued, it was said, after reports had reached the Government that the company planned to complete connection of the line.

Secretary Daniels was advised of the orders, upon his return from Alaska, that the five destroyers had instructions from the President to use any means necessary to prevent the landing of the cable. Rear Admiral Decker, Commandant at Key West, is in command of the destroyer force, but Secretary Daniels said he would be replaced by his senior, Rear Admiral Anderson, Commandant at Charleston, S. C.

Embassy Orders Ship Not to Land.

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 4.—While United States destroyers lay off this port today under orders to prevent the British cable layer Colonia from landing on American territory the Barbados-Miami cable, instructions from the British Embassy at Washington were received by British Vice Consul Hubbard to direct the Captain of the Colonia upon her arrival to disregard his orders from the Western Union Telegraph Company as to landing the cable.

The Colonia is expected to arrive here from Newport News tomorrow, and orders issued to her Captain are understood to direct the beginning of work at once on landing the cable, working at first beyond the three-mile territorial limit.

Rear Admiral Decker, commanding the Seventh Naval District, with head-

Farmer-Labor Officials Quit, Charging I. W. W. Rules Party

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 4.—Two leaders in Utah activities of the Farmer-Labor Party tonight made public a joint letter of resignation to George Crosby, State Chairman of the party, charging that Industrial Workers of the World were in control of the party. They were H. A. McCollem, State Vice Chairman, and Charles A. Weaver, Assistant Secretary of the State organization.

'READY TO FIGHT,' SAYS COX FROM RING

Tells Dayton Crowd He Will Give Whole Strength to Triumph of Right.

WILL TAKE THE OFFENSIVE

Even Small Children, He Declares, Will Understand Meaning of Notification Speech.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Aug. 4.—Declaring that Republican leaders who had gained control of the party were adopting a course based on "expediency pure and simple," and without regard to the great menace thus created to the perpetuity of the institutions of government, Governor Cox, speaking at the picnic of the Gem City Democratic Club today to friends who have stood shoulder to shoulder with him for many years, pledged himself to make the fight of his life for a "triumph of the right."

The candidate spoke from a roped-in platform which had been built for amateur boxing contests for the entertainment of the picnic crowd. He climbed through the ropes with the assistance of several friends and, looking over the crowd, asked:

"Which is my corner?"

Then he walked to a chair in a corner nearest to which the crowd was densest and sinking into the seat let his arms rest along the ropes.

The crowd began a lusty cheer and a group sang "Ohio," the battle song of the Ohio delegation at the San Francisco Convention. Then there was another cheer for the Governor and cries of "Bring on Harding" and "Make this one round." When the Governor was introduced he said to his audience:

"Boys, I am ready for the fight."

There was another cheer as the Governor stopped, his shoulders thrown back and his face a bit grim.

"Boys," he continued, "I am sort of straitjacketed mentally this afternoon. I can't talk to you as I talked to you in the old days, and as I would like to talk to you now, because propriety and precedent suggest that I must on the vital issues of the great campaign hold my peace until next Saturday. I say to you who have believed in me without reservation for so many years, however, that the document of next Saturday will be understood—even the small children will know its meaning."

He devoted several minutes to a review of old times and old friends. Then he went on in fighting mood.

Like Casey, He's at the Bat.

"I am ready for the fight," he reiterated. "We have won before, making the same kind of a fight. We will win again, because we are right, and our cause deserves to win. The opposition has been good to us, and the advantages which it has given will be taken account of in the stirring days ahead of us. It apparently has adopted the course of doing what we farmers used to do — of plowing around the stump, seeking to avoid the things that perplex. It is, with the opposition, expediency pure and simple. The attempt is being made to make appeal to this group, to that group, and to the other group, without the slightest consideration of the great menace thereby created for the perpetuity of our institutions of Government.

"Our course is the straight course. Our way is as well marked for us as it has been in the past. We need make no defense. Ours will be the offensive fight, from the beginning to the end, and it will be a considerable fight—make no mistake about that. It required a great fight on the western front, but you know how that fight ended. And I have the faith in me that it will be a triumph of the right principles this Fall which will serve useful notice on the Republican leaders for years to come. I was about to say that it will be a Democratic triumph—it will not be that in the truest sense. It will not be a partisan victory. It will be the triumph of the right.

"There comes a time in the course of executive responsibilities when a man after he has taken counsel with his friends, after he has analyzed conditions and made surveys as intelligently as possible, must take counsel with his own conscience. My experience tells me that, like Carey, it is I who am at the bat.

"And so it is with any executive from whom the people may expect results. If the people are to have confidence in their Government, that Government must yield results and I give the promise that I always will bear in mind the unfailing and unswerving confidence which you have given to me. I will bring back the standard to you as clean as it is given to me.

"Something tells me that we are going to win as certain as the sun sets in the Western States, but we can't win without standing in solid formation just as we have stood in the past.

"I repeat by giving to you the message which I hope you want. I am

HOME PEACE BEST, HARDING ASSERTS IN PORCH ADDRESS

DENIES BROKEN OBLIGATIONS

We Went to War as an Obligation to Ourselves, with Associates, Not Allies, He Adds.

RENEWS ARTICLE X. ATTACK

Delegation from Wayne County, Ohio, Hears Republican Candidate and Senator Watson.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Aug. 4.—Industrial and social peace at home is to be preferred to international peace of all the world, Senator Harding told a delegation of 400 business men, farmers and factory workers from Wayne County, Ohio, who made a pilgrimage to the front porch this afternoon.

"Why make a covenant which violates the good faith of nations?" he asked, after emphasizing that no governmental authority other than Congress may declare war.

"Suppose the League of Nations should agree upon a military expedition which Congress should refuse to support," the Senator said. "Then, under the provisions of Article X, the President would be called upon to carry on a war without constitutional authority, or we should prove our compact to be no more than a scrap of paper."

If Germany had had the same constitutional provision that gives Congress the sole authority to declare war, the World War might have been avoided, the Senator added.

"Many advocates of pacifism think our safeguards are not enough," he went on, "that there should be a referendum to the people before a war. The other extreme is to be found among those who seriously propose that a council of foreign powers shall summon the sons of this republic to war anywhere in the world."

"No! No!" shouted the crowd standing on the gravel coated lawn in front of the Harding home.

Elaborating upon his speech of acceptance pledging a Republican administration to negotiate a new treaty, with an association of nations based on moral ties alone, Senator Harding affirmed that "we are on the side of both safety and honor to hold for ourselves the decision of our obligations to the world."

War "An Obligation to Ourselves."

"Men prate about violated obligations to the nations of the earth," he went on. "The solemn truth is that our part in the World War was an obligation to ourselves, performed in sympathy with associated, not allied, powers, and our splendid part in helping to win the war was the armed manifestation of American conscience, not the fulfillment of a written obligation."

Adoption of the League of Nations, Senator Harding intimated, would involve this country in entanglements that Washington never dreamed of. With natives of every country on earth now American citizens, should the United States he asked to attempt to settle the "jealousies and hatreds of all civilization? These adopted sons of the republic want the settlement favorable to the lands from which they came. The misfortune is not alone that it rends the concord of nations. The greater pity is that it rends the concord of our citizenship at home."

Referring to Governor Coolidge's speech of acceptance calling for rescue from the reaction of war, Senator Harding added that "we also need to be rescued from the visionary and fruitless pursuit of peace through super-government."

He then defended his slogan of "normalcy."

"That doesn't mean the old order. That doesn't mean looking backward. It is the short and easy way of saying 'again to stability,' 'once more to regularity.' There hasn't been a backward look in America for three hundred years, but the man who faces the future with highest assurance is he who has noted the paths which made his progress secure."

Text of the Address.

Senator Harding's address in part follows:

"You must be confidently and fearlessly American to measure to the renowned name of Wayne. The story of Wayne County is that of the great beginning of the Northwest Territory, whose sturdy citizenship was strengthened by the hardships of the forest pioneer.

"The pioneer gave the conquering westward march of civilization; our obligations are to preserve and defend. Some day I hope we shall fittingly commemorate the sacrifices and the achievements of these courageous frontiersmen and their strong hearted women.

"It is worth remembering that the pioneers—these stalwart makers of America—were little less varied in their origin than our people of today. Either they or their forebears came from lands across the sea. But they were thinking only of America. Theirs was more than sole allegiance to the land of adoption, they were interested and devoted heart and soul. They were in complete unison, with one purpose, one confidence, one pride.

"When I sat on the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations and listened to

As a protest against profiteering on retail sales of fruit, vegetables and fish, Dr. Robert Grimshaw, a special lecturer in New York University, suggested yesterday that "sandwich men" be posted at the doors of dealers, with placards giving fair prices of commodities for that day. He said he would obtain these fair prices from Washington Market.

Unless there is a reduction of prices among Washington Heights dealers near his home at 717 West 177th Street, Dr. Grimshaw said that he would hire "sandwich men" next week, so that he could tell the public the fair wholesale prices of fruit and vegetables. He added that he had already notified eight dealers of his intention, and asserted that, although he intended to bear the expense himself, he urged that groups of citizens try the same plan in their neighborhoods to check profiteering in food.

Dr. Grimshaw said that prices on Washington Heights were higher than in lower Amsterdam Avenue and in many other parts of the city and expressed the opinion that dealers in the upper end of Manhattan Island were taking an excessive profit.

"Those who are now making 400 per cent. profit on tomatoes must shift the decimal point one to the west," he said. "Dealers on Washington Heights are demanding 20 cents a pound for them, while they are only 4 cents a pound in some other parts of the city."

The investigator declared also that he believed housewives were starting a pernicious practice that would greatly increase their expenses when they "tipped" salesmen or clerks in meat shops and fish and vegetable stores.

Dr. Grimshaw is finishing a course of lectures in New York University on cost reduction. He is a consulting engineer and efficiency expert.

TELLS OF AN ELOPEMENT

Affidavits Filed in Trenton Also Reveal Many Conferences and Promises to Reform.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 4.—Papers in a strange alienation suit have been filed here in which it is set forth that Charles B. Chisholm of 87 Beaumont Place, Newark, told William C. Parker of Morristown that if he wanted Mrs. Chisholm as his wife he could have her, but that if he didn't want to marry her he must cease seeing and communicating with her. Failure to comply with the ultimatum resulted in the filing of the suit, in which $100,000 is demanded.

According to the papers, for two years Chisholm battled with his rival, also a married man, for the love of Mrs. Chisholm. Parker's wife knew of the affair between her husband and Mrs. Chisholm, and discussed the situation with Chisholm. In fact, conferences were numerous, as were promises of reformation, say the affidavits.

The papers set forth that after the last conference between Chisholm, his wife and Parker, the latter two decided to elope. They set on July 8, but after talking the matter over decided to call the elopement off, and return to their respective homes.

Chisholm says in his complaint that by this time he had lost his patience with Parker, and decided to carry out the terms of the ultimatum—hence the suit.

Husband Calls a Conference.

Chisholm avers that the "infatuation" of the couple had its inception in the Summer of 1918, when the Chisholms and the Parkers occupied Summer cottages at Culver's Lake, N. J. Chisholm became convinced that his wife loved Parker, so, in a matter-of-fact way he called his wife and Parker into a conference, his affidavit says. He told them the affair must end, and both agreed. Parker left immediately for the city, and after two days Chisholm, sure that the rival for his wife's affections would not return, left also. He returned only on week-ends.

Chisholm sets forth that he learned from his wife's maid that Parker returned early in the Summer and saw his wife frequently.

In September, 1918, when the Chisholms had taken up their residence in Newark, a second conference was held. It was then that Chisholm told Parker to either marry Mrs. Chisholm or leave her. The two agreed the affair was a thing of the past and promised not to see each other.

The peace of the Chisholm household was not disturbed for a month, says the husband, when Mrs. Chisholm was stricken with influenza. Parker phoned and asked permission to see the sick woman and Chisholm finally agreed. By the Spring of 1919 Mr. Chisholm became suspicious again. There followed a letter from Parker to Mrs. Chisholm, saying they had been wrong in their love, and Chisholm breathed easier.

Delivers His Ultimatum.

By the first of this year the situation was such that Chisholm scheduled another conference with Parker. No concrete solution of the situation was reached.

In July Chisholm sent his wife to the White Mountains, but she returned in two days. Then the last conference was held.

"Take her or leave her—either one or the other, or face a suit for alienation," he told Parker, according to his papers.

This so aroused Chisholm that he declared: "The education of your sons—do you put the education of your sons before a woman like that?"

Then Chisholm says he gave Parker ten days to think the matter over.

Mrs. Chisholm packed her bag and the next day she and Parker departed. Chisholm returned from work and found his wife gone. Mrs. Parker phoned him her husband was missing, and while they were talking over the phone the two principals arrived back in their respective homes.

Parker then asked for a conference and offered to post a bond to be forfeited if he saw Mrs. Chisholm again. Chisholm told his rival that he was beyond that stage and would sue.

A week ago last Friday Mrs. Chisholm answered a number of questions asked by her husband's lawyer. They will be used in the suit.

GRUNEAU INDICTED WITH FORTY AIDS

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Indictments charging violation of the Sherman and Lever acts were found today by a Federal Grand Jury against John Gruneau, leader of the "outlaw" railroad switchmen's strike, and forty of his aids. The indictments charge conspiracy to tie up shipments of the necessities of life.

Federal Judge Alschuler, however, refused to accept the report of the jury as it affected the indictments. In its report the jury had recommended the acceptance of true bills against the labor leaders. These had been drawn up and presented during the day to the jury for its approval.

While the jury wass till deliberating on returning the indictments, newspapers published the fact that true bills were expected. Judge Alschuler declared he would not accept the report or allow the indictments to be returned until the jury had determined the source of the "leak."

He detained for nearly an hour and a half the grand jurors, attorneys for the Government and newspaper reporters assigned to the Federal Building while he lectured them on the impropriety of divulging the results of Grand Jury proceedings before return of the official report to the presiding judge. He charged the grand jurors to investigate thoroughly the suspected "pipe line," saying:

"The press believes itself to be a class specially privileged to pursue any course, whether it's contrary to law and practice or not. The newspapers must obey the law."

"Did you make reference to these indictments to persons outside the jury room?" he asked each juror. All answered "no."

"The person who divulged this information should be treated as an anarchist," the judge continued. "It is a very serious offense. We may consider the law which requires that the Grand Jury session be a secret one, unwise. But while it is a statute we must one and all respect and obey it."

After directing the jury to investigate itself and fix the blame for the "leak" Judge Alschuler advised that a search be made for a dictagraph in the Grand Jury room and dismissed the jurors with the injunction to return with their report tomorrow.

Assistant Attorney General Humes said:

"I have absolute confidence in the employes of my department and am certain that the 'leak' did not occur there. I can assure the bench that the District Attorney's office and the Department of Justice are in complete accord with his views."

Another man mentioned in the testimony, is said to have been H. E. Reading, President of the United Enginemen's Association, according to the reports. The forty-one persons reported named are all said to be members of the yardmen's or enginemen's organizations or intermediaries between the organizations and similar bodies of men in other cities.

The Grand Jury action is the result of two weeks' investigation. J. Lowry Humes, Special Attorney General, last Saturday examined Gruneau. It is said that he asked Gruneau to order his men back to work. The leader is reported to have refused to do this unless the Government restored the seniority rights of the men.

A meeting of the outlaw organizations was held Saturday and Sunday nights. The men are reported to have voted to remain out until their demands were met. It is understood they are satisfied with the wage increase, but will not go back unless seniority rights are restored.

WOODHOUSE IS SUSPENDED.

At a meeting of the Board of Governors of the Aero Club of America, held in the Recess Club, 60 Broadway, yesterday afternoon, Henry Woodhouse, one of the members, was suspended.

The suspension grew out of a suit he recently filed against other members of the board who were trying to bring about an amalgamation between the Aero Club and the American Flying Club, it was said. Mr. Woodhouse has led the opposition against the proposed merger.

AMBASSADORS CALLED BACK

New Truce Negotiations To be Held at Minsk

WARSAW, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—The Polish Government today replied to the Russian Soviet Government, agreeing to meet representatives of the Bolsheviki at Minsk as soon as feasible.

This decision was reached after an all-day sitting of the Council of Defense and the Allied Mission.

It is probable the Polish delegation will depart for Minsk on Thursday.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—According to the French Foreign Office tonight, it has been discovered that there exists between Moscow and the German reactionary leaders an agreement that one of the conditions of Polish peace will be the suppression of the Danzig corridor given to Poland under the Versailles Treaty, and the establishment of another German frontier in this region. It said that German neutrality and refusal to permit the passage of allied troops to Poland was part of the bargain. The French say this information comes from Russian officers captured by the Poles.

Premiers Lloyd George and Millerand held a long telephone conversation today over the Polish situation, and it is understood the two Premiers may hold a meeting very soon to talk over the matter. It is rumored that the Allies plan to send six divisions of troops to Poland.

The Matin learns that the French Government is consulting the American Government on the Polish situation.

It is reported in Paris tonight that Kameneff and Krassin, heading the Soviet delegation in London, will be invited to leave England within two or three days. The French Government favors this move, and is determined to take no part in Russian commercial negotiations unless there is a complete change of front on the part of Moscow.

There are rumors in Paris that Polish Communists are stirring up trouble in the capital, and it is feared that if the Polish Government leaves, as appears probable, an effort will be made to hoist the red flag at Warsaw and allow the Russians to enter without resistance.

The attitude of the French Foreign Office which up to yesterday was hopeful that Warsaw would be saved is today frankly pessimistic. Its opinion is based upon reports from Ambassador Jusserand, who, according to latest reports, is still in the Polish capital.

Reds on the Way to Corridor.

In view of the fact that allied munitions are being received by way of Danzig, the success of the Red armies to the north is all important. Passing by Augustow, Gravlevo and Kolno, they are approaching Mlava, which lies on the main railroad lines from Danzig to Warsaw. This line cut there would remain only a secondary line through Thorn for supplies from Danzig.

The Polish Government states that even if forced to leave Warsaw it will not give up the fight but will conduct the campaign from a new capital.

The question on every one's tongue here is what will the Allies do. The action of Lloyd George in calling off the London conference naturally meets with approval, but it is admitted that it does not constitute very positive action at this moment. It does not stop the Bolsheviki if they determined to crush Poland and set up a Communist régime in that country. Force is needed. As difficult as the undertaking would be the French have all along been more or less in favor of a joint allied expedition to give material aid. Lloyd George, on the other hand, has placed his faith in diplomacy, which now appears to have failed.

The question remains, what will the Allies do? Are they in the position of having promised aid to Poland and not being able to do so or will some plan be worked out in haste for sending real succor? For soldiers rather than Ambassadors is what Poland needs at this moment. There are many rumors about the dispatching of divisions post haste, but no official confirmation can be had of these reports. There is possibly little to them.

PARIS, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—In view of the Polish situation urgent telegrams were sent today to the allied Ambassadors, including the American Ambassador, asking them to return to Paris from their vacations for a meeting of the Ambassadorial Council to be held tomorrow.

New Hearing on 'Dry' Law Is Asked in Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Efforts to have the Supreme Court reconsider its decision of June 7 sustaining the validity of the Eighteenth Amendment and portions of the Prohibition Enforcement act were made today by some of the attorneys who appeared in the cases decided at that time.

Petitions asking the court to review the appeal of George C. Dempsey, a Boston wholesaler, attacking the act, were filed today, while William D. Guthrie, an attorney of New York, has notified the court that he will make a similar request in the case of Christian Feigenspan, a brewer, of Newark, N. J.

In asking a rehearing of the Dempsey case, the petition alleges that the court's conclusions are "inconsistent and repugnant to each other" and "palpably incorrect and erroneous."

Such requests seldom are granted by the court.

WARNS REDS TO HALT ON PAIN OF WAR

TELLS ALLIES' POSITION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Aug. 5.—In a new note wirelessed Tuesday night after the Cabinet meeting the British Government called the attention of Soviet Russia to the sole condition on which it would take part in the proposed London conference. If it is to meet the Red representatives it must be on the understanding that peace with Poland will be discussed then, and that the Soviet does not attempt to force terms on the Polish representatives before the conference meets.

In taking this line it is learned the British Government is relying on causing division in Russian counsels. It is fully recognized here that the militarist factions at Moscow are not likely to agree willingly to an attitude of moderation toward Poland, but it is believed there are many in the Soviet councils who realize fully the necessity of opening up trade with the Entente countries.

The Daily Chronicle's political correspondent writes of the Lloyd George meeting with Kameneff and Krassin:

"The conversation related, I am informed, exclusively to the Russian advance into Poland. This was a sequel to a short British note sent by wireless to the Moscow Government in which Moscow was asked to state whether the Russian advance would continue and whether the armistice to the Poles would be granted. The Russians' mission are to communicate the subject matter of their conversation with the Prime Minister by wireless to Moscow.

"The issue is one of peace or war between the Allies and the Russian Soviet Government, for the Allies are pledged to uphold the independence of Poland.

"The Cabinet had the situation under grave consideration at its sitting today. Measures to be taken by the Allies if no satisfactory armistice was secured must be co-ordinated. Great Brittain does not purpose to send troops, but would render help in other powerful ways. France has been sending munitions into Poland in accordance with an arrangement made some time ago.

"I gather that the Russian delegation at their meeting with the Prime Minister stated that they are here with the fullest instructions of the Soviet Government, not merely to negotiate on trade relations but to sign any peace treaty.

"That there can be no London conference on general peace and that the Russian mission must return and no trade relations be opened if satisfactory Polish armistice is not arranged are points scarcely worth stating. They are results that would inevitably follow the continuance of war between Russia and Poland.

"One element of hopefulness in the situation is that the possibility of an understanding between the Russian Government and the Allies was kept open by the conversation between the Prime Minister and the Russian Mission, but the fate of Warsaw may decide the issue."

LONDON, Thursday, Aug. 5 (Associated Press).—According to The Herald, Premier Lloyd George, during a conversation with MM. Krassin and Kameneff yesterday, presented an ultimatum to the Bolshevik representatives demanding an immediate and unconditional cessation of the Russian advance into Poland, even before signing an armistice, or otherwise Great Britain would declare war. The newspaper says also that the British note sent to Russia is of a threatening character.

The conversation referred to presumably took place at a meeting of the Soviet envoys with members of the British Cabinet held at the Premier's official residence, 10 Downing Street. The Cabinet members present in addition to Mr. Lloyd George were Winston Churchill, the Secretary for War, and Austen Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer. The Soviet delegation was headed by Leo Kameneff, President of the Moscow Soviet, and Leonid Krassin, the Bolshevist Trade Minister, who came here to negotiate over the resumption of trade with Russia.

The Daily Mail also reports that the note is in the nature of an ultimatum.

"It says plainly," asserts the newspaper, "that Poland is being overrun and if instead of hastening an armistice

2.75 BEER PLANK WINS AT SARATOGA; BACKING FOR IRISH

LUNN OVERWHELMED AGAIN

Crane, Republican, for Judge and Healy for State Treasurer Added to Preferences.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, Aug. 4.—A fight by Mayor George R. Lunn of Schenectady on a "wet" plank in the platform which, in effect, recommended the legalization of traffic in light wines and beer with an alcoholic content to 2.75 per cent. and also urged an amendment to the Federal Constitution to provide for the ratification of Federal amendments by a popular referendum enlivened the closing session of the unofficial Democratic State Convention today.

A motion by Mayor Lunn to eliminate the wet plank, leaving the platform silent on the subject of prohibition enforcement, was voted down, 406 to 34.

After disposing of the platform, which was adopted following the defeat of the Lunn motion with Mayor Lunn alone voting against it, the convention received "suggestions" for a primary ticket by means of a roll-call of counties. Mayor Lunn made only perfunctory protest against this mode of procedure, despite his warlike talk last night.

Preference Ticket Selected.

For Governor—ALFRED E. SMITH of New York.
Lieutenant Governor—GEORGE R. FITTS of Tompkins.
Secretary of State—Miss HARRIET MAY MILLS of Onondaga.
State Controller—CHARLES WHITE BERRY of Kings.
Attorney General—PHILIP A. LAING of Erie.
State Treasurer—JOHN F. HEALY of Westchester.
State Engineer—PAUL McLEOD of Albany.
Judges of the Court of Appeals—ABRAM I. ELKUS of New York and FREDERICK E. CRANE of Kings.
United States Senator—HARRY C. WALKER of Broome.

The "slate," if it may be so called, thus made up was identical with that embodied in yesterday's dispatches, except that it contained in addition to the names then published that of ex-State Senator John F. Healy of Westchester, as a candidate for the nomination for State Treasurer, and that Supreme Court Justice Frederick E. Crane of Kings, a Republican, had been substituted for Supreme Court Justice Edgar S. K. Merrell of Lewis, as a candidate for Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals, a position he now holds under assignment by the Governor.

The substitution was made before the convention met this morning. It is regarded as a wise political move, involving a strong bid for Republican votes in Kings, besides being in full accord with the widely approved policy that Judges who have "made good" should have the support of both parties when they come up for re-election. The Republicans at their State convention a week ago recommended the designation of Judge Crane, who thus becomes a fusion candidate.

Urges Irish Recognition.

Consideration of the platform became the first business before the convention when it met, about two hours behind the scheduled time. The lengthy document was read drearily by ex-Congressman John J. Fitzgerald of Kings, Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions. There was a little applause as salient features of the document were sprung on the convention, but the only spontaneous acclaim came when the names of the Democratic standard bearers in State and nation were mentioned and when the Irish plank was read. Then the convention got up and cheered to the echo.

Aside from the wet plank as a point of diversion from the national platform is a plank which advocates the recognition of the "Irish Republic," without intervention.

The platform makes no specific mention of the League of Nations, but includes a general indorsement of the Democratic national platform and of Cox and Roosevelt.

It commends the record of Governor Smith and of the party in the State, and condemns the action of the Republican Legislature in thwarting the Governor's attempts for progressive legislation and in refusing an appropriation for and recommendation of the Governor's Reconstruction Commission as "a manifestation of contemptible partisanship."

The platform indorses the Governor's plan for the reorganization of the State Government by the consolidation of the existing 187 State agencies into 18 great departments, declares for an executive budget system and combats the Republican attack upon the Democratic administration of the State Highway Department by claiming credit for efficiency in that department, and charging the former Republican officials with having left the highways of the State in a deplorable condition.

In discussing the housing problem, the platform advocates the establishment of local housing boards and a State Housing Commission, an amendment to the State Constitution to permit the extension of the State's credit for aid in the construction of moderately priced homes and the exemption for a limited period of mortgage loans on dwellings from local, State and Federal taxation. The platform declares for more effective legislation to protect tenants against unreasonable increases of rentals and against dispossession.

The labor plank condemns the Republican Legislature for refusal to pass legislation on this subject recommended by the Governor and opposes the compulsory arbitration of labor disputes. It pledges a liberal, humane and efficient administration of the workmen's compensation law and favors a Federal law of the same nature.

Wants State Water Power Control.

Issue is taken with the Republican platform by declaring for the development of the water powers of the State by the State itself instead of by private interests. A declaration is made for an agreement with New Jersey for the establishment of a central port authority for the development of the port of New York.

The platform, as had been expected, declares for direct primaries and demands amendments to the Corrupt Practices act and the election law to provide full publicity for campaign contributions before elections, it commends Governor Smith for calling a special session of the Legislature to enable the State to ratify the Woman Suffrage Amendment and urges the Legislature of every State which has not already done so to ratify. Amendment of the election law to provide for two members from every Assembly district on the State Committee in order to permit equal representation for women is recommended.

Declarations are made for municipal home rule, free speech and the continued improvement of State hospitals and institutions.

The public utilities plank recommends that the burden of proof in applications for increased rates should be placed upon the corporations, and opposes legislation permitting a State commission such as the Public Service Commission to modify contracts between public service corporations and municipalities by fixing rates. The agricultural planks advocate the consolidation of the Department of Agriculture and the Council of Farms and Markets under one head, and accuses the Republican legislators of playing politics with these departments.

Lunn Protests Wet Plank.

Mayor Lunn was recognized immediately after Mr. Fitzgerald had ended his long recital of the platform.

"Truth crushed to earth will rise again," he said, in a prefatory way, beginning an attack on the wet plank. The galleries began to applaud and shout their approval.

"I regret to say that I have a minority report to offer," he resumed, after the din had subsided. "In the Committee on Resolutions there was a minority opposing this plank substantial enough in my opinion to justify such action. It never pays a political party to crush a minority which believes in a principle. You may by force crush, flatten out and steam-roller me. You can kill an individual, but you cannot kill a principle. Individuals die; principles live on forever. I'd rather die as an advocate of principle than go out of this hall with the plaudits of my fellow-Democrats ringing in my ears."

At this there was more shouting and applause from the spectators, but very little among the delegates. When he resumed Mayor Lunn said that the vote in the Resolutions Committee on the "wet" plank stood 21 to 13. Two of the adverse votes, however, were cast by members in whose opinion the plank was not "wet" enough.

"Nearly 40 per cent. of the sentiment in the committee was against this plank, not necessarily on a straight-out question of wet or dry, but because some thought that nothing should be said in the State platform on a question that in reality was a matter of national concern and had been settled by the Democratic National Convention," said Mayor Lunn. "This plank should be stricken from our platform. It is in direct violation of the action taken by the National Democratic Convention.

"Prohibition was accomplished by the Eighteenth Amendment and made effective by the Volstead act, both of which have been declared constitutional. Strong argument was made at San Francisco in behalf of a plank for beer and light wines, and it was voted down overwhelmingly, the plank receiving something like 360 votes out of 1,090.

"There is no question whatsoever as to the will of the Democratic Party of the nation regarding this matter. They made no reference to it and desire no reference to it in any platform. Most unfortunate would it be if the New York Democracy rebels against the action of the national party and by its action embarrasses the Democratic nominees on the national ticket. I do not want to see the Democrats of the State of New York in opposition to the national Democratic Party.

Declares Wet Plank Useless.

"The plank submitted by the majority of the committee calls for an amendment to the Volstead act and endeavors to make operative the act passed by the Republican State Legislature last Winter. This so-called Walker law is dead by reason of the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States. No amendment to the Volstead act can bring to life the law passed last Winter by the Republican Legislature and now dead by reason of the court decision.

"The State of New York is powerless to take any action whatsoever regarding the liquor question. The State Legislature would have to fly in the face of the Constitution of the United States, as well as the decisions of the United States Supreme Court even in an attempt to act.

"We are building a State platform, not a national platform. The national platform has been adopted. Shall we seek to amend that platform by inserting a statement in controvention of the direct action of the National Democratic Party at San Francisco? Can we stand on the Democratic platform of the nation on national matters and attempt to write a new plank for national legislation, so far as New York is concerned?

"The platform as now submitted by our committee states that we pledge our faith to the principles embodied in the national platform. Could we favor, therefore, any statement which would be an addition to the national platform?

"Suds Platform" Decried.

"The platform as submitted, on industrial and State questions, is an inspiring one. The problems of the State dealt with in the platform are many and most important. Shall we carry on a campaign discussing these issues, or shall we, by the adoption of the majority report, provoke a situation where the principal topic of campaign discussion will be 2.75 beer? At this moment of national crisis, shall New York State make its chief object of campaign a mere appetite?

"The amendment for beer and wine introduced at San Francisco was far more open and courageous than this plank. This plank does not call for beer; it calls for 'suds'; 2.75 per cent. beer is not beer at all. The man who wants beer does not want 2.75 per cent. beer. Can we afford to go to the people on a 'suds' platform?

"Are you by the adoption of this plank going to force the nomination of wet candidates in dry districts and thus cause embarrassment not only to yourselves but to the candidates on the national ticket? Are you going to inject into the campaign an unworthy and worthless issue at the time of a world crisis when all our energies in the campaign should be given to a thorough thrashing out of the League of Nations issue?"

The suggestion that the League of Nations issue should be in the foreground was greeted with spontaneous applause by the delegates, who had refrained from showing approval at anything Mayor Lunn had said on the wet and dry question.

Fitzgerald Angers Lunn.

Ex-Congressman Fitzgerald, who occupied a seat on the platform, arose to defend the wet plank. At the opening of his speech he accused Mayor Lunn of "running around in circles" and of always rising in opposition to anything which a majority in his party wanted.

"If he were a race horse, instead of a mere human being, he would be worth more than Ponzi's system of wizardy," said Mr. Fitzgerald.

The convention began to laugh at Mayor Lunn, who arose to a point of order.

"I resent this personal attack. I made no personal allusion to the speaker," Mayor Lunn exclaimed, his face reddening with anger.

"Any one who gets up in a Democratic gathering where free speech prevails and starts something should be willing to take his medicine, or else keep still," said Mr. Fitzgerald.

"Mayor Lunn says that this plank is a contradiction of the Democratic national platform. How can that be, since the national platform is silent upon the subject? That leaves this question a legitimate matter of agitation. Here there is a difference of opinion, and because the national platform is silent we owe it to ourselves and to the voters to tell where we stand. I favor this plank because I believe a majority of the people in this State are wet. They are entitled to their say. The plank represents an attempt to express the view of a majority in our party.

"We ought to come out one way or the other, either in favor of this plank recommending amendments to permit the sale of beer and light wines and cider or else for a dry plank. We should not dodge the issue."

"That's the idea," shouted a delegate.

"This plank, too, is proof against Republican assaults," Mr. Fitzgerald went on, "because the Walker light wine and beer bill was passed by the Republican Legislature this year."

Lunn Amendment Gets 34 Votes.

The Lunn amendment to strike the plank from the platform was then put to a vote. Mayor Lunn demanded a roll call of counties, and Chairman Sague gave ready assent.

These counties furnished the 34 votes cast in support of the Lunn proposal: Cattaraugus 3, Chautauqua 1, Dutchess 3, Livingston 3, New York 1, Otsego 2, Putnam 2, Rockland 2, St. Lawrence 1, Saratoga 1, Schenectady 5, Schoharie 1, Seneca 2, Tioga 2, Tompkins 3 and Wayne 2.

The delegates from Genesee, Herkimer, Niagara and Wyoming were not recorded on the roll call. The vote from New York in support of Mayor Lunn's motion was cast by Mrs. Ida Blair, a prominent worker among the Democratic women in the Seventeenth Senatorial District of New York City.

Chairman Sague, after the platform had been adopted by a viva voce vote, ordered the roll call of counties to proceed for the expression of preference as to candidates. Mayor Lunn, who had warned the convention against "designating, recommending or suggesting" candidates, declared that he was well aware that a slate had been made, how, when and by whom, as well as who was who on it, when he arose before the roll call.

"Is it proposed that the convention shall sanction the slate which already has been fixed up, the slate to which I have already made reference?" he asked.

"The chair is not aware that there is any slate and is not in a position to answer the question," said Mr. Sague, ersely.

Rodgers Also Fights Designations.

At this point Thomas F. Rodgers of Steuben, who is a candidate for the nomination for Attorney General and expects to enter the primaries and make a fight for it, jumped to his feet and began to address the convention. He explained that he was rising to a point of information.

"Come to the platform," urged Chairman Sague.

Mr. Rodgers took the platform.

"I came here believing that this would be an open convention, with full and free say for everybody within reasonable limits," he said. "I stand in opposition to this proposal to indorse a slate. Who knows any of these candidates? Who knows Fitts? Who knows McLeod, who is named for State Engineer?"

"He is one of the best engineers in the State of New York," yelled a delegate.

"Who are these men and women who have got on the ticket? Why are they on it and how did they get on?" asked Mr. Rodgers.

"Who knew you before you got on the platform?" asked a delegate while the convention burst into laughter.

"It isn't hard to guess who made up this slate," Mr. Rogers shouted. "It was made by Murphy of New York, Farley of Broome and Fitzpatrick of Erie."

Roll Called on Candidates.

The convention displayed little interest in the roll call, which then began. The galleries had already begun to empty before the call started. The body of the hall was only half filled. Delegates and visitors in a steady stream left while the roll was being called.

Ex-Judge D-Cady Herrick, when Albany was called, eulogized Abram I. Elkus, who is slated for nomination to the Court of Appeals, in which tribunal he now fills a place by appointment.

Allegany yielded to Oswego, Francis H. Cullen took the platform and "suggested" that Lieut. Gov. Walker be entered as a candidate for United States Senator in the primaries.

"He is right on the League of Nations issue; he has presided wisely and with dignity and urbanity over the sessions of a Republican Senate for two years, at all times standing true to the principles of his party and giving loyal support to Governor Smith," said Mr. Cullen. "Owing to the position taken by the opposition candidate on the question of equal suffrage, that will figure prominently in the campaign. Lieut. Gov. Walker has always been right on that issue. As Mayor of Binghamton he appointed the first woman who ever received such an appointment in this State as Municipal Civil Service Commissioner. This was long before women in the State had the vote."

Frances Ford of Broome seconded the "nomination" of Judge Elkus. Broome also seconded the "suggestion" that Lieut. Gov. Walker be a candidate for Senator. Cattaraugus yielded to Jefferson and George R. Fitts, the "dirt" farmer," was backed as a candidate for Lieutenant Governor by Charles E. Norris, head of the Jefferson County delegation.

Cheers for Miss Mills.

When Chenango yielded to Onondaga and Ben Wiles proposed Miss Harriet May Mills for Secretary of State, the whole convention, or what was left of it in the hall, got up and cheered.

"It will be the signal that the Democratic Party has received the enfranchised women into full partnership not only in subordinate positions, but into the leadership of the party, if we name her," he said. "It will be proof that the Democratic women no longer are merely a tail to the Democratic Party kite."

Elizabeth V. Colbert of Albany seconded the suggestion that Miss Mills be favored for Secretary of State.

J. W. Davern of Clinton announced that the county would be for ex-Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Conway should he become a candidate in the primaries for the nomination for Senator, but had no suggestion to make in the convention. The same attitude was taken by Warren, Essex, Franklin and St. Lawrence Counties. Mr. Conway said tonight that he did not intend to run.

John E. Mack arose when Dutchess was reached on the roll call and "suggested" Adjt. Gen. Charles W. Berry of Kings for Controller. Kings later seconded this suggestion.

Frank H. Mott of Chautauqua, who had been temporary Chairman of the convention, took the floor and urged Supreme Court Justice Philip Laing for Attorney General, at the same time expressing regret that National Committeeman Norman E. Mack had not seen fit to become a candidate for the United States Senate.

Mott Aims Shaft at Lunn.

"It seems eminently proper to me that we should make these suggestions on the floor of the convention," he said, and added this shot at Mayor Lunn, who had opposed the roll call:

"At least it seems quite as proper as having nominations made from the galleries with a band in attendance."

William E. Kelly of Kings seconded the suggestion of Adjutant General Berry for Controller and Assistant Corporation Counsel Charles J. Druhan suggested that Justice Crane receive the Democratic indorsement for the Court of Appeals, though a Republican.

James C. Doyle of Onondaga named Paul McLeod for State engineer, eulogizing his fighting record and his work with the engineering forces in France. Ex-Senator Healy was not named until Westchester was reached near the end of the roll call of counties.

By that time the hall was almost empty, only about a hundred delegates and not a score of visitors remaining.

The convention adopted a resolution providing for a representation of six instead of three delegates and alternates from each assembly district in future Democratic conventions and conferences. It adjourned sine die shortly after 2 o'clock.

PROUD OF PARTY'S RECORD

Wilson Declared Foremost Statesman of His Generation.

SMITH HEARTILY INDORSED

Republicans Condemned for Attacks Upon the Direct Primary System.

CALLS FOR STATE BUDGET

Special to The New York Times.

The Democratic party has an unrivalled record of achievement in the Nation. During its seven years of control of the Federal Government it has enacted more progressive and beneficial legislation than the Republican party during its long tenure since the Civil War. In addition to its unparalleled accomplishments in domestic affairs, its efficient conduct of the World War without scandal or partisanship excited the admiration and earned the gratitude of the civilized world. Despite the carping criticisms and the open or poorly concealed oposition of the Republican party, these contributions to the happiness and prosperity of mankind were made by the Democratic party under the matchless and inspiring leadership of the foremost statesman of his generation, Woodrow Wilson.

We affirm our faith in the principles of the Democratic party as enunciated in the National platform, and we indorse the nominations for President and Vice President of Governor James M. Cox and Franklin D. Roosevelt, to whom we pledge our undivided and loyal support.

While firm in our allegiance to the declarations of the National platform, we now present more fully to the people of this State those matters which more intimately concern them in their State affairs, to justify an appeal for continued and wider control by the Democratic party in the State.

Democratic Record Cited.

Always the party of progress, it has endeavored to enact into law such measures as will afford the greatest scope for individual initiative and at the same time protect the people from exploitation and injury by conscienceless predatory interests.

As evidence of this determination, we recall the enactment of the Workmen's Compensation law and the amendments thereof, the act for the rehabilitation of those crippled and disabled by participation in war, the State Land Bank act, the Conservation law, the Direct Primary law, the Massachusetts ballot, the one day of rest in seven, and the recovery of the water power of the St. Lawrence River.

We rejoice in the marvelous record of Governor Alfred E. Smith. It has been one of earnest endeavor and of brilliant achievement. His action has been guided by a keen and thorough understanding of the public needs and prompted by the best interests of all of the people. In every State department over which the law enables him to exercise control there has been ample evidence of his intelligence, his foresight, his knowledge of State affairs, and his determination to place the public welfare above every other consideration. Those departments are strikingly free from the scandals which have permeated numerous departments under Republican control.

Vigilant in the interests of the people, he has safeguarded the Commonwealth from innumerable perils during the difficult period of reconstruction and readjustment.

In an effort to solve the innumerable problems arising from afterwar conditions, he appointed a Reconstruction Commission. It was composed of patriotic, intelligent and earnest men and women, representing every element of society, selected without regard to their political affiliations, anxious to devote their time and their talents to the vexatious questions pressing for solution.

Condemns Republican Legislature.

We condemn the Republican Legislature for its refusal to provide the modest apropriation of $50,000 requested for the expenses of this body, although the Governor had pointed out in his first annual message the manner in which a million and a half dollars appropriated for war purposes remaining unexpended could be restored to the general fund, out of which the small appropriation asked for could be made. We denounce the Republican Legislature for its complete disregard of the commission's recommendations. This action of the Republican Legislature was a manifestation of contemptible partisan opposition prompted solely by a desire to prevent a Democratic Governor from receiving credit for highly beneficial reforms.

From the very beginning of Governor Smith's term this was the policy of the Republican Legislature. Evidently it was the desire to deceive the people as to those responsible for the failure to effect many imperative reforms in the hope that the State would be returned to Republican control.

No constructive reforms or progressive legislation resulted from the deliberations of the Republican Legislature, excepting such as were forced by the vigorous urging of Governor Smith.

The Republican Party, while advocating in its platform the utmost freedom of speech, refused to permit a discussion in the Legislature of the measures designed to carry out the Governor's progressive recommendations, and it even attempted to enact the most drastically repressive statutes ever proposed in time of peace.

The people of the State have long looked upon the Assembly as the popular branch of the Legislature, where the opinions and desires of the people were freely expressed and thoroughly discussed. During the past two years its activities have been arbitrarily controlled by a few powerful men of reactionary tendencies, who have prevented even nominal consideration of progressive proposals beneficial to the entire Commonwealth.

Commends Democratic Minority.

We commend the Democratic minority in the Legislature for its earnest and patriotic efforts to secure the enactment of the many measures required to make effective the constructive and progressive program of Governor Smith. Cooperating with him to redeem the pledges given to the people and to relieve them from many burdens which changing conditions had created, practically all of their efforts were thwarted by the reactionary Republican Assembly, which refused in innumerable instances even to permit important remedial legislation to be discussed.

With no desire for partisan advantage, with an eye single to the public weal, Governor Smith and the Democratic minority in the Legislature repeatedly urged the enactment of laws imperatively required for the prosperity of the people and the proper development of the State.

The issue has been made by the opposition of the Republican Party to the proposed reforms. Facing forward, not backward, confident of its dininterestedness in the advocacy of needed legislation, anxious to serve the Commonwealth in the manner best designed to advance the people along the path of progress, the Democratic Party presents this review of its conduct and its renewed pledges for progressive legislation, confident that the people will emphatically approve the administration of Governor Smith and, under his guidance insure, without the interference of petty partisan politics, an outstandingly liberal, economical, progressive and efficient administration.

Reorganization of the State Government.

To promote efficiency and to eliminate waste, we still favor amendments to the Constitution which will effect a reorganization of the State Government and consolidate into eighteen departments, with responsible heads, the 187 existing unsystematized and imperfectly controlled agencies of government.

With the annual budget exceeding $140,000,000, necessitating for the first time a tax upon incomes to meet the mounting cost of government, the need for this reform is imperative.

Progressive citizens of all shades of political opinion joined in appeal to the Legislature to pass the amendments recommended by the Governor's Reconstruction Commission. This appeal was denied only because the Republican majority was unwilling that a Democratic Governor should have the credit for so constructive a reform.

Executive Budget.

The present budget system is archaic and wasteful. It does not fix authority and responsibility. The only cure is to provide by constitutional amendment for an executive budget system. The executive budget system has been adopted by more than twenty States; has been approved by Congress, and will soon be effective in Washington. It is incorporated in the platforms of both of the leading national parties. Opposition by the Republican Party to an executive budget for the State means repudiation of their national party platform.

An executive budget system will assure the public submission to the Legislature of an authoritative finance program by the Governor as head of the executive department. It will relieve the Legislature of detailed administrative functions, leaving its authority over matters of policy unimpaired and its dignity enhanced. It will thus strengthen both the legislative and executive branches of the Government and will insure economy and a procedure which the public can follow and understand.

State Finances.

We commend Governor Smith for the vigorous use of his veto power in striking from the appropriation bills millions of dollars of needless and useless appropriations made by the Republican Legislature.

While the people of the State may expect an increase in the cost of government proportionate with the increase in every other line of endeavor, they have no patience with wasteful and useless expenditures.

We pledge a rigid economy and a careful scrutiny of every suggested appropriation, so that public works may be progressed in the order of their importance to all of the people and not as a matter of favor to a few.

Four-Year Term for Governor.

We favor the submission to the people of an amendment to the Constitution lengthening the term of the Governor and State officers, in the belief that it will tend toward greater stability, continuity and effectiveness in management of State affairs.

Highways.

We commend Governor Smith for his determination to divorce highways from partisan politics. The building and maintenance of highways is the largest business enterprise in which the State engages and one which affects directly the interests of every citizen. We approve his policy that the highway department be conducted on strictly business principles, and that those highways benefiting the greatest number be built first, preference being given to farm market roads. We indorse the Governor's stand for durable, well-built roads in place of "the-more-miles-the-more-votes" plan, the mistaken policy often pursued in the past under Republican administrations which resulted in broken down roads and waste of public money.

The State's highways were left by the previous Republican administration in a deplorable condition. Unfinished and wornout roads blocked traffic and caused financial loss to the taxpayers through the State. Little or no reconstruction was done during 1917 and 1918, and many important roads thus neglected went to pieces. In less than a year the present Democratic administration, in addition to getting the abandoned contracts again under way, inaugurated many miles of reconstruction and urgently needed new construction.

The reform inaugurated by the present administration of substituting maintenance gangs for the old method of repairing roads by politically appointed patrolmen has made the maintenance of highways more efficient and economical than ever before.

Despite the fact that the maintenance appropriation requested by the Highway Commission was cut in half by a Republican Legislature, the present condition of the highways of the State is conclusive proof of the practical policy and faithful service of the Democratic administration.

Housing.

Decent homes, good wholesome environments in which to bring up children, are fundamental necessities of the people. The present crisis in housing has been accentuated by conditions arising out of the war, and calls for drastic changes in our methods of supplying homes.

We recommend the creation of local housing boards in communities having a population of over 10 000, and the creation of a central State housing agency to aid each locality in meeting the immediate, pressing need for sufficient homes; a constitutional amendment permitting extension of State credit on an adequate scale at low rates or the construction of moderate priced homes; legislation permitting cities to acquire, hold or lease vacant lands, and, if necessary, to carry on housing as a municipal activity; the exemption of the bonds of the State Land Bank and the exemption for a limited period of mortgage loans on dwellings from State, local and Federal taxation.

This program was urged by the Governor in a special message to the Legislature, but the Republican majority ignored his recommendations.

We favor more effective legislation to protect tenants against the unreasonable increase of rentals and dispossess proceedings of unfair landlords.

Labor.

The Democratic party has ever been zealous for the welfare of the workers. There is a wide difference between the attitude of the Republican and Democratic parties in relation to labor and social legislation. The Republican Party regards the worker as a mere machine, to be thrown into the scrap-heap when he has outlived his usefulness. The Democratic Party treats the men and women who toil as human beings, with material and social needs and aspirations common to all mankind.

The record of the Republican Party in this State shows how insincere and hypocritical are the general declarations in its platform of its interest in the welfare of labor.

Practically every piece of progressive labor and social legislation, including the Workmen's Compensaton law, the Widows' Penson law, the Full Crew bill, the laws reducing the hours of labor of women and prohibiting night work, the child labor laws, putting an end to the exploitation of children; the One Day of Rest in Seven law, the fire prevention laws and the great mass of legislation for the protection of the safety and health of the men, women and children employed in industry was enacted by the Democratic Party.

The past two years the Governor has urged the Republican Legislature to pass a minimum wage law for women and minors employed in industry and a law reducing the hours of labor of women and minors by fixing a maximum eight-hour day for their employment in industrial establishments.

To these humane and progressive proposals the Republican Party turns a deaf ear. Although they were passed by the Senate, they were not even permitted to be discussed upon the floor of the Assembly, but were stifled in committee at the behest of a corrupt and powerful lobby.

We pledge ourselves to the enactment of these measures.

We oppose the compulsory arbitration of private labor disputes, and we favor legislation declaring that the labor of a human being is not a commodity or an article of commerce.

The Democratic Party stands for equal opportunities for men and women in our industrial as well as in our political life. The labor of women should be surrounded with every safeguard, not alone in the interest of present day society, but for the sake of future generations.

There is no greater evil to posterity and to the race than the premature employment and overwork of children. Every protection that the State can devise should be afforded to the children employed in our industrial establishments. Their labor should be closely restricted and carefully supervised, to the end that they may develop into strong and vigorous manhood and womanhood.

Capital and Labor.

The enlightened attitude of the Democratic Party toward labor harmonizes with its view that the further progress of capital in developing natural sources, increasing production and enlarging the scope of industry's service to society, is intimately bound up in the progress and welfare of labor. The Democratic Party recognizes the rights of both capital and labor, and realizes that the prosperity of the entire community depends upon their joint welfare and co-operation.

We strongly commend the energetic and successful efforts of Governor Smith, through the Labor Board established by him, to avoid industrial disorder and strife in the trying period of reconstruction and readjustment through which we have been passing.

As a result of an investigation upon the recommendation of the Governor, the pernicious system of direct settlements, which had been grafted into the law under a Republican Governor and a Republican Legislature, was abolished.

We pledge ourselves to a liberal, humane and efficient administration of the workmen's compensation law that will secure to injured workmen and their dependents the compensation to which they are entitled. We favor the revision of the occupational disease law so as to simplify its administration and to cover more accurately the illnesses due to industrial occupations and processes.

We favor the enactment of a comprehensive Federal workmen's compensation law to cover employments now declared by court interpretation to be outside of the workmen's compensation law of this State, such as hazardous employments in connection with loading, unloading and repairing ships plying in navigable waters, so that this great number of wage earners within our State may be adequately protected.

Conservation and Water Power.

The Democratic Party has always stood for the conservation of our forests and natural resources.

We reiterate our support for the development and distribution by the State of hydro-electric power for the benefit of all the people. The Republican Legislature has twice refused to enact legislation proposed by Governor Smith to accomplish this purpose, and has attempted to substitute therefor the exploitation of the State's water resources for the benefit of those influential enough to obtain franchises therefor.

We commend Governor Smith's veto of the Sage bill, which attempted to revive privately owned and practically dormant charters affecting the border water of the State.

We pledge ourselves to the continued preservation and extension of the State forest domain and to the prevention of the pollution of streams, and to the reforestation of denuded forest lands.

Governor Smith recommended that measures be enacted for the proper storage of water to provide a supply in times of drought, thus furnishing a steady source of power and giving more regular employment and increased wage earnings. In pursuance of this recommendation the Governor appointed the Commissioners of the first water storage district created in the State—the Black River regulating district—and those Commissioners are now engaged in the preparation of comprehensive plans for the storage and conservation of the head waters of the Black River.

Equal Suffrage.

We commend the Governor for promptly calling the Legislature in extraordinary session in order that the Empire State might advance the cause of universal suffrage. We condemn Senator Wadsworth, who, in the face of the expressed will of the people, persisted in his reactionary attitude toward this great reform. We regret that the progressive action of our State has not been followed by all of the States in the Union. We urge the Legislatures of such States as have not yet ratified the amendment to do so at once.

We approve of the principle of independent citizenship for all women.

With the enfranchisement of women in this State Governor Smith believed that they should be represented on the Board of Regents, the head of the educational system of the State. When three vacancies occurred in this most important body in the Spring of 1920 the Democratic minority proposed that one of the vacancies should be filled by a woman; but the Republican Party, in spite of its declaration that it welcomed women to full participation in the Government, filled the places with three of its male political leaders.

We commend Governor Smith for appointing a woman to the State Civil Service Commission and to the State Industrial Commission, thus recognizing that women should be represented on important State bodies whose activities directly affect the welfare of large numbers of women and children.

Equal Representation on State Committee.

We recommend the amendment of the election law to provide for two members of the State Committee from each Assembly district and urge equal representation of the sexes on said committee.

Election Laws.

We demand a comprehensive revision and clarification of the Corrupt Practices act, the penal law and the election law, so as to provide full publicity of campaign contributions before election. These important reforms have been twice recommended by Governor Smith and twice denied by the Republican Legislature. The people are entitled to know what obligations candidates have incurred to special interests for financing their campaign. The conscience of the whole country was recently shocked by the bold and brazen attempts to purchase Republican nominations with immense contributions of money secretly made and beyond all reason.

We have consistently declared in favor of an amendment to the Constitution which would permit voters whose occupation detains them from their place of residence on Election Day to cast their ballots. At the recent session of the Legislature Governor Smith signed a bill carrying this constitutional amendment into effect.

Direct Primaries.

We believe in direct nominations. We are opposed to any legislation that will, in whole or in part, deprive enrolled voters of the direct choice of their own candidates. We approve the action of Governor Smith in vetoing Republican legislation intended to destroy the direct primary law. Party organizations which cannot be maintained without depriving the party voters of the final say ought not to exist.

Municipal Home Rule.

We pledge our support to an amendment to the Constitution granting to cities and villages adequate powers of self-government and control over their local affairs and property, subject to the general laws of the State, but free from legislative interference in matters of purely local concernn. We further pledge our support to legislation which will confer upon all cities greater powers of local self-government, including the power to own and operate their public utilities when the judgment of the community demands it.

We will continue to oppose all measures which further restrict the control of cities over their own local affairs. We call attention to the fact that the Republican Legislature has refused to advance the municipal home rule amendment, desired by the Conference of Mayors, and that the Governor has been compelled to prevent with his veto the enactment of Republican legislation totally destructive of the home rule principle.

Public Utilities.

We favor the regulation of public utilities so that sufficient and safe service may be rendered the public at a cost which will yield not more than a fair return upon the capital actually and honestly invested.

We favor investing the Public Service Commissions with sufficient power to enforce their own orders and suspend proposed increased rates during investigation by the commissions.

We favor the enactment of legislation, defeated at the last session of the Legislature by the Republican Senate, placing upon a public utility corporation demanding increased rates the burden of proof to show the reasonableness of such proposed increases, and removing that burden which now rests upon the public.

Increase Rate Legislation.

We are opposed to legislation permitting State commissions to impair or modify contracts made between cities of the State and railway companies fixing rates of fare. Measures violating this principle were strenuously advocated by Republican legislators and by a Republican Speaker of the Assembly in 1919 and 1920. Any modification of such contracts should be made by the contracting parties in accordance with the majority sentiment of the community affected, and they should not be abrogated by the interference of State agencies.

Eighteenth Amendment.

We favor an amendment to the so-called Volstead act that will make operative the act passed by the State Legislature and signed by Governor Smith defining non-intoxicating beverages and providing for the regulation of their sale.

We favor an amendment to the national Constitution whereby all amendments to the Constitution of the United States hereafter proposed shall be ratified by a referendum of the whole people and not by the Legislatures of the several States.

Free Speech.

The Democratic Party stands firmly for the right of free speech and free assemblage, in order to maintain the Government by the enlightened will of the majority. An ardent advocate of these principles, Governor Smith has preserved by his recent vetoes the right of political minorities against summary suppression and has maintained freedom of opinion and speech. He has defended the right of all political parties to advocate their political principles by peaceful and constitutional methods, and has maintained the principles of "no spy system" in time of peace.

Agriculture.

In 1918 the Democratic platform promised a "rehabilitation of the State Agricultural establishment, to the end that it may produce more crops and less politics." Governor Smith made repeated efforts to effect this.

Although the largest appropriations in the history of the State have been made for agricultural purposes, the State has proportionately received the least return.

Through the investigation of the Council of Farms and Markets by a commissioner appointed by the Governor, astonishing revelations disclosing conditions of neglect that were scandalous, and even approaching criminality, were made. The Governor immediately requested the Council of Farms and Markets to remove the Commissioner of Foods and Markets and the Commissioner of Agriculture for incompetency and inefficiency and for laxness in the discharge of their duties. The commissioners themselves admitted that in several important bureaus of the Council of Farms and Markets, notably the Bureau of Animal Industry, the bureau in charge of the disposal of horses condemned for glanders, the dog fund and the bureaus entrusted with the inspection of food substitutes, there was serious neglect of duty.

Though charged with the duty of providing a plan "for securing an ample supply of milk in centres of population upon an economic basis of distribution," nothing was done—a fact admitted by the commissioners themselves.

With broad grants of power at their command, the investigation further disclosed that no attempt had been made by Commissioners or Council to exercise them. Beyond a doubt, it was definitely established by the same investigation that the irresponsible form of departmental organization comprised in a Council of Farms and Markets appointed and removable only by the Legislature, and they further divided responsibility in two unco-ordinated departmental heads, such as the Commissioner of Agriculture and Commissioner of Farms and Markets, cannot function effectively and result in confusion and maladministration.

In spite of a repeated attempt of the Governor to secure reorganization of the department so as to fix the responsibility under a single head, the Republican Legislature preferred to disregard all of the recommendations of the investigation and of the Governor. The Council of Farms and Markets itself refused to exercise its own powers and to act on the report of the negligence of its appointees, and continued to retain in their places officials clearly guilty of incompetence and neglect of duty.

Although blocked by Republican legislative indifference and the refusal to remedy departmental inefficiency, we shall not lessen our endeavor to check the profiteer or to assist legitimate merchandising and, most of all, to benefit the consumer and the farmer by establishing terminal markets and improving our administrative machinery by making it more directly responsible to the people, aiding co-operative enterprises of farmers and consumers and regulating food industries where it is in the interest of the public welfare so to do.

We pledge ourselves to every possible effort to aid in reducing the cost of living, of the farmer no less than the merchant and the consumer, and to that end we pledge ourselves to a thorough reorganization of the Council of Farms and Markets.

Health.

Universal recognition has been accorded to the importance of protecting and preserving the public health. Prevention of sickness is as vital, if not more so, than the cure of disease. It is false economy to restrict the activities of a department which protects the lives of the State's citizens. We pledge ourselves to support the program of the State Department of Health, so that the citizens of the State may have the best that science affords for the preservation of the health of the community. From infancy to adult life adequate public health facilities radiating from a health centre in every community should be provided, and we condemn the Republican Legislature for the rejection of the health centre bill recommended by Governor Smith and for reducing necessary appropriations asked by the Department of Health.

Education.

The State of New York, through the insistence of Governor Smith, has made the largest appropriation for educational purposes ever made by this or any other State and has provided for increased compensation for teachers.

We are firm in the belief that a sound education is the best possible basis for success in life. Believing that we should extend the hand of welcome to those who come to us from foreign lands, we pledge ourselves to the furthest possible extension of educational facilities and training and encouragement toward citizenship for those members of our community. Only in this way can they become truly American.

We pledge ourselves to continue the policy of liberal provision by State aid for the educational progress of the State. We recognize that the men, women and children of the State are its greatest asset, and that no amount of money properly expended to educate them is too great.

State Hospitals and Institutions.

We pledge ourselves to continue the Democratic policy and program of enlightened care for those unfortunate wards of the State dependent upon it because of mental or physical deficiency. The Governor himself made inspections of many of the hospitals and public institutions and showed his disposition and attitude by signing this year the largest single appropriation for State hospitals in the history of the State.

By appointment of the Governor a commission composed of the leading specialists in mental diseases made an investigation, and their report, containing important recommendations, was transmitted by the Governor to the Legislature.

Barge Canal and Terminals.

The policy of canal development adopted during Governor Smith's administration has wholly fulfilled his preelection pledge of 1918. A strenuous educational campaign designed to teach the people of the State the benefits and economies to be derived from their splendid system of inland waterways has been carried on throughout the two years of Governor Smith's administration, and few, if any, shippers of the State today remain in ignorance of the possibilities of canal transportation.

As a result of this policy the activity on the waterway is at present the greatest that has been witnessed since the enlargement of the system. Not only has the water-borne commerce of the State been appreciably increased, but, also, the encouragement and assistance transportation companies have received during Governor Smith's administration have enabled many interests to progress plans to a point where the foundation of a strong, efficient canal transportation organization has been laid, and the urgent need of new and modern barge equipment will be met in the early future.

The Governor early foresaw the inadequacy of the canal terminals and realized the waterway could not approach its full usefulness and efficiency and provide a return to the people for the $155,000,000 invested in it until adequate terminal facilities were provided. His insistent program of terminal completion has brought about marked improvement in the terminal situation.

The plan of constructing State grain elevators at the Great Lakes canal terminals and the seaboard advocated and accomplished by the Governor has removed a great obstruction to the rehabilitation of canal commerce and has furnished a means whereby the food products of the West may reach the great consuming population of New York at the minimum of expense, thus aiding in the reduction of living costs and guaranteeing for the waterway a tremendous grain tonnage for which it was originally constructed, likewise providing forceful means of competition with the railroads.

To enhance the ability of the waterway to function in the interest of the public and to further contribute toward the reduction of living costs the Governor has also advocated the construction of coal transshipping terminals at strategic canal ports, which, when constructed, will provide a certain and cheap route for the transportation of fuel and insure an adequate coal supply for the people of the State.

We favor the continued improvement of inland waterways and will vigorously oppose any scheme that threatens their use.

State Employes.

We advocate, in the interest of justice as well as administrative efficiency, the increase of salaries of underpaid State employes. We promise our special attention to the question of adequate remuneration for those employed in State institutions, who are notoriously underpaid for the services they perform. The pay of the lower-salaried employes of the State hospitals and institutions scandalously low for many years, was, by the signature of Governor Smith, raised to a standard more commensurate with the present cost of living.

Civil Service.

We vigorously uphold the merit principle involved in the competitive system.

We commend Governor Smith for removing from the rules and regulations of the Civil Service Commission all discrimination against women.

Prison Reform.

A niggardly and inefficient policy, long pursued in the past, has made our State prisons a discredit to the State. The prisons have suffered from a condition of general neglect which should not be allowed to continue. Our prisoners are housed in buildings unsanitary and out of repair. They are employed with meagre instruction upon inadequate machinery of obsolete type, lacking the safeguards required by law in factories. Opportunities for education are almost totally lacking. Proper provision has not been made for the separate housing of the feebleminded apart from sane and competent prisoners.

At the request of the Governor a careful examination of the prisons has been made by a non-partisan committee, which, after careful and prolonged study, has reported recommendations which will afford a basis for a thoroughgoing reform. The prisoners should be taught, for many of them are illiterate, and most of them have no trades. They should be employed steadily at useful employment, so that they may acquire habits of industry. The machinery and equipment of the prison industries should be such as to enable the prisoners not only to become self-supporting while in prison but to earn from the profits of the industries a wage for the benefit of their dependents.

The Democratic Party pledges the people that it will make the appropriations required to set in force a prison program which shall make the State of New York stand at the very head of American States in the management of its prisons.

Port Development.

We owe it to the nation to organize and develop the Port of New York. To that end we favor a compact or agreement with our sister State, New Jersey, which shall provide for the creation of a port district and a port authority with adequate powers to develop the port comprehensively, and with proper protection for New York City over the public ownership and development of its waterfront and commercial facilities.

New York-New Jersey Tunnel.

Governor Smith has been a consistent advocate of the proposed New York-New Jersey vehicular tunnel and has signed bills appropriating $2,00,000 toward the completion of the project.

Self-Determination.

Mindful of the circumstances of the birth of our own nation, we reassert the principle that all governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. We favor the continuance of our long established and lawful practice of according recognition without intervention in all cases where the people of a nation, as in Ireland, have by free vote of the people set up a Republic and chosen a Government, to which they yield willing obedience.

War Veterans—State Militia.

The Democratic Party is proud of the record of the New York State troops overseas. A Democratic Governor appointed veterans of the American Expeditionary forces to the important positions of Adjutant General and Highway Commissioner and from its ranks brought to the State service many efficient public servants.

The Democratic Party promised a solution of the problem of reinstatement of former members of the National Guard in the State Militia. A committee appointed by the Adjutant General, working in thorough accord with the Federal Government, effected a reorganization of our State Militia and provided for the reinstatement of those members of the National Guard who had lost their standing in the militia by reason of their service in the army in the great war.

Military Training.

The Governor urged the Reconstruction Commission to investigate the subject of military training for boys, and the commission presented an exhaustive report on this subject, which in effect opposed compulsory military training and recommended the abolition of the Military Training Commission and the transfer of all its functions to the State Department of Education.

We condemn the Republican Legislature for its failure to adopt the recommendations of the commission.

Equal Civil Rights.

True to our traditions, we declare our allegiance to the fundamental principles of Jefferson that all men are born free and equal; we believe in and demand the enforcement of all laws guaranteeing equal privileges to all citizens of the State, regardless of race, color or religion. We denounce mob violence in every form, wherever perpetrated.

Conclusion.

Upon this statement of our party's record and principles, pointing to the performance of our promises, we confidently appeal to the people for the reelection of Governor Alfred E. Smith and the election of the Democratic candidate for United States Senator, the Democratic candidates for the various State offices, a Democratic Legislature, a Democratic Congress and the Democratic candidates for President and Vice President.

WOMAN ON TICKET PLEASES ALL SIDES

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, Aug. 4.—Women attending the Democratic State Convention expressed satisfaction today at the choice of Miss Harriet May Mills of Syracuse, suggested as a candidate for Secretary of State, for a place on the State ticket. Although the convention did not designate or even recommend, there is no doubt of Miss Mills's nomination. She was the only candidate suggested for the office, and it is unlikely that there will be a candidate against her in the primaries.

The men leaders of the party also expressed satisfaction at Miss Mills's selection, which was made originally at a meeting of the women themselves. They believe her selection was good, practical politics and will strengthen the whole ticket by giving the women of the State a concrete proof of their frequently expressed intention of admitting women to full participation in party politics.

Miss Mills was greatly pleased at the honor of being the first woman candidate of either of the two major parties for State office.

"I was greatly surprised when I was first told that I was being considered for the place," she said. "It was certainly a case of 'the office seeking the man.' I am pleased at my selection and it will be my business now to put the truth before the people and to work to elect the whole ticket."

Miss Mills said she expected to put in all her time from now until election working for Democratic success.

"There will be no eight-hour day for me until after election," she said.

"The Democratic Party is the party that appeals to women," she added. "I don't expect the support of all the women of the State, but I have reason to believe that I will receive the support of many of them. I have just received a telegram stating that all the women of one Republican family will vote for me."

Miss Mills's first act after the adjournment of the convention was to telephone her aged mother, 87 years old, at Syracuse. Mrs. Mills, a contemporary of Susan B. Anthony and other pioneer suffrage leaders, has long been an advocate of woman suffrage, and Miss Mills has been a leader in the suffrage fight in this State for many years.

Miss Mills said she intended to campaign, not for her own election particularly, but for the election of Governor Cox, Governor Smith and the rest of the ticket. She had spoken from a soap box before, she said, and was willing to speak in hall or street anywhere in the State.

The Saratoga County branch of the League of Women Voters held a meeting at the home of George Foster Peabody yesterday, which was attended by Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, chairman of the New York State League. The women present, regardless of politics, voted to support Miss Mills.

Mrs. Mary A. Morse of Buffalo, woman Democratic leader of Erie County, said that the selection of Miss Mills would be a great help to the organization of women in the Democratic Party. "It is just the right time to nominate a woman," she said, "Miss Mills was the logical candidate. No other name was seriously mentioned."

The selection of Miss Mills seems to have caused no jealousy among the other women here, which is in marked contrast to the situation two years ago, when the women delegates were notified that they might name a woman for a place on the ticket but were unable to agree. Women commending the selection of Miss Mills included Mrs. Henry Altman of Buffalo, honorary president of the Buffalo Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Elizabeth V. Colbert of Albany, and Mrs. John Blair, Mrs. Ella O'Gorman Stanton and Mrs. John Sherwin Crosby of New York.

William W. Farley, State Chairman, said he believed the selection of Miss Mills was a good thing for the Democratic Party,

"There was a slight difference of opinion as to the advisability of placing a woman on the State ticket," he said. "That time in my opinion passed with the advent of Woman Suffrage. To have practically as many women voters as men in the State, to claim equal rights for them and then to refuse them any place on the State ticket is not logical."

Spanish Cities to Raise Funds.

MADRID, Aug. 3.—Bonds amounting to 60,000,000 pesetas will be issued soon by each of the municipalities of Madrid and Barcelona, which plan to use the money to improve the city services. Newspapers here declare this demonstrates that Spaniards are "awakening to their own interests and have determined to spend some of the money gained during the war to help local conditions."

More Japanese Troops to Korea.

TOKIO, Aug. 3 (Associated Press).—Japan will increase her garrison forces in Korea by 4,800 men, owing to unsettled conditions, according to an announcement made public here today.

ALLEN LEADING, 6 TO 1.

Senator Curtis Also Increases Gains in Kansas Primary.

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 4.—Returns reaching Topeka tonight increased the leads of Senator Charlie Curtis and Governor Henry U. Allen for renomination. Senator Curtis was leading John A. Edwards two to one, while the lead of Governor Allen over George B. Snow of Oakland had increased to three to one.

On the Democratic ticket the only contest, that for nomination for Governor, is still in doubt because of the meagre returns. Jonathan Davis of Bronson leads in the available returns, with O. T. Wood, Dempster Potts and W. A. Hyatt following in the order named.

All the Republican Congressmen have been nominated, with Lacey Simpson of McPherson a possible winner over Judge Richard E. Bird of Wichita. In the Eighth District, now represented by W. A. Ayers of Wichita, a Democrat, Mr. Ayers was renominated.

HARDING REFUSES AID TO SUFFRAGE

Tells Party Men in Tennessee He Cannot Urge Legislators to Ratify.

BUT HE SEES MRS. BAKER

And She Still Has Hope—Mrs. Catt Appeals to Nominees to Help.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—In spite of a frantic appeal from the Harding and Coolidge League of the District of Columbia, Senator Harding has refused to exert his influence upon Tennessee Republicans to help ratify the Federal suffrage amendment at the special legislative session beginning next Monday.

The local Harding and Coolidge League telegraphed the nominee that the Republican situation in Tennessee was creating an unpleasant atmosphere, but all that Senator Harding said in reply was:

> You can understand why I cannot consistently urge Tennessee legislators to vote for ratification without knowing their reasons for such commitment as they have made. The situation is being reported to national headquarters, where it will be given attention at once.

The telegram from the Harding and Coolidge League follows:

> The Harding and Coolidge Republican League has taken a telegraphic poll of the Republican members of the Tennessee Legislature on the woman suffrage amendment. It does not look good. Suggest that a personal telegram from you to each Republican member of the Legislature will undoubtedly result in all voting for the woman suffrage amendment when Legislature meets Aug. 9.
>
> Do not believe that anything else will result in solid Republican support of the amendment. Republicans here think it most necessary to give good Republican support for ratification in Tennessee, because if Tennessee is lost we will have women attacking us to get Vermont and Connecticut.
>
> WINFIELD JONES,
> Chairman Executive Committee.

An analysis of the Tennessee legislative situation shows that the Republicans have about a quarter of the membership of each house. There are seven Republican members of the Senate, four of whom are pledged to vote for ratification of suffrage, one is non-committal, one opposed and one has not been heard from.

There are twenty-eight Republican members in the House, eleven of whom are pledged to vote for ratification, five are non-committal, two opposed and ten have not been heard from.

Of the Republicans who are non-committal and opposed in both houses five are suffragists, as shown by the fact that last year they voted for the Presidential suffrage bill. Republicans who gave their pledges to vote for ratification are reported by suffragists as beginning to hesitate and as saying that they are non-committal. As an example, Finney T. Carter sent the following pledge July 9, according to the National Woman's Party:

"I will vote in favor of ratifying the amendment to the United States Constitution extending the right of suffrage to women when it comes before the Legislature of my State."

Three weeks later Miss Anita Politzer, Legislative Secretary of the woman's party, with present headquarters in Knoxville, telegraphed to Miss Alice Paul, Chairman of the party:

"Mr. Carter says he is undecided because of the constitutional question."

Parley P. Christensen, Presidential nominee of the Farmer-Labor Party, telephoned today from New York offering his services to the National Woman's Party to assist in the campaign in Tennessee. Mr. Christensen stated that he made his offer in accord with the strong suffrage plank in his party's platform and with his own long-standing convictions.

According to present plans Mr. Christensen will arrive in Nashville Sunday and speak before the Central Labor Conference of that city. From there he will go to other cities throughout the State addressing labor and farmer organizations.

Mr Christensen will point out to the women of Tennessee that sincere support from either of the two old parties would have enfranchised all women long ago, but that women may yet have to turn to the Farmer-Labor Party as the only one sincerely working for suffrage.

Mrs. Catt Asks Nominees to Help.

Special to The New York Times.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 4.—Suffrage leaders are spending the week preceding the assembling of the State Legislature Monday in canvassing the three grand divisions of Tennessee and trying to pledge a majority of the members to vote for ratification of the Federal Suffrage amendment.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt is in East Tennessee. She has delivered speeches at Chattanooga and Knoxville, and has conferred with many members of the Legislature. Miss Anita Politzer, of the National Woman's Party, also is campaigning in East Tennessee for signed pledges for ratification.

Mrs. Catt has made several speeches in the western division of Tennessee, principally at Memphis and Jackson. Miss Betty Gram, one of the militant suffragists, is now in that section. She will visit several counties and try to secure the signature of legislators for ratification.

Meanwhile State headquarters of the Tennessee League of Women Voters is putting great pressure upon recalcitrant legislators through its Congressional district chairmen and workers. The women are very active, and through an extensive card system they have a complete record of each man's inclination.

Indications point to the constitutional question as being a vital issue in the fight. The anti-suffragists will not base their arguments against the measure along the usual lines, but will base their attack almost solely on the ground that under the State Constitution a legislator will violate his oath of office if he votes for an amendment at the same term of the Legislature at which it is submitted.

Anti-suffrage forces are gathering under the banner of the Tennessee Constitutional League, which has a large number of lawyers for counsel. A quotation from a letter of the league sent out to each member of the Legislature reads:

"Our State Constitution clearly forbids the present Legislature to act in this matter. Every one admits this. Accordingly, you haven't the right, without violation of your oath of office, to act unless this provision of our Constitution is illegal and invalid."

Mrs. Catt, who is leading the fight of the suffragists, has fortified herself with opinions by Charles E. Hughes of New York, Solicitor General William L. Frierson and State Attorney General Frank Thompson that ratification by the Legislature will be valid under the Federal Constitution.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 4.—Governor Cox and Senator Harding were informed today by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt that there was a "very real and threatening danger" to the ratification of the suffrage amendment by the Tennessee Legislature.

Mrs. Catt telegraphed the nominees that "the tremendous effort being made by outsiders to persuade legislators not to act on the amendment at all, under the pretense that it would be a violation of their oath to support the State Constitution," was responsible for the danger. She asserted that "outsiders are inspiring messages to you signed by Tennessee names asking you to keep hands off."

Mrs. Baker Confers with Harding.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Aug. 4.— Mrs. Abby Scott Baker, Political Chairman of the National Woman's Party, appealed to Senator Harding today for help to obtain ratification of the Federal suffrage amendment by the Tennessee Legislature. Afterward she said she was "greatly pleased and much encouraged" over the Senator's attitude. Mrs. Baker said that should the thirty-sixth State fail to ratify suffrage there would be a convention of the Woman's Party with a view to "fixing the blame" for neglect of the question on either the Republican or Democratic Party.

"I asked Senator Harding," Mrs. Baker said, "that he do certain definite things in the way of securing information and bringing pressure to bear at Nashville, and he agreed to them all.

"I impressed upon him that, unless the Tennessee Legislature acted favorably, the ratification question was likely to become an incubus on the back of the Republican Party. For should Tennessee fail us, we would have to turn to Vermont and Connecticut, both Republican States, as our final hope of securing the thirty-sixth State in time to make the amendment effective next November.

"If it thus became apparent that two stubborn old men, Governors Clement and Holcomb, both Republicans, were breaking the hopes of millions of women by refusing to call their Legislatures into session they would become very obnoxious old men of the sea to the Republican Party.

"We have by no means lost hope of ratification by Tennessee, but it will require honest effort by the big men of the nation to bring it about."

TO START CHICAGO CAMPAIGN

Franklin D. Roosevelt to Address Big Meeting Next Wednesday.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Extensive preparations are under way for the launching of the Democratic national campaign here next Wednesday, when Franklin D. Roosevelt, candidate for the Vice-Presidency, will be the principal speaker at a meeting in the Auditorium.

Arrangements are in the hands of a committee headed by Dennis Egan, chairman of the managing committee of the Cook County Democratic organization.

"Illinois Democrats are enthusiastic for the Cox-Roosevelt ticket," said Mr. Egan today. "There has not been for many years the harmony that now marks our campaign for the National, State and County tickets. Down-State and Chicago Democrats are pulling together as they have not done in many years and we believe that we will roll up the biggest vote the Democrats ever have given their ticket on Nov. 2. Here in Cook County we have no doubt of the success of our ticket.

"Mr. Roosevelt is especially popular in Chicago. James Hamilton Lewis, our candidate for Governor, will be one of the speakers and will at that time launch his candidacy."

BELLBOY RETURNS $20,000.

McAlpin Guest Liberally Rewards Finder of Handbag.

A handbag containing French currency worth several hundred dollars and travelers checks and jewelry valued at about $20,000 was found yesterday afternoon in the Hotel McAlpin lobby by Hugh D. Logan, a bellboy. There was no means of identifying the lost property, which Logan turned over to the hotel clerk, but a short time later Mrs. A. E. Ebbetts of Virginia identified the handbag as hers. Logan was liberally rewarded.

Logan recently came to this city from Pittsburgh, where he was a bellboy for a year in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

HARDING WILL STAY AT HOME 2 MONTHS

Announces That He Proposes to Stick to the Front-Porch Campaign Until October.

TOUR OF LARGE CITIES THEN

Pilgrimage of East Liverpool Potters Called Off When Railway Refuses Excursion Rates.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Aug. 4.—Nothing could induce him to leave his front porch campaign before the first of October, Senator Harding told a delegation of West Virginia Republicans, headed by Senator Sutherland, who came to Marion today to ask the candidate to visit the State Convention at Wheeling on Aug. 12.

Later, in his talk to newspaper correspondents this afternoon, Senator Harding said that he did not plan to leave Marion on a speaking tour before October.

Ever since Senator Harding returned to Marion persistent efforts have been made by some Republican leaders to have him abandon his front-porch campaign, temporarily at least, for extended speaking tours.

Senator Harding's managers have always left a loophole by saying that not all of their candidate's campaign utterances would be given from his front porch, or take the form of signed statements on political questions. Speaking engagements elsewhere have been mapped out only tentatively and will not be announced until later in the campaign, it was said.

When Senator Harding does show himself to the country it is believed that his appearances will be confined to ten or twelve of the large cities of the East and Middle West. There has been some talk of a speech at Memphis and another at Denver, and it is believed that these cities will be the southern and western boundaries of his tour. Some of Senator Harding's advisers here have maintained that the candidate should go to the Pacific Coast, but besides Senator New's assurances that Senators Johnson and Borah would participate actively in the campaign there are indications that the lessons of the visit of Hughes to California in 1916 have not been overlooked by the managers.

Little concern seems to be felt here over Governor Cox's taking the stump early in the campaign. Republican leaders think that concentration of activities in the last month before the election will counteract any local successes that Cox may have in doubtful territories. That voters react better to a last-moment whirlwind campaign than to an early stumping tour appears the general belief of Harding's advisers.

In the meantime, although dates have been made for future pilgrimages, all does not go well with the front porch campaign. News was received today of the decision of a delegation of pottery workers from East Liverpool to cancel their engagement to gather around the porch on Aug. 12. Difficulties of rail transportation and inability to obtain excursion rates were reasons given by the East Liverpool people for calling the date off.

Transportation difficulties, it is admitted here, discourage the possibility of many delegations coming to Marion from distant parts of the country. Nevertheless, Senator Harding has expressed his determination to go through with his front porch campaign until the last phase, just before election time. Regardless of the political importance of the visiting delegation it is intimated by Senator Harding's advisers the occasion will be used for the Senator to make an address of a national character.

Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel for the National Headquarters of the Anti-Saloon League, was one of Senator Harding's visitors this morning. He predicted a Republican victory in November. The attitude of the Anti-Saloon League, Mr. Wheeler said, would be determined at its convention at Birmingham, Ala., this month, when he expected one of the Presidential candidates would receive the organization's indorsement.

Doubtful States for Senator Harding, Mr. Wheeler thought, were New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and California. New Jersey and California, he thought, offered the most serious situation for the Republicans to overcome.

REPUBLICANS STAR COLONEL ROOSEVELT

Announce Nation-wide Speaking Tour to Offset Democratic Roosevelt Asset.

The name of Roosevelt is not to be monopolized by the Democrats during the Presidential campaign this year, even though Franklin D. Roosevelt is the Democratic nominee for Vice President. The Republican National Committee has decided to offset the Democratic Roosevelt asset by throwing Colonel Theodore Roosevelt into the campaign, and the latter will tour the country for Harding and Coolidge from the latter part of this month up to Election Day. This official announcement was made by the Republican National Committee:

"Kentucky will be one of the scenes of Colonel Roosevelt's speaking activities. He is to make a horseback trip through the mountain regions of that State in company with Governor E. P. Morrow of Kentucky. The trip will last for at least a week, and audiences of mountaineers will be addressed at dozens of places. Colonel Roosevelt's father campaigned in this Kentucky section in 1916.

"The Roosevelt speech-making will begin with two preliminary addreses, one in New Jersey and another in St. Lawrence County, N. Y. Then the Colonel will go to Maine, where he will make several speeches prior to the election there on Sept. 13. From Maine Colonel Roosevelt will go to Indiana, and from there into Kentucky for his campaign on horseback with Governor Morrow.

"After the Kentucky speaking trip Colonel Roosevelt will travel through virtually every State west of the Mississippi River, going all the way to the Pacific Coast. There are insistent demands for Colonel Roosevelt as a speaker from every State in the Union."

Colonel Thomas W. Miller, head of the Eastern Division of the Speakership Bureau of the Republican National Committee, left for Chicago yesterday for a conference with Senator Harry S. New, general director of the speakers' campaign, and Representative James W. Good, of the Speakers' Bureau in the West. The plans for the speakers' campaign have already been outlined and it is probable that they will be approved at the Chicago conference. The speaking campaign for the Republicans, it was announced, will start early, as practically every Republican speaker of prominence has already offered his services. The following announcement was made by the Senatorial Committee:

"The primaries in Missouri are over, and now it is the intention of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee to move actively in that State in behalf of the Republican nominee for the Senatorship, Selden P. Spencer, who received a party majority in the primaries on Tuesday.

"Senator Curtis has evidently carried the Republican primaries in Kansas by a large majority. This was expected by the Senatorial Committee, and now that the primaries in Kansas are over they will give Senator Curtis earnest support. Kansas is regarded this year as a Republican certainty."

HOME PEACE BEST, HARDING ASSERTS

American delegations appealing in behalf of kinsmen or old home folks across seas, I caught the aspirations of nationality, and a perfectly natural sympathy among kindred in this republic. But I little realized then how we might rend the concord of American citizenship in our seeking to solve Old World problems.

"There have come to me, not at all unbecomingly, the expressed anxieties of Americans, foreign born, who are asking our country's future attitude on territorial awards in the adjustment of peace. They are Americans all, but they have a proper and natural interest in the fortunes of kinsfolk and native lands. One cannot blame them. If our land is to settle the envies, rivalries, jealousies and hatreds of all civilization, these adopted sons of the republic want the settlement favorable to the land from which they came.

"The misfortune is not alone that it rends the concord of nations—the greater the pity is that it rends the concord of our citizenship at home. It is folly to think of blending Greek and Bulgarian, Italian and Slovak, or making any of them rejoicingly American when the land of adoption sits in judgment on the land from which they come.

"I do not want Americans of foreign birth making their party alignments on what we mean to do for some nation of the Old World. We want them to be republicans because of what we mean to do for the United States of America. Our call is for unison, not rivalry, sympathies; our need is concord, not the antipathies of long inheritance.

"Surely, no one stopped to think where the great world experiment was leading; frankly, no one could know. We are only learning now. It would be a sorry day for this republic if we allowed our activities in seeking for peace in the Old World to blind us to the essentials of peace at home.

Condemns Appeal to Class.

"There is another thought relating to concord so essential to continued advancement. It was said the other day that the Democrats meant especially to appeal to the farmers and the wage-earners and let America forget the failure of the world experiment. If America can be made to forget the attempted barter of nationality, well and good. It would be better if we could forget. But when nationality is surrendered to internationality little else matters, and all appeal is in vain. There is only one other menace so threatening to our tranquillity. That menace is the appeal to class in determining what our Government is to be. I would hold myself unworthy of your confidence if I spoke in appeal to either farmers or wage-earners because of their large numbers. We wish the confidence of all.

"You said, Judge Taggart, this delegation comes from shop, store, factory, office and farm. We could not well get along without any of them. We must exchange as well as produce, and we must teach and preach in order to attain as well as to acquire.

"There isn't any governmental part in fixing pursuit, profession or employment. Perhaps I ought to modify that and say except during war—Government did interfere for the war, and we want to end that interference. We want a free America again. We want America free at home and free in the world. We want to silence the outcry of nation against nation, in the fullness of understanding, and we wish to silence the cry of class against class, and stifle the party appeal to class so that we may insure tranquillity in our freedom. If I could choose but one, I had rather have industrial and social peace at home than command the international peace of all the world.

"In the study of the great world tragedy, some one has pointed out that the World War might have been avoided if united Germany had adopted that feature of our Constitution which gives Congress the right to declare war. Many advocates of pacifism think our safeguards are not enough, that there should be a referendum to the people before war. The other extreme is found among those who seriously propose that a council of foreign powers shall summon the sons of this Republic to war anywhere in the world. I emphatically agree that no authority other than Congress may call our boys to battle. Accepting this truth, why make a covenant which violates the good faith of nations?

Article X. Instance.

"Suppose that, under the military alliance and the super-authority of Article X, a program of armed force is agreed upon, and the Congress of the United States declines to respond. The Executive would be called upon to carry on a war without constitutional authority, or we should prove our compact no more than a scrap of paper. We are on the side of both safety and honor to hold for ourselves the decision of our obligation to the world. We have ever played a becoming part in human progress, we will not fail to play it in that freedom of conscience and action which befits a confident republic. Men prate about violated obligations to the nations of the earth. The solemn truth is that our part in the World War was an obligation to ourselves, performed in sympathy with associated, not allied, powers, and our splendid part in helping to win the war was the armed manifestation of American conscience, not the fulfillment of a written obligation.

"It is impossible to definitely fix our course amid the usual conditions in the wake of war. The world has to steady down. We have been talking about getting back to normal. That doesn't mean the old order, that doesn't mean looking backward. It is the short and easy way of saying, 'again to stability,' 'once more to regularity.' There hasn't been a backward look in America for 300 years, but the man who faces the future with highest assurance is he who has noted the paths which made his progress secure. We Republicans hold that the inherited plans of constitutional, representative popular government, with the inspirations of nationality and a fair chance for every man, have enabled men to write the supreme story of human and national advancement in all the world, and we mean to hold the inheritance secure and go confidently on to greater and grander achievement."

Visitors March and Sing.

With two bands and escorted by the Harding Marching Club of Marion, the Wayne County delegation was reviewed by Senator and Mrs. Harding as it marched past their house this noon to a small grove in the same block, where luncheon boxes were unpacked.

In the afternoon the pilgrims gathered around the front porch and sang "Our U. S. A. and Harding," to the tune of a Wooster college song. The delegation was introduced to Senator Harding by Judge Frank Taggart of Wooster, in a short speech.

After his address Senator Harding introduced Senator Sutherland of West Virginia, who promised that his State would show the way to Ohio to keep in the Republican column.

Senator James Watson of Indiana was introduced by Senator Harding as "having the best Republican tongue of any man I know of."

Senator Watson said:

"It is always necessary to have a Republican Administration after a Democratic Administration in order to clean up the debris. It was necessary in 1860 in order to save our nation. It was necessary after Cleveland in order to save our industries, and it will be necessary after Wilson in order to save our independence.

"We needed Lincoln in 1860, we needed McKinley in 1896, and we need Warren G. Harding in 1920, and then this country, freed from class, and freed from caste, united, will move forward to that accomplishment of our destiny which was designated by Providence, to teach all the nations of the world how best to live—how noblest to act.

"The Republican Party, even more than the Democratic Party, upheld the hands of a Democratic President. Seventy-two per cent. of all the votes we cast in favor of the great war measures, while but 67 per cent. of the Democratic votes were thus recorded.

"The Republican Party is patriotic, because it was born that way, and we shall always be that way."

HARDING SEES VICTORY.

Tells Connecticut Republicans the People Want "Formal Peace."

DANBURY, Conn., Aug. 4.—A greeting to the Republicans of Connecticut from Senator Warren G. Harding, in which he outlined "the spirit of Republicanism" was read at an outing here today held as a testimonial to Representative Schuyler Merritt of the Fourth Connecticut district.

"I wish to convey to those who attend this affair my cordial greetings and best wishes," said Senator Harding. "Permit me also to say that the spirit of Republicanism was never more pronounced than it is now. By every token that comes to me, I read a determination resolved upon victory. I can ascribe this feeling to the issues before us and the conditions that confront the nation. Our people want to return to constitutional government. They want formal peace, that our affairs may be adjusted to a tranquil state from which they may measure the future.

"But we want a peace that is real and not imaginary; a peace based upon fixed and determined basis, that maintains and recognizes our own dearly-bought heritages that came with our independence. That independence we propose maintaining under all circumstances and at all cost, and we shall not be beguiled into a surrender of our sovereign rights by any specious scheme, however it may appeal to our fancy, that does not contain a clear definition of our authority over our destinies and the lives of our youth. Such a policy invites the cordial support of all, regardless of previous party affiliations, and especially appeals to the instinctive patriotism of the young men and women."

The outing at the Danbury Fair Grounds drew many hundreds of party followers. Before the dinner the State Central Committee met to plan the campaign and to select the time and place for the State convention.

Among the speakers, besides Representative Merritt, were Senator Brandegee, Miss Helen Boswell of New York and Former Representative W. M. Chandler of New York.

BELITTLES O'CONNOR'S HELP

Gompers Says He Spoke Only for Himself in Harding Pledge.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 4.—President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, declared today that the report coming from Marion alleging that T. V. O'Connor, chief of the International Longshoremen's Union, had promised aid to Senator Harding evidently was an inaccuracy, unless he was speaking personally.

"O'Connor is well versed in the sentiments of the Federation regarding pledges of political support," he remarked, "and he is not clothed with any official authority to promise assistance in a political sense from the Federation."

President Gompers also doubted that O'Connor had suggested preferential help from the union in which he is a leader. "The fact has long been known that it is not the intention of the Federation to pledge itself in support of any political candidate, except as is done through the local union organizations, and then upon the record of the candidate in labor questions," he said.

FERRIS 28,944 AHEAD OF GORE FOR SENATE

Long Leads by 4,470 in Missouri Over Priest, Senator Reed's Candidate.

ELATION AT WHITE HOUSE.

President's Friends Encouraged by Result of Fight Against League Opponents.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 4.—According to returns compiled by The Daily Oklahoman tonight, Scott Ferris, Congressman from the Sixth District and candidate for the Democratic nomination for Senator, was leading Senator Thomas P. Gore by more than 28,000 votes. The tabulation of 1001 of the 2,708 precincts in the State, gave Ferris 88,626 and Gore 59,682.

Oklahoma County (Oklahoma City) reported officially 9,201 for Ferris and 3,216 for Gore.

With 229 of the 276 precincts in the Fifth District reporting late today, the vote for the Democratic nomination for Representative in Congress was F. B. Swank 9,446, R. E. Stafford 7,392.

Long in Lead by 4,470.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 4.—Incomplete unofficial returns received from yesterday's Statewide primary election indicated victories for the League of Nations covenant, prohibition, and opponents of large Presidential campaign expenditures.

Figures collected by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, including the unofficial total vote in St. Louis and believed to be about half the vote cast, were:

For Senator—Long (Democrat), 34,970; Hay (D.), 21,320, Priest (D.), 30,500; Lindsey (D), 5,080; Scruton (D.), 1,413; Higdon (D.), 1,596; Spencer (R.), 46,500; Davis (R.), 48,890; Minnis (R.), 13,780.

Breckinridge Long, the leader for the Democratic nomination for Senator, made the race on a League and law enforcement platform. On the Republican side the outcome was doubtful as Senator Spencer ran strong in the rural districts and Dwight F. Davis polled a large vote in some of the larger cities.

John M. Atkinson and Arthur M. Hyde, who lead for the Democratic and Republican Gubernatorial nominations, respectively, are both "drys." Hyde was among those who demanded the resignations of National Committeeman Jacob L. Babler and State Chairman W. L. Cole as a result of their connection with Lowden and Harding funds.

Congressman Cleveland A. Newton was unopposed for the Republican nomination in the Tenth District; Otto F. Stifel won in the Eleventh and Congressman L. C. Dyer in the Twelfth. Campbell Cummings apparently won the Democratic nomination in the Tenth. Harry B. Hawes and Samuel Rosenfeld were unopposed in the Eleventh and Twelfth Districts respectively.

Results Please Wilson's Friends.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—No comment for publication came from the White House today concerning the apparent defeat of Senator Thomas P. Gore for renomination in the Oklahoma Democratic Senatorial primaries and the apparent victory of Breckinridge Long, former Third Assistant Secretary of State, in the Missouri Senatorial primaries, but it was evident that the elation of friends of President Wilson over these results was shared by the President. Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President, told him early today that Gore had been defeated and sent word to him this afternoon that Long had telegraphed that he would win the Senatorial nomination by 25,000.

Senator Gore's renomination for another term was contested by Congressman Scott Ferris, a friend and supporter of the Administration. Gore had been a critic of the President and his policies for several years and voted for reservations to the League of Nations covenant that were obnoxious to the President.

Long's principal opponent in the Missouri primaries was Judge Priest, the candidate of Senator Reed, who has been one of the most bitter Democratic opponents of the League of Nations. Mr. Long was an out and out League advocate and generally supported the policies of the President.

Friends of the President said today that in practically every battle in Democratic Senatorial primaries, where the policies of the President were an issue, victory had gone to those who supported him. In this connection the defeat of Vardaman for renomination as Senator from Mississippi, Hardwick for renomination from Georgia, and Cole L. Blease for nomination from South Carolina were mentioned.

Wadsworth Plays Ball and Talks.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., pitched ball and made a brief address at the picnic of Rochester Lodge of Elks here today. His team lost to a team captained by Sheriff Weidenmann of Monroe County. In his address the Senator said it seemed as if America needed the war "to bring us back to a realization of what this Government stands for."

Chisholm and his wife are also living apart.

Mrs. Chisholm has left her home in Newark and gone to work in New York. She had never worked before in her life, but, according to the complaint, she declared in the presence of her husband and his lawyer that she still loved Parker, that he was "the best man in the world," and that she was going to earn her own living.

The answer to the suit filed by Parker is brief and avers that the defendant had no knowledge as to whether or not Mrs. Chisholm was married and flatly denies that he alienated her affection from Chisholm.

UNIONS TO INVADE MARION.

Plan "Acid Test" for Harding by Seeking to Organize Workers.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 4.—The City of Marion, long a citadel of opposition to labor unions, is to be made the subject of attack by a hand of organizers, according to information which has become public here.

The little industrial city is to be treated to an intensive campaign, with the hope that all of the principal industries in the town may be unionized.

The strategy back of the plan is the candidacy of Senator Harding for the Presidency. It is represented that a part of the Harding campaign will be to convince organized labor that he is not hostile to their propaganda. The "acid test" of this declaration, as seen by the labor organizers, will be the unionization of workers in Marion, where in years past labor agitators were advised to leave town on the next train. Friends of Senator Harding have objected in labor meetings that he cannot be held responsible for all that has occurred in the city, but the labor men will persist, nevertheless.

ready now for the fight and I shall carry our cause from the East to the West, from the North to the South, recognizing only the limitations of time. I know I shall have your good wishes. I confidently expect your congratulations when the ideas of November shall have come. You have the place of honor Saturday at the notification exercises—you will have the place of honor March 4, 1921, marching down Pennsylvania Avenue."

Half a dozen amateur "prize fights," the last being a battle royal among five negroes, had been staged and the picnickers were wandering about the grounds or eating lunch from counters erected beneath a group of tents, when the Governor drove into the grounds in a closed car, accompanied by J. Sprigg McMahon. The automobile had proceeded half way down the field before the Governor was recognized and then the crowd surged about the car and forced him to get out and shake hands.

The whole affair was strictly informal and planned along the lines of an old-fashioned political picnic. The crowd was grouped in front of the platform and photographed, with the Governor and Mr. McMahon occupying seats of honor.

A basket of sandwiches was removed from a table so that the stenographer might have a place on which to write.

William J. Pickerell, Democratic candidate for Congress, who presided, appeared on the platform without his coat. Hundreds followed his example.

Mr. McMahon, head of the committee which has charge of the notification exercises next Saturday announced that 20,000 persons would be in line for the parade.

Governor Cox devoted the entire day aside from the time he spent at the picnic—he got there at 3:30 P. M., and left at 5:30—at work on State business. He had another conference with Mrs. Abby Scottt Baker, political field manager of the National Women's party tonight and discussed plans to bring about the ratification of the Federal Suffrage Amendment in Tennessee.

IRISH INDEPENDENCE FAVORED BY K. OF C.

EDUCATION PLAN APPROVED

Organization Has $19,000,000 for Work — Margaret Anglin Speaks on Drama.

Ending the greatest gathering in the history of the organization, the Knights of Columbus last night closed their thirty-eighth annual supreme convention at the Hotel Commodore by adopting a resolution favoring Irish independence.

The resolution was adopted before a letter appealing for such action was received from Eamonn de Valera, dated Aug. 2 and addressed from Washington, headquarters of the Irish movement in America. Knights thought this put an end to speculation as to whether or not de Valera stowed himself away on the Baltic, the liner carrying Archbishop Mannix to Liverpool. The Baltic sailed on July 31.

Headed by United States District Attorney Daniel J. Gallagher of Boston the Committee on the Good of the Order unanimously adopted this resolution:

"As Americans and as Knights of Columbus we believe in the right of freedom to every people everywhere to determine the form of government under which they live. It is trite, perhaps, to say it; but say it we do, that the Knights of Columbus, in common with all true Americans, believe that Ireland has the right and ought to be a free and independent nation. This truth is axiomatic and, therefore, no argument is necessary."

The convention by resolution attacked the Smith-Towner Education bill, which, they declare, aims at the federalization of education. The resolution denounced the bill as a bureaucratic policy directly in conflict with American principles.

Another resolution empowered James A. Flaherty to appoint a committee to investigate conditions of the organized fight against tuberculosis by the Red Cross and other bodies to determine whether it would be practical for the Knights to erect a national sanitarium.

This morning a delegation of 250 Knights, led by Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty, will leave on the French liner Leopoldina to participate in the dedication of the K. of C. statue of Lafayette to be unveiled in Metz by Marshal Foch.

John F. O'Neill, State Deputy of New Jersey and Boulevard Commissioner of Hudson County, was elected to be Supreme Director. The other men chosen to the Board were John A. O'Dwyer of Toledo, Frank Lonergan of Portland, Ore.; Edward Houlihan of Chicago, while those re-elected for a term of three years were William F. Fox or Indianapolis, Joseph J. Meyers of Iowa and James J. McGraw of Ponca City, Okla. David I. Supplee of San Francisco was elected Supreme Warden, succeeding Thomas J. McLaughlin of Newark, the latter detached for welfare work in Panama.

The plan to launch a greater educational program was ratified by every State, and the work was made the Knights' leading activity for the ensuing year. The report disclosing how the organization had spent the $40,000,000 intrusted to it by the American public was received with acclaim. The report showed that $21,000,000 was spent in welfare work in the camps, and that the balance of the fund had been mapped out for general educational and reconstruction work.

The speakers of the afternoon session were Joseph Scott of Los Angeles, the Rev. Father John J. Wynne of New York, Bishop Thomas J. Shahan, rector of the Catholic University, Washington; Father J. McNeil of Tokio, and Miss Margaret Anglin, the actress. Miss Anglin said that, despite twenty-five years of experience on the stage, yesterday was the first time she had addressed a public gathering of men.

"I am not going to ask you to be reformers of what many self-styled reformers call the decadent drama," she said. "I think the drama is about as good as audiences pay for it to be. I am going to urge you to take an interest in creating better audiences, in educating young people to a more lively appreciation of fine drama."

REPORT SOKOLOWSKI WAS CZAR'S BODYGUARD

Slain Labor Leader Said to Have Been Former Head of Russian Secret Police.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 4.—Frank Sokolowski, murdered here by his wife, who poured carbolic acid into his mouth as he slept, was an international figure, according to reports made by special investigators who have looked up his record. It is said that he was formerly the Czar's bodyguard, and later had been connected with mysterious labor missions of an international nature.

His wife, who was arrested in New York last Sunday, and who will be brought here tomorrow, has thrown light on his career in Europe and this country, but withholds some of the secrets the police wish to learn. They will not admit, however, that she is responsible for the statement given out here tonight to the effect that Sokolowski was Orloff or Orloffski, private bodyguard of the Czar and head of the Russian secret police, with headquarters at Petrograd. He is said to have done remarkable detective work for the noted Russian police head, Azeff. It is stated that Sokolowski was entrusted with delicate confidential missions by the Czar, which took him all over Europe and resulted in high officials, not only in Russia but other countries, being either sent to Siberia or some other confinement camp. He spoke eight languages.

After the overthrow of the Czar he went to Canada and is said to have done important work for the Dominion Government. Recently he went into labor work and, although he was closely associated with the Connecticut Federation of Labor, it is not known whether he represented international trade interests or the labor unions. He invariably advocated arbitration, never force, in labor disputes.

Another element of mystery was added to the case today when the Rev. John Henry Bell, pastor of the Church of All Nations in New York City, authorized the engagement of Jacob Goodhart of this city as Mrs. Sokolowski's counsel.

Detective Currier today went to Hartford and obtained extradition papers from Governor Holcomb. They were taken to Albany, and Currier expected to bring Mrs. Sokolowski here today.

Coroner Mix today went to New York City to interview Mrs. Sokolowski again.

PARIS HAS A DAY OF CRIME STORIES

Three Sensational Murders Fill the Papers — Two Quickly Cleared Up by Police.

BODY IN TRUNK ONE CASE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—Murder stories share with the Polish tragedy the front pages of all the Paris papers this morning. One solves the mystery of the body of a man found shot in the Bois, near the Longchamps race course. Another tells of a woman writer who shot her husband and sent the body in a trunk to the baggage room at the Nancy station, while a third is an affair of a woman who shot dead the man she lived with after signing a check for 200,000 francs for him under compulsion.

The mystery of the body in the Bois has occupied the Paris police for a week. It was early established that it had been carried there after a shooting. Now it appears that the body was that of one of a band of roughs who was shot by a business man in a taxicab in self-defense.

A deal in diamonds had been proposed and a rendezvous made between one of the band and the merchant at Maxim's. There the two men whose names are Barre and Euriat, took a cab to a house in a distant part of Paris. On the way a third man jumped on the footboard of the cab and the bandit in the cab turned on the merchant with a revolver. The fight began in the cab, but the revolver bullet found its billet in the neck of the man on the footboard. The merchant, getting the upper hand, shot with his own weapon from his pocket and killed his assailant. He then jumped from the cab, which went on its way, both doors swinging open and the body of the dead man inside.

The next day the merchant informed the police of the whole affair and the presumption is that it was the wounded man and the taxi driver, who have both been arrested, who carried the body into the Bois and hid it near the racecourse.

The body in the trunk, which was sent by train to Nancy, has been found to be that of a merchant called Bassarabot who disappeared about a week ago. His chauffeur informed the police and stated that the missing man had frequently said to him that he feared his wife would some day make him pay for having dissipated her money.

Mme. Bassarabel, who writes under the name of "Eva Myrtell," was interrogated, and the police discovered that she and a daughter had removed from the house in a taxicab a big trunk, which the porter at the East Station declared was only half filled. It had been sent to the baggage room at Nancy, a hundred miles from Paris, and when the police asked what it contained madame declared that it was full of private papers of her husband, who had asked that it should be sent there. When the trunk was opened it was found to contain the body of a dead man tied up in linen and showing a bullet mark in the head. Mme. Bassarabot has now confessed that she shot her husband in a fit of jealousy.

Another shooting affair of which the mystery has not yet been cleared up is that of Signor Sicore, lawyer to the Italian Embassy, who was found shot dead in Rue Mozart three days ago. Several people who heard a shot fired in the early morning declared there was no one else in the street at the time. Sicore was carrying a revolver and the police are now making an investigation to find if the bullet in his body corresponds with others in the revolver.

PRESIDENT FORBIDS LANDING OF CABLE

quarters at Key West, is here aboard the scout patrol Zumbrota, his flagboat, and is directing the patrolling activities of the destroyers.

Local officials of the Western Union Company, which has prepared extensive offices here in anticipation of operating the cable soon, denies any knowledge of the decision of the Government to hold up landing of the cable.

The Colonia is said here to be carrying also equipment for a submarine telephone cable to be laid between Key West and Havana. This project, it is stated here, also has not received the approval of the United States Government.

Vice Consul Hubbard boarded the destroyer Cole tonight to meet the Colonial. He reported that he had sent a despatch boat to intercept her, instructing her master to take no action in compliance with his private order.

It is probable that the Colonial will lay off Miami until the matter is settled in Washington. She cannot enter this harbor, as she draws thirty feet of water, and the harbor is only twenty feet deep.

At Western Union offices here yesterday it was said that the company had already started construction work on a new cable line from Barbados, and that the State Department had under consideration the company's application for permission to land it on Florida soil.

Officials of the company declined to discuss the dispatch from Washington, stating that President Wilson was understood to have ordered the army and navy not to permit the Western Union to land the new cable on American soil until the State Department had granted permission to do so

ADVANCE AGENTS OF TROUBLE.

It cannot be denied that the Republicans have kind hearts. They are filled with pity for the misfortunes of their political opponents. One can almost hear Republican tears drip over the unhappy state of the Democratic Party, and particularly over the sea of troubles against which Governor Cox is vainly seeking to take arms. The poor man is in a bitter and fatal quarrel with the President; he is also absolutely at one with Mr. Wilson in a friendship that will prove deadly to the Democratic candidate. The fact that the two charges are contradictory and mutually destructive does not check the flow of Republican commiseration—or gloating.

This same inconsistency of grief and alarm is seen in the current Republican attitude toward the League of Nations. That misbegotten organization is dead. None so poor as even to do reverence to the corpse. But at the same time the League is alive and doing the most frightful things. Its latest crime is to organize a general military staff to take command of the American Army, including, we suppose, General Wood. Republican distress over this is heartrending, while it lasts.

It will not last long. Facts have a way of causing horrible imaginings to vanish. The myth of a split between Cox and Wilson, like the story of an awful row between Governor Cox and Chairman White, will quickly disappear. But meanwhile Republican newspapers and correspondents and gossip-mongers will have a happy time being gloomy. They do well to enjoy in advance the troubles of others, as their own will be thick upon them quite soon enough.

THE NEW YORK DEMOCRATS.

There was no lack of unity or confidence among the Democrats at Saratoga. They "suggested" candidates, where the Republicans "designated" them, but there is little doubt that the primaries will follow the recommendations of the unofficial convention. The renomination of Governor Smith has long been taken for granted. He has earned it by his conduct in office. There he has displayed an industry, a knowledge of the State's business, a desire to act in all great matters for the interest of the whole people, and a frankness, personal vigor and unquestioned integrity which have extorted praise from even his partisan opponents. The rise to place and power of Alfred Smith remains one of the heartening examples of the career still open to talent, though of lowly antecedents, in our democracy. Governor Smith was not able to carry into effect many useful measures which he advocated, on account of the refusal of a Republican Legislature to co-operate with him. He may well urge that in a second term he would have a better opportunity to complete his program.

To the Republicans it must seem that the Democrats took a mean advantage over them by "suggesting" the name of a woman for a State office. Miss Harriet May Mills is a conspicuous woman suffragist and a clever politician and speaker. There seems to be some difference of opinion among women voters as to the advisability of having a woman on the ticket. Some think that it would be wiser to wait until they have had more political experience. But since each party is eager to show that it loves the women voters, the Democrats have shown the greater quickness and surprise strategy. Nobody can tell, of course, how the adventure will turn out. It is entirely possible that Miss Mills will run ahead of the rest of the ticket. There may be no inconsiderable number of men who will vote for her from "chivalrous" reasons, from admiration of her pluck, from a natural curiosity to see how a woman will administer an office, and from a natural kindly feeling toward women in politics. Since they are to be in it, why not give them a chance at its honors? On the other hand, nobody, at least no person of the inferior sex, can tell how the women voters, the original suffragists, anti-suffragists, indifferents, will be affected by this nomination. The Tuesday after the first Monday in November will tell us what the voters, men and women, think. Meanwhile the Democrats are to be congratulated on their initiative and their romantic-practical enterprise.

The Secretary of State is best known to the wheeled world as the registrar and emitter of licenses for the owners and operators of motor vehicles. From him also come the licenses of the much more diminutive world of peddlers. In his department is compiled that red-bound annual ornament of literature, the "Manual for the Use of "the Legislature of the State of New "York." He keeps the State archives, superintends the publication and distribution of the statutes, "issues "patents for lands, notices for elec"tions, and records commissions and "pardons issued by the Governor." Companies other than banking and insurance companies, organized under general laws, get from him their certificates of incorporation. He "swears in" members of the Legislature and other State officers. By virtue of his—soon we may have to say "her"—office he is a Commissioner of the Land Office and of the Canal Fund, a member of the Canal Board, the State Board of Canvassers, the State Board of Equalization of Assessments, the State Printing Board, a Trustee of Union College. He is one of the officers who designate the State paper. The Great Seal of the State, with its eagle and "Excelsior," its human-faced spoked sun, and so on, is in his keeping.

In the list of Secretaries of State are some eminent names, John A. Dix, John C. Spencer, Henry S. Randall, the biographer of Jefferson; Joel T. Headley, Francis C. Barlow, John Bigelow, among the dead; the dean of the survivors is Mr. Depew, who served from 1863 to 1865. If Miss Mills is elected, no doubt she will be equal to the respectable traditions of a respectable office.

NON-PARTISAN JUDGES.

It is a pleasure to call attention to the action of the Bar Associations in the First Judicial District looking to the nomination of approved Judges in the primaries of both parties. A non-partisan committee is circulating the necessary petitions, which must be filed prior to Aug. 17, and the signatures should be easily secured. The principle of re-electing acceptable Judges in this city, without regard to party, has now become so well established that any marked departure from it by party managers will instantly provoke suspicion and hostility.

In Westchester County the Democratic County Committee has set an example which ought to be followed by the Republicans and Democrats in every county. It advocates the re-election of three Justices of the Supreme Court, who all happen to be Republicans. The Bar Associations of the five counties that compose the Ninth Judicial District had previously recommended the renomination of the three Justices, as had the Democratic County Committees of Putnam and Dutchess Counties. Doubtless the Democratic County Committees of the two other counties of the district will agree with their brethren of Dutchess, Putnam and Westchester. The Yonkers delegates took the old partisan view, but were beaten, as it is to be hoped that all who share that narrow and antiquated notion will be beaten.

There is or should be no politics about the courts. Law and justice are not partisan. Every Judge who has shown by his service on the bench his competence and integrity should be renominated and re-elected. Fortunately, this seems to be getting to be the rule.

A WARNING TO REPUBLICAN DEMOCRATS.

In 1914 Senator Gore of Oklahoma was renominated for a third term in a Statewide primary. He carried every county in the State and got a majority of 58,000. He came into the Democratic Party by way of Populism. He was supposed to be impregnably strong among the farmers. But his opposition to the war and to the League of Nations has just been passed upon by the Oklahoma Democrats. He is running far behind his opponent, Representative Ferris, and appears to be decidedly beaten. Only last Fall, when a Republican was elected in the Fifth Congress District of Oklahoma, Mr. Gore predicted further defeats for the Democratic Party. He raised his voice for "more Democratic liberality and less autocratic intolerance." "The "worst possible generalship insisted "that the League of Nations without "reservations was the issue." He was deeply moved and grieved because the unmodified Treaty "means, if it "means anything at all, that our boys "will be drafted, that our boys in "khaki will be sent across the sea to "die upon the burning deserts of "Arabia and to die upon the frozen "tundras of Northern Siberia, in wars "which do not concern either our "rights, our interests or our honor."

Mr. Gore knows now what the Democrats of Oklahoma think about his opposition to the Administration and the League of Nations. The Oklahoma returns have a special interest for Senator Shields of Tennessee. As to the Treaty and the League of Nations he is a Lodge Republican who has even out-Lodged Lodge. In June the Tennessee Democratic Convention, by a vote of 1,270 to 314, passed a resolution expressing its disagreement with his action and record "in every step "he has taken with reference to the "Treaty of Peace and League of "Nations," and expressed its "hu"miliation at the association he has "formed with Senator Lodge and as"sociates with reference to the "League of Nations." The convention instructed him to reverse his action, and "in the future to faithfully "sustain the adoption of the League "of Nations and the Treaty of Peace "as written and presented without "amendments or reservations."

Mr. Shields refused to follow the instructions of his party in his State. He refused to resign at the request of the Memphis Cotton Exchange and divers conspicuous Democrats of the State. He is safe till March 3, 1925. Then, it is safe to say, his political career will end. On the cardinal issue of the time he set up his own judgment or whim or prejudice against the deep conviction and will of the people who sent him to the Senate. His case is one with that of Senator Reed and Senator Gore. They thought they were fighting Mr. Wilson. Instead, they were fighting the Democratic Party, the general Democratic conviction and will.

RETURN OF THE FUR SEAL.

The value of conservation has never been more swiftly and decisively illustrated than in the case of our herd of fur seals whose home and breeding place is the Pribilof Islands in Bering Sea. Eight years ago the herd was threatened with extinction, but it now yields an annual revenue which Mr. William T. Hornaday, writing in the current Science, calculates at $4,000,000.

In 1873, six years after the Alaska purchase, an agent of the Treasury Department estimated the herd at 3,193,420. The privilege of killing was limited to 100,000 young males annually. The herd would have been well protected except for its luxurious habit of indulging every Winter in a tour of southern waters. Penetrating the Aleutian Islands, it swung east by south toward the coast of California, returning by a northerly passage along British Columbia and Alaska to its Summer breeding home. For ages this Winter outing had been as enjoyable and quite as safe as Palm Beach is for New Yorkers. But in 1872 the company that had the privilege of killing on the Pribilof Islands devoted $100,000 to a campaign for making "sealskin sacques" fashionable in London, and in the following decades the Pacific waters witnessed a carnival of "pelagic" or open-sea slaughter. Many seals were wounded and escaped to die. To discriminate between male and female was impossible; and when the female was killed her pups died of starvation. The cruel and wasteful traffic was conducted on the high seas; Canadian, American and Japanese seal hunters rejoiced in it. Even in the Summer months some of them would lurk about the Pribilof Islands without the three-mile limit and kill the mothers that went to sea in search of food. By 1912 the herd of more than 3,000,000 had been reduced to 215,738.

The art of curing and dyeing the sealskin was a mystery and monopoly of London. Moreover, England could not bring pressure to bear upon Canada without risking resentment from a sensitive and high-spirited Dominion. When, in 1893, the case was passed upon by the Paris Tribunal, the result was futile and worse than futile. Japan, Russia and China were not parties to the Tribunal and so their seal hunters continued to enjoy the freedom of waters that were forbidden to Americans, Canadians and Britons. In the six years from 1890 to 1895, inclusive, we spent over a million and a half patrolling the Pacific, and then had to pay $473,000 as "damages" which the Paris Tribunal awarded to men who took our seals and were caught in the act. In 1910 the Camp Fire Club started a movement as a result of which, in 1912, England, Russia and Japan agreed to stop pelagic sealing in consideration of a share in our gains through legitimate killing on the Pribilof Islands. Japan receives 15 per cent. and England 10 per cent. of all net profits, and for each close season which we see fit to establish each country receives $10,000.

In 1912 there were only 215,738 seals of all ages and at the end of the five-year close season the number had increased to 468,692. In 1919, in spite of renewed killing on a small scale, the herd had increased to 530,237. When the herd grows to its former proportions we shall be able to take 100,000 skins yearly, the value of which will probably be some fourteen millions—75 per cent. of which will belong to the United States. The original cost of the entire Territory of Alaska was only $7,200,000.

AN ABUSED MONTH.

A poet sings in The Atlantic the praises of August in Vermont. Will no venturesome bard strike his lyre in behalf of that often maligned month in New York? Probably not. Even for poetic license the risks would be too great. No sooner had a verse been indited to show how we really ought to speak of August "coolth" instead of the traditional canicular heat and prostrating humidity, than a "slowly rising temperature" would probably bring on the full terrors of the dog days. Yet August of this year and to this date certainly deserves a prize of merit. Deserted husbands left in the city are observed to smile sardonically as they read letters from their families in the mountains, pitying them for having to swelter in New York. And the swarming visitors from other cities and States ask wonderingly where the victims of sunstroke are that they had been given to understand were always lying about the streets of New York in August. It is with a kind of precarious and fearful joy that note is taken of the excellent record that the month has made thus far. It may be spoiled any mid-afternoon. But the days will be thankfully seized while they continue so charming.

TWO SAMPLES.

The Republican Party boasts that it is much sounder and stronger than the Democrats in all matters of national finance. But take two utterances of its candidates. Senator Harding declared in his speech of acceptance: "I believe this Government should "make its Liberty and Victory bonds "worth all that its patriotic citizens "paid in purchasing them." If this was meant as mere campaign claptrap, it may pass as such. But, if it was seriously intended, ask any Republican banker, any Republican economist, what he thinks of it. He will tell you that it is dangerous nonsense. If Mr. Harding should be elected President and should direct his Secretary of the Treasury to keep all Liberty and Victory bonds at par, it would involve such a tremendous outlay and such a dislocation of all credit, that the financial interests of the country would rise in alarmed protest. Every sane man knows this to be true. Why, then, should the Republican candidate for the Presidency ladle out financial ideas which are both crude and perilous?

Governor Coolidge's contribution to Republican financial wisdom takes the form of a suggestion about tariff taxes. He is against the excess profits tax—or, at least, demands its thorough revision—and advocates "recourse to customs taxes on imports." The Governor does not seem to have had the figures before him. Customs revenue can never be reckoned higher than millions. Taxes from incomes and excess profits touch billions, and the Government must have the billions. As a way of making the accounts balance, Governor Coolidge's proposal is manifestly futile. There is another difficulty of which he seems dimly aware. He speaks of the need of levying tariff taxes "according to the needs of a creditor nation." This is a faint recognition of the fact that Europe owes us billions, that there is no possible way of her paying except in goods, and that to put a customs duty on those goods would simply be a foolish way of making the collection of our debts harder and more expensive. The true high-tariff doctrine on this subject was stated by a neighbor of Governor Coolidge, Mr. Thomas O. Marvin, Secretary of the Home Market Club of Boston. He declares "the American view" to be that "it is better to cancel the debt entirely"—that is, write off $10,000,000,000—rather than "accept in payment for it com"modities in such quantities as to "close American mills and fac"tories." The Republicans may yet come to that. But we rather guess that Governor Coolidge's Yankee constituents will first want to ask a few troublesome questions.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

One Murder Every Four Days.

Before exclaiming with too much horror over the fact that in the seven months ending with July 31 there have been fifty-two murders in Greater New York, it is well to remember both the number of millions of people who live in this city and the peculiarly heterogeneous character of its population. After all, the village with a single homicide would have a worse record for the same period and from this point of view than is New York's, and the village murderer probably would be less easily explicable by either heredity or environment than his urban brother.

With all allowances made, however, and even for the metropolis, fifty-two murders in seven months is too many, and what is even more disquieting is the fact that in the seven months mentioned not one of the men and women who killed has been sentenced to pay the penalty allotted by our law for murder in the first degree. Not all those who have been arrested and charged with a capital offense have yet been tried, and in sixteen of the fifty-two cases the police have failed to find enough evidence against anybody to risk an arrest. In few of the cases brought to trial has there been any real question as to whether or not the accused was concerned as principal or accessory in the actual killing, but always, as yet, either a minor plea has been accepted or the jurors have found reason or excuse for a verdict that mitigated the supreme penalty.

Few Ever Reach the Chair.

New Yorkers who are approaching the dignity of oldest inhabitants will remember, perhaps, one Foster, back in the '70s, who attained notoriety as "the car-hook murderer," partly because of the implement he used, and still more because when arrested and predictions of a sad fate were made to him he said, "Oh, hanging is played out in New York!" Subsequent events proved the fallacy of Foster's belief, as regards himself, but it did seem at that time that the penalty for murder here had ceased to be exacted on the gallows.

So, now, the road to the electric chair is so long that few are compelled to travel the whole distance. Of course, what are called "electrocutions" do take place occasionally in Sing Sing Prison, but almost always the law selects these objects of its sternest reprehension from the class of criminals who, for one reason or another, excite no compassion or sentimentality in any quarter.

In other words, between the abolition of capital punishment in this State and the consequences of retaining it on our statute book the practical difference is next to nothing.

Two views of that situation are possible—it can be commended as keeping in reserve a penalty still deemed necessary in exceptional cases, and in those only, or it can be condemned as tending to bring all laws into general disrespect. To the first contention it can be answered that what constitutes an exceptional case is a matter for the decision of legislators, not of jurymen, and to the second a reply is that the general disrespect for law which "dead letters" are supposed to cause exists in theory rather than in fact—else would all respect for law have ceased long ago. Probably there never was a criminal code more than a year old—certainly none more than ten years old—that did not contain laws which nobody thought of enforcing and nobody had taken the trouble to repeal.

Their Risks Were Not Recklessness.

With the rapidly growing appreciation of aerial possibilities, both achieved and promised, it is only natural that the death of two particularly skillful and courageous aviators, while performing "stunts" for the benefit and profit of a moving-picture company, causes a regret with which is mingled something of resentment that lives so valuable should be lost in serving such an end.

For such a feeling, indeed, there is some excuse, but it should not be forgotten that among the competent judges in matters relating to aerial navigation the opinions held and expressed in regard to the so-called "stunts" are entirely different from what they were in the early days of aviation. Then the man who did anything except the simplest sort of flying was scolded for adding unnecessary dangers to what at best was more than sufficiently perilous. The Frenchman, Pegoud, who astounded the world by making the first "loops" in the air—now regarded as about the easiest and safest of lofty acrobatics—vehemently denied the charge of recklessness. He declared that the ability to do such things was highly desirable for every aviator, and that the more of it the aviator had the less likely was he to be killed.

That is now an accepted truth in all aviation circles, and while it is undeniable that Locklear and Elliott carried the principle far, it would be rash as well as unkind to say that they were madmen. That they certainly were not, and it is exactly such men as they on whom depends the improvement in the noble art of flight.

'LAFAYETTE, WE HAVE QUIT.'

Would Mr. Harding Thus Complete General Pershing's Saying?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The trend of current events seems to indicate that, between them, the Bolsheviki and the Republican Party are trying to defeat the Allies and the League of Nations and wind up the war with a German triumph. Perhaps the Republican leaders have forgotten on which side we fought during the war.

Some of the Republican papers spout a lot about Americanism as though they had a monopoly of it; but I venture the opinion that Americanism does not consist of stabbing the Allies in the back, which seems to be the approved Republican doctrine.

General Pershing was reported to have said, "Lafayette, we are here." If Harding wins, it would be a fitting climax for him to send some one over to France to say, "Lafayette, we were here, but we decided to quit."

H. P. CHADBOURNE.

Boston, July 3, 1920.

Aug. 4 Six Years Ago.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Aug. 4, 1914, marked an epoch in history. England's entrance into the war meant the preservation of a menaced civilization. The tale of that first 100,000—the youth and flower of England—that poured their life's blood out on the fields of Flanders will ever stir the pulse.

Many heroic deeds of this great race—too modest to recount them—could well be retold.

The war is over and the British people waste not their time in brooding over their tragedies or in hating their late enemies, but rather with a spirit of compassion are feeding German and Austrian babies. Surely these are the attributes and characteristics which any nation might well be proud to emulate!.

TRANSMIGRATION.

Do we return according to our rating
Over life's highway in another guise—
Go limping, overburdened, broken-hearted,
Gayly to pass again with love-lit eyes,
Or faring onward, coldly self-important,
Giving no aid and deaf to each appeal,
Come back to find a world of feet about us,
And cringe obedient at a master's heel?

• • • • • • • •

What was I once—a vagrant without shelter?
Surely I knew life under an open sky!
Gray memories come and go, dim and uncertain,
Of prowling nights with others such as I;
Of streets in the pale dawn, blank-eyed or shuttered,
Down which I plodded on my aimless way;
Of bare bleak countrysides with scanty hedges,

• • • • • • • •

Poor little mortals, laughing, fighting, weeping,
Over life's highway to the Styx we go;
Deep shadows all behind us, and before us
Perchance another pilgrimage of joy or woe.

JAPANESE ON COAST DEFENDED BY SIEGEL

Congressman Blames Politicians and the Jealousy of Farmers for Agitation.

SERIOUS TROUBLE IMMINENT

Proposes Treaty as Remedy; Also Establishment of Immigration Border Patrols.

Congressman Isaac Siegel of the Committee on Immigration of the House of Representatives, who has just returned from the Pacific Coast, where the committee has been holding hearings for a month on the Japanese question, said yesterday that the anti-Japanese agitation had been created largely by politicians, but that it had reached a point where serious international trouble was imminent, unless the immigration laws were more strictly enforced against Japanese by establishing border patrols along the Canadian and Southern borders and the question dealt with by treaty between the two nations.

"The agitation in California has been furthered largely by Senator Phelan and other men who are seeking public offices," said Mr. Siegel. "There are 80,000 or 83,000 Japanese in California out of a population of 3,000,000.

"There is no dispute there that they are efficient workers and that crime is negligible among them. The truth of the matter is that the trouble started when the Japanese would not work any longer as coolies, but started out for themselves. In addition, there is the jealousy of agriculturists against George Shima, the Japanese 'Potato King,' who is producing 1,600,000 bags of potatoes of 200 pounds each every year, and other farmers are unable to compete.

"At Livingston, Cal., one of the scenes of an anti-Japanese outbreak, we found that Mr. Adams, the editor of The Livingston Journal, was able to settle the difficulty as follows: He got the Americans to agree to sell merchandise to Japanese and the Japanese to see that no more of their countrymen entered the community.

"One difficulty is that there has been no effort to Americanize the Japanese. The only schools for Japanese are mission schools. The children who do go to school and universities make splendid progress. One of the witnesses before us was a Japanese boy who was a Sergeant Major in service on the other side.

"One consideration is whether English-speaking Japanese of proved good character should not be admitted to citizenship. They declare that the reason they must stick together so much and appeal to their Consuls when trouble arises is that they can never become citizens.

"There is a terribly bitter, growing feeling against the Japanese caused by the agitation. In one or two places they told us that if they don't get rid of the Japanese in one way or another there are trees enough left and their branches will be used to solve the Japanese question. In the shops at Turlocks were signs saying 'No Japanese trade wanted.' As there is a law that barbers cannot refuse to shave customers, they have out signs 'Shave. Japanese, $10. Whites, 25 cents.'

"In the State of Washington, there is very little agitation, and the question is handled by the newspapers in a dignified manner. In that State, and in Oregon, Idaho and Colorado, there are 20,000 Japanese. In those States there is a feeling that, though the Japanese are a well-behaved people, nevertheless they should not be allowed to increase.

"Representatives of the American Legion admitted before our committee that the resolution of the legion against the Japanese had been adopted with only ten minutes discussion."

Mr. Siegel said a treaty should be enacted barring Japanese laborers, but permitting the entrance of students, merchants, professional men and teachers of religion. The opposition to conferring citizenship on the Japanese made it essential, he said, to check the growth of Japanese communities, which would otherwise become settlements of people with a dual allegiance.

"There is an agitation in the Western States going on at the same time," he said, "in favor of letting in a couple of hundred thousand Chinese. I doubt whether their country would permit this. We received reliable information that the Chinese Government, if such a law were passed, would ask a bond of $2,000 to guarantee the protection of each laborer admitted and also an agreement with this Government that the Chinese should be paid the same wages as white men.

"One of the causes, which we found, of the comparatively small amount of business done between the United States and China was the mistreatment of the Chinese merchants who come here. Instead of being admitted, we found that they were being deliberately harassed, under the pretext of observing the letter of the immigration law. Some Chinese, who should have been passed into the country immediately, have been held for six months at Angel Island, the Ellis Island of San Francisco."

FIRM ON KOREAN POLICY.

Japan Will Continue Efforts to Assimilate People.

SEOUL, Korea, July 23.—Japan has no intention of changing its policy to Japanize the Korean people and believes that assimilation will promote the welfare of the Koreans, it is declared in the semi-official press here today in relation to trials of Korean independence leaders.

Korean students from Japan who have been lecturing in Korean cities avowedly to contribute to the education of their fellow-countrymen, have been suppressed by Japanese authorities here on charges that the lecturers violated an agreement that they would not refer to Korean independence.

COLON-WASHINGTON FLIGHT.

Army Lieutenant to Fly 2,399-Mile Journey Alone.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug 4.—The War Department has authorized an airplane flight from the Panama Canal Zone to Washington, the flight to be made in a De Haviland 4-B plane. First Lieutenant Charles B. Austin will pilot the machine and will be alone. The distance to be covered is 2,399 miles and Lieutenant Austin hopes to start on his flight early next month.

Lieutenant Austin has drawn plans for remodeling the plane so that it will have a capacity of 200 gallons of gasoline, sufficient to reach Jamaica, the first leg of the journey. On this stretch of 650 miles he will have to fly directly over the Caribbean Sea, with no landing place from the time he takes off until he reaches Jamaica.

Thence he will fly over a 100-mile stretch of ocean to Cuba, landing at Havana, from which point he will fly to Florida and thence up the coast to Washington. Should September be unfavorable the flight will not be made until the next rainy season.

PILGRIMS' DAY DEC. 21.

President Asks Nation-Wide Observance of 300th Anniversary.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—President Wilson in a proclamation today "suggested and requested" that Dec. 21 be celebrated throughout the United States as the tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth in 1620, and appointed Samuel W. McCall and Richard Hooker of Massachusetts, and George Foster Peabody of New York, as members of the Pilgrim Tercentenary Commission.

In the proclamation, the President recommended that the day be fittingly observed "to the end that salutary and patriotic lessons may be drawn from the fortitude, perseverance and the ideals of the Pilgrims."

The President's proclamation follows:

"My fellow countrymen: Dec. 21 next will mark the tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth in 1620. The day will be becomingly celebrated at Plymouth under the auspices of the Plymouth Pilgrim Tercentenary Commission and at other localities in Massachusetts. While this is proper and praiseworthy, it seems to me that the influences which the ideals and principles of the Pilgrims with respect to civil liberty and human rights have had upon the formation and growth of our institutions and upon our development and progress as a nation merit more than a local expression of our obligation, and make fitting a nation wide observance of the day.

"I, therefore, suggest and request that the 21st of December next be observed throughout the Union with special patriotic services, in order that the great events in American history that have resulted from the landing of these hardy and courageous navigators and colonists may be accentuated to the present generation of American citizens. Especially do I recommend that the day be fittingly observed in the universities, colleges and schools of our country, to the end that salutary and patriotic lessons may be drawn from the fortitude and perseverance and the ideals of this little band of church men and women who established on this continent the first self-determined government based on the great principle of just law and its equal application to all, and thus planted the seeds from which has sprung the mighty nation.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed, done in the District of Columbia, the fourth day of August in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty, and of the independence of the United States of America the 145th.

"WOODROW WILSON."

CENSUS ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Asbury Park, N. J., Has 12,400—Oregon's Population Tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The Census Bureau announced today the following populations:

Streater, Ill., 14,779; an increase of 526, or 3.7 per cent.

Asbury Park, N. J., 12,400; an increase of 2,250, or 22.2 per cent.

Bentonville, Ark., 2,313; an increase of 357, or 18.3 per cent.

Santa Ana, Cal., 15,485; an increase of 7,056, or 83.7 per cent.

North Tonawanda, N. Y., 15,482; an increase of 3,527, or 29.5 per cent.

Population of nearly one-third of the cities and other incorporated places of the United States has been announced by the Census Bureau. Of the 14,186 cities and incorporated places in 1910 the population of 4,075 had been made public by the bureau up to today.

Population of approximately one-third of the 3,068 counties and sub-divisions of the country also has been announced.

Orders have been issued to speed up this week in order to complete the country's fourteenth census within a period of seven months and to permit announcement of the country's total population in October.

WEINBERGER STORY DENIED.

Federal Officials Say There Is No Compact for Pardon of Anarchists.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4. — Officials at the Department of Justice said today that Harry Weinberger, a New York attorney, had a mistaken impression if he believed that any compact had been made whereby Mollie Steimer, Jacob Abrahams, Samuel Lipman and Hyman Lachowsky would be pardoned if they would leave this country.

The officials said that the cases were being considered, just as all other cases are under review; but that in these particular cases, inasmuch as the woman and the three men were confessed anarchists, statutes were being examined to see if they could be deported in case a commutation of sentence were ever given to them. The idea of the Department seems to be to get the four out of the country if they are ever let out of jail.

WOULD OMIT TOBACCO CROP

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 4.—Tobacco growers from Kentucky, Ohio, and Indiana met here this afternoon and while the sentiment expressed was about nine to one in favor of cutting out the 1921 crop of white burley tobacco the matter was left to be decided at a meeting called for Lexington on Aug. 18. The plan, backed by representatives of about 106,000 tobacco growers who produce around 300,000,000 pounds yearly, would hit world markets hard and would, the promoters of the move say, force the big tobacco companies to pay the price the growers demand. Much of the white burley produced in the three States is used for cigarettes and higher grades of cigars.

J. C. Cantrill, Representative from the Seventh Kentucky District, and J. W. Newman, former Kentucky Commissioner of Agriculture, were among the speakers. They urged a pool of next year's crop, which would force much higher prices.

One grower fought the move to pool the crop, saying that such an attempt would lead to bloodshed and nightriding such as followed the pooling of the crops ten years ago by the Burley Tobacco Society, when several men were killed, several towns raided, men and women whipped by masked men and numerous houses burned.

The farmers say a "combine" has kept prices down. Tobacco sold on Lexington markets last Winter at 30 cents for the poorer grades to more than $1 a pound for the best, making thousands of farmers wealthy.

TOLEDO TO VOTE ON CARS.

Court Suspends Injunction Forbidding Decision on City Ownership.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 4.—Toledo will vote on municipal ownership of street cars at the primary election on Aug. 10, it was announced today by the Lucas County Board of Elections. The decision followed word from Grand Rapids, Mich., that the United States Court of Appeals had suspended an injunction granted by Judge John M. Killits of the United States District Court here on July 24, which forbade the proposed election, on the ground that it was illegal under the city charter.

The election will decide the question whether or not the city of Toledo shall bond itself for $7,000,000 to acquire and operate a transportation system.

VOTES FOR NATIONAL MINES.

Miners' Congress in Geneva Is Told British Favor General Strike.

GENEVA, Aug. 3.—Resolutions declaring for the nationalization or socialization of mines were unanimously adopted by the Miners' Congress, in session here, today. British delegates said miners of their country were ready to call a general strike to enforce nationalization.

ENGINEERS ORGANIZE FOR POST-WAR TASKS

WILL AID PUBLIC WELFARE

A national organization of engineers, with a prospective membership of 225,000 civil, mechanical, electrical and mining engineers, is being formed, perpetuating the wartime engineering council and "to make America the greatest engineering nation in the world." Notices will be sent out tomorrow to the 150 leading engineering societies in the United States, who will be asked to appoint delegates to an organization meeting in the Fall.

The new organization will be known as the Federated American Engineering Societies. It will have an executive body to be known as the American Engineering Council, representation in which will be granted to the component organizations. Details of the first council meeting have not been determined upon, but it is believed that the council will be ready to succeed the existing engineering council, organized for war work in June, 1917, when the original council goes out of existence.

To Aid Public Welfare.

Calvert Townley, President of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, said yesterday that the new organization would do away with the present tendency toward individualism in the engineering profession and would make for team work, especially in problems closely related to the public welfare. It is hoped that the federation will have from $100,000 to $150,000 a year available for public purposes. There will be a small salaried staff, and in addition a staff of experts, who will volunteer their services.

A joint conference committee of the four big engineering societies, designated at a meeting in Washington, June 3 and 4, of national, State and local engineering and allied technical organizations, is acting as a committee on organization. Membership fees of $1 a year for members of local societies and $1.50 for members of national societies will be charged.

The national council will co-ordinate the work of State councils and of local affiliations whenever these activities are of national importance. It will have an annual meeting to which Government officials will be invited. An executive sub-committee of thirty members will meet monthly.

The old council was composed of members of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. A review of its work just published mentions these activities:

Engineer War Council's Work.

"It furnished to Governmental departments 4,000 names of engineers for technical duties; aided the Navy Consulting Board and the Army General Staff in examining 135,000 suggestions and inventions for war devices, and co-operated with the Fuel Administrator and the Bureau of Mines in conserving coal.

"It established an office in Washington under the general direction of the National Service Committee through which engineers have been put in contact with the Government as never before. Individuals, companies and societies have been furnished information about the activities of Congress and the departments of the Government and useful service rendered to the Government.

"It has well advanced a comprehensive, carefully considered scheme for the classification of engineers, with suggestive schedules of compensation. Preliminary reports have attracted serious attention throughout the United States and Canada and are in constant demand."

Pending matters of the Engineering Council and others as they arise will be taken care of by the council of the new society. It will use its power for the service of the community, State and Nation in public affairs wherever engineering experience is involved.

NO SPECIAL SESSION.

Denial of Governor Smith's Reported Action on Housing Problem.

The report brought here by Edward P. Doyle that Governor Smith had decided to call a special session of the Legislature to take up the housing crisis was denied yesterday by the Governor at the Democratic Convention in Saratoga in a statement that there was "absolutely nothing" in it.

According to Mr. Doyle, who appeared before the Sub-Committee on Platform, representing the Real Estate Board, Judge John M. Kellogg, the Governor's legal adviser, informed the sub-committee that the Governor desired to call a special session to take up the recommendations of the State Reconstruction Committee. Judge Kellogg, said Mr. Doyle, also said it was the intention of the Governor to ask the legislators to take preliminary steps to permit the State and municipalities to build homes.

"Judge Kellogg said the Governor would call a special session of the Legislature in September to pass the amendment the first time, that it could be passed again in January and then finally in a year from January, making it possible for action on the crisis in a little over a year," said Mr. Doyle.

Arthur J. W. Lilly, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, said no amount of legislation along the lines of the rent laws would build houses. He would exempt income from mortgages from taxation so that money formerly in the building field would flow back into it. He thought a constitutional amendment would take too long to be of much immediate use.

Magistrate McGheehan, in the West Side Court yesterday, listened to the complaint of Mrs. Ida M. Heaton, a school teacher, living at 250 West Eighty-fifth Street, who charged that conditions in the house have been intolerable since one of the landlords was held for trial last week on a charge of unlawfully entering one of the tenant's homes. She said the telephone wires have been cut, milk and grocery deliveries shut off and visitors forbidden to enter the building. The Magistrate issued a summons calling for the appearance on Aug. 10 of Emanuel and Henry Clayman of the Forty-eighth Street Corporation, living at 241 West Forty-third Street.

M. W. LITTLETON, JR., WEDS MISS CARROLL

BURTON-NICKLE NUPTIALS

Christ Episcopal Church, Greenwich, Conn., was the scene of an interesting mid-Summer wedding yesterday afternoon, when Miss Marion Carroll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bradish J. Carroll of this city, was married to Martin W. Littleton, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin W. Littleton of this city and Plandome, L. I.

The chancel was decorated with palms and blue hydrangeas. The Rev. Ernest M. Stires, rector of St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, who was to have officiated, was unable to reach Greenwich in time for the wedding, and the Rev. Worcester Perkins, acting rector of the church, performed the ceremony, at 3 o'clock. Ray H. Harrington, organist of the church, played the wedding marches and other selections during the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in white satin, with lace and pearl trimmings, and wore a tulle veil caught up with orange blossoms. Mrs. Bradish J. Carroll, Jr., a sister-in-law of the bride, as matron of honor, wore blue over lavender, and a brown tulle hat. Miss Eleanor H. Franke, who was the maid of honor, wore a similar frock and hat. The bridesmaids were the Misses Helen Johnson, Virginia Sterry, Josephine Flood, Mary Strange, Mary Osgood Field and Barbara Brown. They wore frocks of lavender over blue and matching hats of lavender and blue.

Balsley Callbash served as the best man and the ushers were Bradish J. Carroll, Jr., Aymar Cater, Worthington Miner, Frank S. Grandon, Henry Clay Irons and Gordon McCulloh.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at "The Maples," where the Carroll family has been spending the Summer. The house was decorated with palms and cut flowers.

Burton—Nickle.

The marriage of Miss Nora Nickle, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Nickle of Liverpool, England, and niece of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Barber of Englewood, N. J., and Frank V. Burton, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank V. Burton of 23 East Fifty-sixth Street, took place at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's aunt in Englewood. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Louis Galligan.

Mr. Burton is a member of the Racquet and Tennis, Harvard and Rockaway Hunting Clubs. He is also a member of the firm of Burton Brothers & Co. Upon returning from their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Burton will reside at 156 East Seventy-ninth Street.

Sadowsky—Haas.

Miss Helen Anita Haas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Haas of this city, was married last evening to Jack Phelps Sadowsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Sadowsky of this city and Irvington-on-Hudson. The ceremony, which took place at the Summer home of the bride's parents, was performed by the Rev. Dr. Kerkus of the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue.

The bridegroom is Vice President of R. Sadowsky, Inc., and served in the Naval Aviation Corps during the war. He attended Columbia University and is a member of the Aero Club. The bride is a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and her family is one of the oldest in the city. She has gained considerable prominence through her work as an illustrative artist. The couple will leave next week for a tour of Europe, sailing on the Imperator, to be gone for about a month.

Stewart-Magowan Nuptials Sept. 1.

The wedding of Miss Marion Erwin Magowan, niece of Mrs. A. G. Rush of 59 West Seventy-sixth Street, and Edwin James Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Stewart of this city and Asbury Park, N. J., will take place on Sept. 1 at the Church of the Transfiguration. The engagement of the couple was announced last May.

ALLIES MUST ACT, SAYS PADEREWSKI

Former Polish Premier Declares War Must Be Waged on Bolshevism.

FEARS GERMAN PLOTTING

Berlin Has Plans All Ready if the Entente Fails Poland Now.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 3.—Ignace Paderewski, former Premier of Poland, said today:

"The world should clearly understand that there has been no Polish invasion of Russian territory. The Bolsheviki, with their worldwide propaganda, have succeeded in driving that lie home. All Polish military activities have been strictly defensive. Wherever the Russian boundaries have been crossed it has been purely for the purpose of checking Russian aggression in another quarter. Such moves have been simply ordinary military strategy pursued in every war. Poland had no designs of conquest or aggrandizement. She has simply been trying against tremendous odds to preserve herself as a free country and remain faithful to her alliances.

"These later military operations, of course, have been carried on under another Government than mine. As Prime Minister I had to refuse to end hostilities by accepting an opportunity for making peace with the Soviet Government. When that opportunity was presented about a year ago I came to Paris and laid the matter before the Supreme Council, as I was in duty bound to do. It was Clemenceau who spoke for that body, with the assent of the other members. 'For Poland to make peace with Bolshevism is impossible,' he said. I took these orders back to Warsaw, and they have been carried out to the full extent of Poland's power to carry them out.

"What have been the conditions under which we took over the burden of maintaining our newly organized State and making it a barrier for Western Europe against Bolshevism? With the defeat of Kolchak and Denikin Moscow's internal authority was established and the Government retained vast supplies of every kind. We had the moral authority of the Entente, but we lacked everything else except men and patriotic spirit. Our people were ready to make a stand with inadequate arms and food to preserve their newly acquired freedom.

Lack of Arms and Military Experience.

"But we could not obtain sufficient means for meeting the common enemy, flushed by victory, fully supplied and equipped, well trained and well led. Dantzig had been denied us and we were without a seaport. Trains loaded with supplies for us were frequently detained by Czechoslovakia when despatched by her railroads. Although once possessing great military traditions, these had been lost during our period of slavery. Our soldiers were insufficiently trained and we lacked officers.

"Under such circumstances we took our stand against our brutal enemy. The Bolsheviki have practised against us atrocities never before heard of. These have not been merely excesses here and there but ordered as a part of their campaign against Poland, whose inhabitants are peculiarly the object of their hate. I will not attempt to give details which are unpublishable. Of the organized mob that our people, almost naked and unarmed, have been put up against. That is the kind of civilization which with its boot on the neck of prostrate Poland, will have unbarred the way to the West.

"I say unbarred, for I don't count Germany a bar. Germany is playing her own game, not as a desperate and defeated country, but as a people still possessing characteristic cunning and energy, and in a high state of organization. Don't believe for an instant that Germany is planless. I said long ago that the Allies' victory on the western front might prove to be a German victory. Germany went into the war for the unconditional conquest of Europe. She would have succeeded but for America. When America came in and showed her strength it compelled the Germans to fall back upon the second plan which they held in reserve. That was to control Russia. Not for a single moment has Berlin modified or abandoned that plan.

"It is a wonderfully able plan. It has the very logic of nature and events behind it. Nothing can prevent its realization. If the worst should happen in Poland, except such drastic measures as only something like a general panic would enable the generous peoples of Western Europe to carry out.

"Time fights on the side of Germany. All the deep forces converge toward her success. Bolshevism prepares the ground for her by leveling down the whole framework of old Russia, but leaving all the material which German genius and energy will know how to mold into an empire along which the empire she has lost will be as a pigmy to a giant. The powers of resistance will have been dissipated in Russia's effort to infect the world with her evil spirit. She will be exhausted and reactionary and ready for strong and sustained mastery which Germany, only superficially beaten and with her spirit absolutely unbroken, is preparing to project over the whole east. She will find there the material, animate and inanimate, which even the United States cannot match for the development and upbuilding which at first the west, in its fear of Bolshevism, may welcome as the better choice of evils.

Resources Open to Germany.

"Germany can mobilize the greatest supply of labor the world has ever known, from sixty to eighty millions of men, in China and India, men who can and will work for a shilling a day and a handful of rice. In that direction is to be looked for the future German Empire, reared in the ruin of England, the ruin of France and perhaps even the ruin of America.

"It is not merely a hope. It is a definite plan. It is in the mind of every thinking German. Ambition has suffered nothing by military defeat. It has only been inflamed and intensified. With vindictive hearts they bide the time when their superior power to wield collective action and patiently to sustain it in the face of all obstacles will enable them to rise again from the military defeat which they regard as attributable to casual circumstances.

"Germany may and probably will set up such opposition as will send Bolshevism to the south. It will come westward around Germany and by way of Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Austria, Jugoslavia and Italy.

"You ask me whether Germany can cope with Spartacism and thus exploit Bolshevism against her own enemies, keeping herself intact. I believe that she can and will. The differences among Germans are skin deep and mostly fake. Down underneath is Germanism held in common and drawn upon by the people more than ever because of unsympathetic association with other peoples. They are distrusted, ostracized. 'Very well,' they say, 'we know ourselves, we have shown what we can do. We will cooperate. We will strive. We will build as before, but we will not make the old mistakes again.'

Allies Must Fight Bolshevism.

"If any successful move against Bolshevism is to made the Allies must make it now. There is a last quarter of an hour when it is possible to crush out this sinister thing at one blow. The Bolsheviki have military forces not of two or three millions but only of two or three hundred thousand. A good allied army of that number can put an end to the Bolshevist advance in the west. Lenin and Trotzky are bluffing. They hope to make an appearance of military strength and by success in Poland to work up sympathy and prestige along their route south and westward that will provide the necessary new momentum to carry forward their movement.

"This is the last quarter of an hour in the war after the war, fraught with greater consequences than the war itself. By swift, strong concerted action Germany and Bolshevism in alliance can be checked.

"To what our Allies will contribute in this emergency Poland will add its all. She will give her life and property. She has had sacrifice, suffering and poverty. She will exchange them for desolation and extinction if need be, if upon her blood-soaked soil may be ended her long slavery and to her posterity may be bequeathed liberty to live and privilege to be associated on terms of equality with the free and enlightened peoples of the earth."

J. P. RITTER, WRITER, DIES.

Novelist, Playwright and Newspaper Man Was 63 Years Old.

John P. Ritter, novelist, playwright and newspaper man, died on Tuesday night in St. Michael's Hospital, Newark, in his sixty-third year. He was born in this city and educated in the public schools. He began his literary career on The New York Daily News and later for six years served as an editorial writer on The Sun. Mr. Ritter wrote thirty melodramas, including "The Curse of Drink," "More to be Pitied than Scorned," "For His Brother's Sake," "My Tomboy Girl," and "The House Flies." His novels included "Cross Roads of Destiny" and "The Man Who Dared." He dramatized "St. Elmo" and other novels. Of late years he had been adapting plays for the motion pictures. He wrote the screen version of "Poppy."

Burial will be in Trinity Cemetery and services will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Funeral Church, Broadway at Sixty-sixth Street.

WARNS REDS TO HALT ON PAIN OF WAR

the Bolshevist armies continue to advance the situation foreseen in the note of July 20 will have arisen and Great Britain and her Allies will be obliged to assist in the support of the Poles."

The Daily Mail also declares that the Ministers indulged in some frank talk about the Red advance to Kameneff and Krassin.

WARSAW, Aug. 3 (Associated Press).—The Polish emissaries who went to Baranovitchi to discuss armistice terms with the Bolsheviki, were not allowed by the representatives of the Soviet the privilege of communicating with Warsaw. In a note addressed to Prince Eugene Sapieha, the Polish Minister of Foreign Affairs, dated Aug. 2, M. Tchitcherin, the Bolshevist Foreign Secretary, declares this withholding of permission of communication was due to a misunderstanding.

Soviet Playing False With Poles.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Armistice conditions will be submitted to Poland by the Soviet régime only to forward the good of the Bolstevist campaign, according to an order said to have been issued July 29 by the Soviet military staff on the northwestern front, intercepted by Polish agents and forwarded today to the Polish Legation here.

Addressed to Comrade Kranklis, Commissioner of the Twelfth Army, the order was signed by Skalin, member of the Revolutionary Committee of the Soviet front, northwest, and read as follows:

"We shall put forward the armistice conditions to Poland only to forward our good. Until a formal order is issuer by the military staff you can fight the Poles. Pay no attention to the obligatory conditions of the armistice."

Colonel Edmund G. Buckner.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Colonel Edmund G. Buckner, Vice President of one of the du Pont companies of Wilmington, Del., died tonight at a hotel here, where he had been under treatment since July 1. He had been ordered to take a rest cure following a general breakdown, and collapsed suddenly while at dinner with Mrs. Buckner in the hotel dining room, dying shortly after.

ALLIES MAY SEND ARMY TO POLAND

WARSAW'S LAST LINE OF DEFENSE COLLAPSES

PARIS, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—The Bolshevist forces apparently have scored a great military victory over the Poles, who are reported to have been forced to abandon the Bug River line and possibly will be compelled to relinquish Warsaw.

According to the latest reports reaching Paris the Polish Army, for the time being at least, has gone to pieces, and the Bolshevist columns, advancing in Echelon in accordance with approved German technique, are enveloping Warsaw simultaneously from the north and the east.

The Bug River line, Poland's Marne, has gone almost without a fight, compelling the Poles to make a rapid retreat and shorten their front, which some of the military experts believe will be likely to bring the Poles into the Vistula and San Rivers and involve the abandonment of half the country to the invaders.

The Government is expected to be moved to Cracow.

The members of the allied military mission, telegrapher here last night, that the Polish Army along the River Bug had retreated so precipitately that it did not even destroy the bridges behind it.

A special Russian cavalry corps, the military men reported, was driving southwest along the border of the Allenstein district and had yesterday reached a point thirty miles from Miawa, thirty-one miles northwest of Warsaw, on the only direct railroad to Danzig from the Polish capital. These cavalrymen were said to be headed through Miawa into the Polish corridor to the Baltic near by, and thence to Pomerania.

The Polish armistice delegates returned to Warsaw Tuesday night, and the Polish Government has little hope of the speedy arranging of an armistice. The members of the Allied Mission are convinced that the Soviet Government does not intend to negotiate an armistice, they reported, and declared their belief that the Russians had set the next meeting of the negotiators for today at Minsk, knowing that it would be impossible for the Poles to arrive at that time, making a pretext for further delay.

The Polish Government, it is learned, is undecided as to whether it will send emissaries to Minsk.

The experts said their gravest concern was the imminent cutting off of Warsaw's direct communications with Danzig, upon which Poand is dependent for military supplies.

Lord d'Abernon, the British Ambassador to Germany, a member of the British mission to Poland, has returned to Warsaw from Danzig.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The crossing of the River Bug at several points by the Soviet Army advancing on Warsaw is announced in Tuesday's official statement from Moscow, received today. The continued advance of the army in the Bielsk region also is reported. The statement reads:

"West of Bialystok and Bielsk our advance is continuing successfully. In the direction of Siedlce we debouched on a 66-mile front along the line of the Western Bug. After fierce fighting we crossed the river at several places."

A Polish official communication received this evening states that southeast of Lomza Polish troops defeated the 18th Division of the Bolshevist forces which had crossed the Narew River, made 500 prisoners and took important booty. Between the Narew and the Bug a desperate struggle continues.

In the Sokal region (north of Lemberg) the Poles repulsed attacks, while in the Brody district the struggle against the Bolshevist cavalry continues.

According to reconnoitering Polish aviators the Bolsheviki retiring toward Krzemibnes lost very important booty.

The communication says that on the Sereth River a violent struggle is raging with the Bolsheviki attempting at all costs to make progress towards the west. The fighting here continues favorably for the Poles, who have taken a great number of prisoners, according to the communication.

WARSAW, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—There was no change today on the Galicia and Volhynian fronts. The Poles continued to occupy the line of the Sereth the Upper Styr and the middle Stokhod which, passing by the Pripet Marshes joins the River Ryta east of Brest-Litovsk.

The Polish troops yesterday held a line the left wing of which rested on an arc formed by the Narew River around Lomea, joining the Bug at the confluence of the Norzeo, then following it upstream as far as Brest-Litovsk, around which place fighting is going on.

In the event that it is impossible to hold this line active preparations are making to organize a defense on the Middle Vistula.

REFUGEES CHOKE THE ROADS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—Reports from Red Cross workers in Poland paint a picture in dark colors. Along the routes of the refugees fleeing before the invading hordes fresh graves of children and old people line the roadsides. Hundreds of new born babies, deprived of milk, have died in their mothers' arms. American workers say the smoke of burning fields and farms marks the Red advance. In addition to the damage to crops in the invaded regions, wheat fields in other parts of the country are going to waste because men have gone to the front. More than half a million boys have joined the army from farms and thousands of young women have clipped their hair and gone to war. Starvation threatens the country this Winter unless aid comes from the outside.

Much in the situation resembles the conditions in Northern France in 1914. The roads are black with thousands of refugees, weak and hungry, but struggling to outstrip the invaders in their western march of triumph. The Government, with its resources taxed by the fight, has no time for these innocents. The Red Cross workers are doing their best, but they are insufficient in number and lack facilities. Polish Boy Scouts are helping American relief workers.

A pretty story comes to Paris of the work of American women in saving 800 children from a hospital at Bielystok. There was lack of transportation to take the children away and only when the noise of battle could be heard was a train of cattle cars obtained. Due to the efforts of Miss Stella Matthews, of Milwaukee, and Miss Susan Rosenthiel, of Freeport, Ill., panic among the children was prevented and they were herded into the cattle cars and taken to Warsaw.

ACTION IS DEMANDED BY THE FRENCH PRESS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—In face of the tragedy in Poland the French press criticises the hesitations of the Allies and places much blame on Lloyd George on the ground that his diplomacy blocked the sending of material assistance to Poland.

The Temps tonight says:

"You cannot settle the Bolshevist question by negotiations. That has been tried and it has failed. When the Bolshevist régime disappears or transforms itself it will be by pressure from the interior. The need for this being true, to offer hospitality to agents of the Bolsheviki and to talk with them in the capital of the United Kingdom is only to furnish a base of operations and means of action for Bolshevist propaganda."

"Unfortunately the Bolsheviki had already had experience with the feebleness and indecision of the western Cabinets. They have amused us with a series of wireless communications while accelerating the march of their armies. They have succeeded in making themselves almost recognized and in obtaining an invitation to a conference at which they would be on an equal footing. In the meanwhile they disdain the injunctions sent them and by employing force are preparing themselves to settle according to their own fancy the question of Poland. Their manoeuvre was evident. It was announced by all clear-sighted observers.

"All the world has repeated not only in France but also in England that this State of Poland, put on its feet again, was one of the pillars of the new order in Europe. Can we with a light heart let it be overthrown? Will Poland, brought by our victory from the tomb in which she was buried for a century, be given once more to the hangman?"

The Petit Journal says it is time to stop sending notes to Moscow and to do something that will count.

KILL ALL PERSONS NOT POORLY DRESSED

Bolsheviki in Poland Also Threaten to Shoot Any Allied Subjects Found There.

ALLENSTEIN, East Prussia, Aug. 3 (Associated Press).—Threats by the Russian Soviet forces to execute instantly any civil or military subjects of the allied powers who cross the frontier are reported by refugees arriving here from the region to the east being occupied by the Russians. This has caused the Interallied Commission in this district to announce that no person will for any reason be permitted to enter the Russian-controlled zone.

These refugees declare that the Bolsheviki are shooting all landowners and property holders and others suspected of having money. The wearing of a white collar, they declare, is sufficient evidence for a death warrant.

Officials of the Interallied Commission declare that the majority of these reports are supported by circumstances indicating their truth.

The allied officials, who are taking only an unofficial interest in the fighting between the Russians and the Poles, have given evidence of uneasiness over the fact that the Russians were allowing only a four-kilometer neutral zone along the German border and had been successful once in an effort to converse with the frontier police.

These police, it is stated, will be the only force used to control the border situation, the allied officers saying that in no circumstances would the allied troops here in the plebiscite zone give the Germans aid.

Information here is that the Soviet troops are well disciplined and well supplied with munitions and provisions.

REDS MAY SOON TURN EAST.

Washington Looks for Operations Against Japanese as Next Move.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The fall of Warsaw was virtually conceded in advices reaching official circles today. Reports received in Polish circles indicated that a last desperate stand would be attempted by the Polish Army east of Warsaw along the line of the River Bug and by means of the defense offered by the old Russian line of trenches in that vicinity.

The main objective of the Bolsheviki, according to the latest official information reaching Washington, appears to be the establishment of a Soviet Government in Poland, and it is believed that once Warsaw is occupied by the Red Army and a Soviet Government established the invaders will voluntarily retire to the Russian borders. Pressure of armed force against the frontiers of Czechoslovakia and Austria or Germany has ceased for the moment to be apprehended, as it is believed that the Bolsheviki will rely upon more pacific means of propaganda to forward the purposes of the Red empire westward into Europe.

In some quarters there is an inclination to look to the east in Siberia for the next military operations of the Bolsheviki. It is pointed out that they have continually emphasized their purpose in attacking Poland to be the restoration of the old borders of the Russian Empire, and as this has been achieved in the south in the Caucasus there remains now the east, where the Japanese have encroached as far as Lake Baikal.

AMERICANS LEAVING WARSAW.

Provisional Red Cross Headquarters Established at Cracow.

WARSAW, Aug. 3 (Associated Press).—All Americans, except officials and welfare workers, have been requested by the American Legation to leave Warsaw Wednesday night. The Legation has procured accommodations for them on trains leaving at that time for Danzig. It is expected that about 100 persons will leave.

Transportation is also being arranged for several hundred emigrants who have relatives in America. Most of these are women and children who have had their Polish passports viséed during the last few days.

All British women and children not having urgent business in Warsaw are urged by the British Legation to leave immediately. Several cars secured for their use have alredy departed.

Provisional headquarters for the American Red Cross have been established at Cracow for use in case it is necessary for that organization to abandon Warsaw. About fifty Red Cross women workers are still in this city, but they have all their baggage packed and are prepared to leave on short notice. The Y. M. C. A., which has been engaged in the distribution of American relief supplies, has also taken precautionary measures and officials stated today that unless the Bolsheviki come within a week nearly everything of importance will be saved.

Three hundred carloads of supplies were brought out of Bialystok by the Red Cross before the Bolsheviki captured that city, and members of the organization continued treating the wounded until Soviet forces were within four miles of the town.

Armenians Defeat Bolsheviki.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 4.—Fighting continues in the regions disputed by Armenia and Azerbaidjan. The Armenians have met with success in Chaour, from which they have driven the Soviet troops and occupied the city of Gueroussi. Nouri Pasha, brother of Enver Pasha, is trying to gather bands in the Chaour region to fight the Armenians.

RICKARD DECLARES WAR ON THE I. S. C.

Will Enter Local Fight Field Through Madison Square Garden Sporting Club.

MAY BUY ARENA OUTRIGHT

Promoter's Plans Include Organization for Professional Athletes in Every Sport.

When Tex Rickard plays a trump card it is generally an ace, and last night he drew one out of a cold deck. Tex was host to many of the sporting writers of the city—more than forty sat around a table at the Biltmore Hotel—and before he had bade the last happy one of them "good-night" he had drawled out in his typical manner the following announcements:

That he had declared war on the International Sporting Club.

That he had begun the organization of the Madison Square Garden Sporting Club.

That he planned to insure boxing on the highest plane by himself conducting bouts.

That he will form a club at Madison Square Garden for professional athletes in every sport and make the Garden their headquarters.

That he expected to have the new sporting club ultimately own the Garden outright instead of controlling it on lease.

It took several hours before, after and during a dinner that approached the proportions of a banquet for Tex to get these disclosures out of his system, for a dozen or more New York sporting editors and writers took the opportunity to heap praises on the former cowpuncher, rangerider, prospector, ranchman, financier and fight promoter. Rickard's achievements, his sincerity, his integrity and his word-as-good-as-his-bond record were related by old timers to newcomers. The speakers included Joe McGinn, dean of the city's sporting writers; Sid Mercer, Tad Dorgan, John Pollock, Nat Fleischer, Charles F. Mathison, Frank O'Connell, Harry R. Ilsley, William Hicks, Thomas Rice, Jack Skelly of Yonkers and Bob (Tiny) Maxwell of Philadelphia. It was a large evening.

Rickard Discloses Plans.

In a prepared statement Rickard outlined clearly and unmistakably the plans which he is following for transforming Madison Square Garden into the greatest sporting centre of the United States. It was his first disclosure of the steps he plans to take, now that he has leased the famous amphitheatre for ten years, but his announcement of the new sporting club came by surprise. Previously to leasing the Garden, Rickard had been named as matchmaker for the International Sporting Club but resigned at that time.

His verbal explanation last night, which supplemented the statement, was of the greatest interest because he indicated his future relations with the I. S. C.

"Henceforth," he declared, "the International Sporting Club probably will be my enemy, for I will run in opposition to it. My new club, the Madison Square Garden Sporting Club, of which I will be President, will bring to this city the greatest boxers of the world for bouts." Then, with no attempt to keep his attack on the I. S. C. under cover, he added: "It will not be a club for the wealthy men, who would attend probably no more than one bout in a year. Instead, the new organization will be aimed to supply regular, ardent boxing fans with the best bouts that can be booked, and there will be enough cheap seats for this type of supporter. After the Garden has been remodeled it will seat about 18,000."

Tex then got personal and confidential with the writers. "If I don't run this thing right, knock me hard, boys," he declared, "but I am hoping as hard as I can to do the square thing. If it hadn't been for you newspaper men, friends of mine, who forced me into the promoting business, I never would have been where I am today. I have you all to thank for everything."

Rickard's schemes for the new club, which he hopes will grow into the most pretentious sporting organization in the world, seem as complete as they are novel. In his statement he emphasizes the fact that the membership "will not pay the freight." His plans call for a membership of 1,500, and he may raise this limit to 2,000 later. The Garden is already built and the members, therefore, will not be obliged to subscribe to the erection of a clubhouse. Each member, upon payment of $100, will get a bond, representing one share of 6 per cent. preferred stock of the club and on which he will receive in addition to his annual dividend of 6 per cent. his prorated share of 50 per cent. of the Garden's net proceeds. Memberships will be renewable annually on payment of $10.

May Buy the Garden.

One sentence in Rickard's statement was unusually significant. Indicating that he had in view a tenancy longer than the ten years' lease of the famous building, he said, "I hope that eventually the club will own the property outright. I want to make the Garden the permanent home of the world's greatest sporting club."

Rickard emphasized his more unique dream of forming a club for professional athletes. Realizing that most athletic clubs are conducted solely for amateurs, he declared he wanted Madison Square Garden to become a home for the professionals of all sports—baseball, boxing, golf, rowing, wrestling, cycling. "I even hope to have it so a professional athlete from one end of the world can write to a friend at the other side of the globe, care of Madison Square Garden. It will be their headquarters." He plans to install a running track, gymnasium apparatus of every kind, shower baths and a space where boxers planning to fight in the Garden can do their training. He expects to bring professional athletes of all sports together, arrange competitions among them and make the great arena their very own assembly place.

His only condition on this phase of the newer use for the Garden is embodied in a simple paragraph: "The professional club I hope to limit to the highest class of athletes. Any member not living up to the highest standards will forfeit his membership."

Tex—most of his acquaintances would insult him by calling him Mister Rickard—indicated that the new club would get under way very soon after Governor Smith appoints the commissions on boxing and licensing, which is expected to be within a few days after the close of the unofficial Democratic State Convention now in session at Saratoga. A number of prominent men interested in becoming affiliated with the new club have already been invited.

The Formal Statement.

Rickard's formal statement, comprising his aims, follows:

In order to satisfy myself that boxing and wrestling bouts which I intend to stage at Madison Square Garden will be conducted on the very highest plane, I have undertaken formation of the Madison Square Garden Sporting Club, which I hope will grow into the most pretentious sporting club of the world. A number of prominent men who are interested already have been invited to become members. I will be President of the club.

Plans I am now following out call for incorporation of the organization with a membership of 1,500. I am not sure that this will take in all those who desire to join, so may raise this number to 2,000 later.

There are several reasons for formation of the club, first of which is to insure that spectators at bouts will be men of high character who cannot besmirch the game by their actions. I have always endeavored to conduct bouts everywhere free from any scandal and want to be sure that this venture will be the same.

The Garden stands already built, with an ideal arena for boxing or wrestling. I have no intention of making this membership pay the freight. Each man accepted as a member will be given a bond, representing one share of 6 per cent. preferred stock of the club. For this he will pay $100 and will receive his annual dividend of 6 per cent. and in addition will be given his pro-rated share of 50 per cent. of the Garden's net profits. Membership will be renewable each year on payment of $10. I hope that eventually the club will own the property outright. I want to make the Garden the permanent home of the world's greatest sporting club.

The bonds representing membership will be transferable, subject to the approval of a committee which will be chosen from among the members for the purpose of passing on new applicants. There is no doubt in my mind that the bonds will gradually increase in value.

The memberships also carry with them the privilege of first call on the Garden's seats at each wrestling bout or boxing match. Each member will be allowed to buy from seats that will be reserved until a stipulated date before each contest.

I am also considering plans for formation of a club for professional athletes. I realize that practically all athletic clubs are conducted solely for the amateur. I want to make Madison Square Garden a home for professionals. I probably will install a running track, gymnasium apparatus of every kind, shower baths, and probably set aside a space where boxers planning to participate in Garden bouts can train for their fights. From time to time I hope to arrange for competition among these professional athletes. The entire scale of athletic endeavor will be taken up by these events.

The professional club I hope to limit to the highest class of athletes. Any member not living up to the highest standards will forfeit his membership.

Will Not "Scrap" Shamrock, Says Sir Thomas Lipton

Sir Thomas Lipton yesterday announced that he will not have the Shamrock IV., defeated challenger for the America's Cup this year, "scrapped" despite reports to that effect. He said the Nicholson creation would be kept at City Island until 1922, when he may have another Shamrock here to try for the Cup. In that case the Shamrock IV. will serve as "trial horse" for the new challenger. Unless some one else challenges before he does at the expiration of ten months from the time the series of 1920 ended, Sir Thomas intends to issue another challenge for a series of races to be held in 1922. Any challenge that may be received from Canada for races for the Cup next year will not affect Sir Thomas's intentions unless the Cup should be lifted. Sir Thomas had nothing to say about the activities on the part of A. C. Ross toward insuring a race for the Cup next year.

BOXING LAWS OBEYED.

Recent Trouble at Newark Due to Police Official, Says Chairman.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 4.—Chairman John S. Smith of the New Jersey State Boxing Commission has sent a long letter to Governor Edwards anent the recent boxing show at Newark, which has been the target for much criticism. Governor Edwards recently ordered an investigation.

The communication was drafted at a meeting of the commission in Trenton. Chairman Smith absolves the commission, the promoters, the Newark Sportsman's Club and himself from responsibility for conditions and reiterates his contention in a previous personal statement that the fault lay solely at the door of the Department of Public Safety at Newark.

"I do not hesitate to say that not one rule was violated as far as the participants in the contest and the management of the Newark Sportsman's Club was concerned," wrote Chairman Smith. "Conditions were due entirely to the scarcity of police officers."

Chairman Smith declares that local departments in other cities assured protection at big events, and he saw no reason why Director Brennan of Newark did not offer the same security there. He charged that Brennan showed favoritism at the expense of the managers of the club, sending police to other places under similar circumstances.

"There is no merit to the argument of Director Brennan nor no good reason why his arrangements should not be as efficient as is afforded in other cities. There was no such confusion at a monster show only a short time previous at Jersey City." Smith declared that the armory was not oversold, but, in fact, there were 1,600 unsold tickets.

Commissioner Smith asked that Governor Edwards make a public statement placing any blame where it belongs. Director Brennan announced a few days ago that there will be no more prize fights at the armory until the building is equipped with fire escapes and a greater number of exits.

MAY BOX TO A DECISION.

Verdict Will Be Allowed on Dempsey-Miske Bout, Says Promoter.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Jack Dempsey will run the risk of losing his heavyweight championship title by a referee's decision when he fights Billy Miske of St. Paul at Benton Harbor, Mich., Labor Day, unless present plans go astray.

Under the Michigan law decision bouts are permissible when sanctioned by the State Boxing Commission, and Promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons announced today that he had received assurances from the commission that a decision would be allowed.

LEDOUX SCORES KNOCKOUT.

Defeats Johnny Frissee in Five Rounds in Montreal Bout.

TRACK MEET FOR BANKERS.

Sixteen Events Will Comprise Program in B. A. L.'s Carnival.

At the meeting of the Bankers' Athletic League, held on the Strand Roof last night, it was decided to stage a track and field meet at some field adjacent to New York City on Sept. 18. Seventeen banks were represented at the meeting. A field could not be named until it is ascertained what place will be available on that date.

Twelve events on the program will be closed to representatives of the Bankers' Athletic League, and there will be two open events, a one-mile relay race open to high schools, and a one-mile relay open to A. A. U. clubs. The special events will be a 100-yard dash and 440-yard run.

De Foe to Meet Brady.

Billy De Foe, who meets Ralph Brady of Syracuse in the stellar twelve-round attraction at the Armory A. A. of Jersey City Monday night, is looked upon in fight circles as one of the best featherweights in the country today. The St. Paul youngster has demonstrated on a number of occasions that he can cope with the best of them, and if he defeats Brady Monday night he intends to box Young Andy Chaney in a match for the right to battle Johnny Kilbane for the title. Two eight-round bouts and one of six rounds complete the Monday night card.

KERR PUTS SKIDS UNDER THE YANKS

White Sox Pitcher Baffles Huggmen While His Mates Drive Mogridge from Mound.

FIRST INNING A DISASTER

Rip Collins to Rescue, but Forces Two Runs Over, Chicago Finally Winning, 10 to 3.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—The four days' record-breaking visit of the Yanks to Comiskey Park came to a disastrous close this afternoon when the White Sox, with Wee Dick Kerr flinging, walloped the skidding Yanks by a score of 10 to 3. Great was the rejoicing among the 25,000 fans today when little lion-hearted Kerr stopped the mighty Babe Ruth in his tracks. Dick didn't pass him once. He picked right at the slugger every time he loomed up on the horizon. The sum total of Ruth's damage today was a single to right in the first inning.

The Sox won three out of four games of the series and the Yanks are hanging on to second place by a thread. The four games drew 123,000 spectators, a record for a baseball series outside of the Polo Grounds.

After getting away to a two-run lead, the Yanks practically handed the game to the Sox in the first inning. After Mogridge had allowed two runs to score in the first and had the bases full with none out, Manager Huggins sent Rip Collins to the box. It was like asking a man to put out a fire with a cupful of water. Rip was upset by the perilous lay-out before him and forced two more runs over by hitting a batsman and distributing passes too freely. After that there was nothing to it. Kerr pitched great ball after the first.

The last innings showed the Yankees completely demoralized. In the eighth two bad throws by Muddy Ruel gave the Sox two runs free of charge. The Yanks made a feeble effort to rally in their half of the ninth. Ruel got on when Risberg fumbled, and Vick, pinch hitting for Thormahlen, singled. After Peck fouled to Jackson Lewis singled and scored Ruel. Pratt forced Lewis and up came Ruth for his last trial of an unsuccessful afternoon. Babe's attempt was sad and he drew his bat feebly across the plate and grounded out at first.

Yanks in Batting Slump.

The Sox battered the Yank flingers for thirteen hits and Kerr permitted the one-time slugging Yanks to hit only when it suited his fancy. The batting slump of Huggins's men has now become so alarming that all chances of the pennant will gradually fade unless the club bucks up and starts to hammer the ball with old time fury.

The Yanks started in the run business after two were out in the first inning. Then Pratt walked and Ruth banged the first ball to right for a single, sending Pratt to third. Meusel's single scored Del and when Ward bounced a hit off Weaver's knees, Ruth scored. Ruel lined to Weaver for the third out.

The first inning for the Sox left the Yanks bewildered and groggy. Mogridge was wild and walked Leibold. Eddie Collins fouled the ball a dozen times before he singled to right. Weaver got an infield hit to Ward and jammed the corners. Joe Jackson buzzed a single to centre and sent Leibold and Eddie Collins home. Felsch laid an infield hit along the third base line and filled the cushions again. Mogridge fled in confusion at this point.

Rip Collins came in and that made three of the Collins boys in the game. Rip hit his namesake, John Collins, and forced Weaver over the plate. Risberg then hit into a double play, Peck to Ruel to Pipp. Schalk was walked by Rip and once more there wasn't even breathing space on the hassocks. Collins was as wild as the steers he used to rope in Texas and he gave Kerr a pass and forced Felsch home with another run. A liberal cuss, Collins. Leibold, up for the second time in that inning, lined to Peck and the nightmare was over.

Eddie Collins ambled in the second and Weaver flied to Meusel. Pipp tossed Jackson out to Collins and Felsch singled to centre, Eddie Collins registering. Felsch died stealing.

Sox Get Two More.

In the sixth inning Pipp was taken out of the game and Meusel covered the initial bag, Duffy Lewis going to left field. Swede Risberg planked a triple to left centre and he scored when Schalk coromed a two-bagger off Ward's outstretched hands. Kerr fanned and Leibold skied to Ruth. Eddie Collins singled to centre, scoring Schalk, Bodie's throw to the plate missing the runner by inches. Ruel made a throw to second to head off Collins and the ball got away from Pratt. Eddie tried to score but was out, Bodie to Pratt to Ruel.

After the first inning the Yanks didn't get a hit off Kerr until Ruel singled in the seventh with one out. Fewster, hitting in place of Rip Collins, skied to Jackson. Peck forced Ruel at second.

Herbie Thormahlen was elected to succeed Collins on the mound for the Yanks in the seventh. After Herb had thrown Weaver out at first Joe Jackson jolted Thormahlen for a triple to right centre. Felsch lifted a sacrifice fly to Ruth and Jackson scored standing up when Babe made a wild toss to the plate. John Collins singled to left and died stealing second.

Lewis singled in the eighth and was forced by Pratt. Ruth rolled a grounder to Eddie Collins and Pratt was forced at second. Meusel singled to right, sending Babe to third. Bodie got an infield hit and filled the bases. It was a glorious chance for Ward, but Kerr had the third baseman under his spell and Wardie fanned.

SENATORS TROUNCE CLEVELAND, 11 TO 3

Morton Weakens in Sixth and Washington Gets a Winning Lead—Joe Wood in Box.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 4.—Washington wound up its series here by winning, 11 to 3, thus breaking even in the four games. Morton pitched great ball until the sixth inning, when, with two out, he weakened, allowing four runs. Joe Wood, who had pitched but two-thirds of an inning since 1917, then tried to stage a come-back, but lacked control. Home runs by Speaker and Smith drove in Cleveland's runs.

CAUSEY ALLOWS TWO HITS.

Phillies Take Final Game of Series with Cubs, 4 to 1.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—Causey held Chicago to two singles today and Philadelphia won, 4 to 1.

Though the locals made nine hits, including four doubles, none of their runs was scored by a solid drive. The first one was scored on Williams's safe bunt, the second on an error by Terry and the last two were forced across by a hit batsman and a base on balls after Carter filled the bases by walking three men in the eighth with two out.

ORIOLES BEAT SKEETERS.

Baltimore Scores Eighth Straight Victory, Winning, 5 to 2.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 4.—Biemiller's wildness, coupled with Holden's single, today gave Baltimore its second straight victory over Jersey City and its eighth straight consecutive victory. The score was 5 to 2.

Mooers, the Skeeters' second sacker, was the bright light of the game. In four trips to the plate he poled out a triple and homer, scoring both of Jersey City's runs. In addition, he made a wonderful catch of Boley's drive in the fourth inning. Sol. Newton twirled for the Orioles and had the visitors eating out of his hand. Only one earned run was made off him, Mooers's circuit drive in the sixth.

Three bases on balls, a wild pitch, a single and a double gave Baltimore four runs and the game in the sixth inning. Up to that time Biemiller had been a puzzle to the champions. He went to pieces in this inning and was unable to locate the plate.

Jersey City scored its first run in the fourth. Mooers, after Lefler had dropped his foul fly, proceeded to slam a triple to centre field. Egan, in an effort to catch him at third, threw over Maisel's head and Mooers tallied.

BRITISH GOLFERS TWICE VICTORIOUS

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Ted Ray and Harry Vardon, on their way to Toledo for the National open golf tournament, stopped off here today and delighted two large galleries by winning two best ball matches. They defeated A. Lucien Walker, Jr., of New York, former intercollegiate champion and recent winner of the Ekwanok tourney, and F. J. Robeson of Rochester in a morning match, 1 up, while in the afternoon before a gallery of fully 1,000 persons, they disposed of Tom and Sherrill Sherman, the Utica cracks, 3 up.

Walker's play in the morning round was really the sensation of the day, the youngster making the course in 72, one above par. He made the third, sixth and thirteenth holes in a stroke under par and with a bit more assistance from his partner on the return he would have scored a victory over the English stars.

The Britons offered a steady, conservative article of golf, excelling at driving and displaying a marked degree of accuracy over their opponents, especially in the afternoon round. Both pulled feature shots that drew great applause. Ray made an approach of fifty-five yards on the twelfth hole in the morning match that hit the pin and dropped but an inch or two from the cup for a birdie 3. In the afternoon round Vardon, on a beautiful drive from the bottom of a hill, sent the ball up against the pin where it rested, giving him the eleventh hole in 4, one under par.

The Uticans played on even terms for five holes, but Tom Sherman missed an easy putt on the sixth and Ray put the Englishmen in the lead, which they held throughout. The visitors increased their lead on the eighth and Vardon's wonderful shot on the eleventh made them 3 up. Tom Sherman cut the lead by taking the fourteenth, with an excellent twenty-five foot putt, but the fifteenth, poorly played by all, went to Vardon. On the final hole, Sherrill Sherman made an excellent recovery, his approach rolling to within a few inches of the cup, and it was an easy matter for him to score a birdie 3.

FAVORITES WIN AT GOLF.

Mrs. Barlow and Miss Collett Triumph in Shenecossett Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 4.—Mrs. Roland Barlow of the Merion Cricket Club won her match in the women's championship of the Shenecossett Country Club here today from Mrs. Albert Strauss of Cincinnati by 7 up and 5 to play. She maintained the sterling golf she has been displaying all week and had the match always well in hand.

Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, the other favorite, also easily disposed of her opponent, Mrs. Myra D. Patterson of Englewood, by 5 and 4. Miss Collett tied with Mrs. Barlow for the medal in the qualifying round and the two are the logical favorites for the final.

The best round of the day was an 87, made by Miss Elaine Rosenthal of Ravinsloe, Chicago, former Western champion, whod efeated Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., of Norwich by 7 and 5. Elaine's mother, Mrs. B. J. Rosenthal, lost a closely contested match to Mrs. M. R. Smith of North Hills by 4 and 3. In the second flight Mrs. J. C. Norrie of New York defeated Mrs. H. D. Saxton of New York by 2 up. Mrs. L. R. Porteus, Norwich, defeated Miss R. D. McVey, Philadelphia C. C., 2 up.

The summaries:

First Flight—Mrs. Roland Barlow, Merion C. C., defeated Miss Theodora Palmer, New London, 8 and 6; Mrs. Albert Strauss, Cincinnati, defeated Mrs. J. C. Prizer, Essex County, 4 and 2; Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., Norwich, defeated Mrs. J. B. Linerd, New York, 1 up; Miss Elaine Rosenthal, Ravinsloe, defeated Mrs. J. D. Armstrong, Montclair, 7 and 5; Mrs. M. R. Smith, North Hills, defeated Miss Virginia Palmer, New London, 6 and 5; Mrs. B. J. Rosenthal, Ravinsloe, defeated Mrs. G. K. Morrow, Engineers' C. C., 19 holes; Mrs. Myra D. Patterson, Englewood, defeated Mrs. Alva Oatman, Ardsley, 7 and 6; Miss Glenna Collett, Providence, defeated Mrs. A. J. Fay, Belmont Springs, 8 and 7.

Second Flight—Mrs. H. D. Sexton, New York, defeated Miss T. Spadon, New York, 19 holes; Miss E. L. Norrie, New London, defeated Mrs. Julius Fleischmann, Cincinnati, 6 and 7; Mrs. L. R. Porteous, Norwich, defeated Mrs Peter Boyd, Philadelphia C. C., 4 and 2; Mrs. F. De C. Sullivan, Nassau, defeated Mrs. C. D. McVey, Merion C. C., 3 and 2.

BERNSTEIN CHESS LEADER.

New York Player Wins in Second and Third Rounds at Albany.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 4.—After three rounds of the championship tournament of the New York State Chess Association at the Ridgefield clubhouse of the Albany Y. M. C. A., Jacob Bernstein of the I. L. Rice Progressive Chess Club of New York City is leading with a record of three straight victories. The Metropolitan expert defeated P. Stevens, Jr., New York, after fifty-five moves in the second round, and then won in the third round from R. J. Guckemus of Utica, the game lasting twenty-seven moves. Bruno Forsberg of New York also won from Stevens and Guckemus, and moved into second place, with a score of 2-1.

The half-way mark in this tournament has been reached. Two special prizes have been offered for the title contest, one for the best game played, from A. J. McClure of Lakewood, N. J., and another for the most brilliant game, from Alexander Del Mar of New York, to be known as the Del Mar Memorial Prize.

J. S. Brubacher of Albany, the Yale 'Varsity player, is setting the pace in Class B, and leads with five straight to his credit. He has won from Baker, Eastman and Hamilton of this city, from Powell of Troy and Ring of Hartford.

HUTCHISON LEADS IN WESTERN OPEN

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 4.—Coming back to form after a putting slump in receent weeks, Jock Hutchison of the Glenview Club topped a field of 100 starters in the first thirty-six holes of play in the Western open championship at the Olympia Fields Country Club today. Opening with a par 72 over the No. 1 course, he followed with a 73, one under par, over the No. 2 route in the afternoon, his total being 145.

A comparatively unknown player, W. Creary of the Hillcrest Club of Kansas City, bobbed up unexpectedly in second place, one stroke behind Jock. Creary, who is 22 years of age, is a native of Tuckahoe, N. Y., and is making his first appearance in a tournament of note. Whether he can hold the pace is problematical, but he played wonderfully consistent golf.

Harry Hampton, the sturdy Scotchman from Richmond, Va., landed in third place, with 147, while Clarence W. Hackney, a Carnoustie Scotsman, was fourth with 149, so that three of the first four places are held by players from the land o' cakes. It remained for Champion Jim Barnes to furnish the fireworks, the lanky Englishman staging a wonderful comeback.

Starting in the morning Barnes hit a tree on his second shot and took six for the hole. His play throughout the round was far below standard and his chances for a third successive win of the title seemed hopelessly blasted when he reported an eighty-three, finishing with a trio of sixes. Laurie Ayton, who was paired with him, took eighty.

Despite this mediocre work the pair attracted a big gallery around the No. 2 course in the afternoon. Jim opened with two fours, and then a birdie four at the third hole, 540 yards, started him off on what proved to be a record round of sixty-eight. He holed a ten-foot putt for a birdie two on the seventh, and reached the turn in thirty-five, one under par. Here the real fireworks started as Jim sank a twenty-foot putt on the tenth green for a birdie two. He dropped a shot at the eleventh and then reeled off five birdies in succession, his figures being 3, 4, 3, 2, 4.

A par 4 at the seventeenth hole gave him a total of 27 for eight holes, and it seemed certain he would put the record for the incoming nine to unbeatable figures. Jim then drove into a thorn bush and missed the ball on his second shot. He chopped out and got down in 6, taking 33. The previous record for the course was 70, made by Clarence Hackney in the morning. Jim's great round landed him in a tie for sixth place, only six strokes behind Hutchison. Hackney, after his fine round of 70 in the morning, had 79 in the afternoon, the breaks going against him. Several putts just missed the cups.

Walter Hagen, national champion, arrived too late to compete. M. J. Brady, who lost the title to Hagen in a play-off last year, was off his game and he withdrew this afternoon. Lack of rain recently made the course hard, and this bothered the players.

BIG MATCH CANCELLED.

Delay in Getting Sanction for Vardon and Ray Causes Change.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 4.—The international team match for $1,000 which was to have been held at Inverness next Sunday as a prelude to the national open tournament, has been called off, according to announcement made today by the Inverness Tournament Committee. The reason for the cancellation, it was said, was the delay of the British Golf Association in giving its sanction to the appearance of Harry Vardon and Ted Ray in the match.

The first appearance of Ray and Vardon on the Inverness course will be on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, when the British golf professionals will enter a match against Charles Lorma, Inverness professional, and D. K. White, professional of the Sylvania Golf Club, also of Toledo. It will be an eighteen-hole best ball contest.

TRIALS FOR BALL PLAYERS.

Maggert and Borton Will Have Opportunity to Defend Themselves.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4.—Trials are to be given Baker (Babe) Borton, first baseman of the Vernon Club of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, and Harl Maggert, centre fielder of the Salt Lake Club, W. H. McCarthy, President of the league, announced here today.

The announcement came as an aftermath to action yesterday by Pacific Coast League officials which resulted in the unconditional release of Maggert from the Salt Lake City Club and the barring of Hal Chase from all Coast League parks as the consequence, league officials said, of an investigation of charges of gambling. "Babe" Borton, first baseman of the Vernon Club, was suspended indefinitely by the league's President, W. H. McCarthy.

Borton denied that he had been connected with an alleged attempt to "throw" games. Maggert likewise denied the charges.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Aug. 4.—Emphatic denial of bribery charges made by President W. H. McCarthy and Charles A. Baum was expressed by Hal Chase in a telephone conversation today from Los Angeles. He said the talk of bribery was "foolish."

Chase, who plays Sunday baseball with the San Jose Club of the Mission League, said he would play as usual Sunday. H. Larocca, president of the San Jose Club, said no action would be taken by the Mission League or by the club against Chase until he arrives here.

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 4.—Earl Maggert, unconditionally released by the Salt Lake club of the Pacific Coast League, announced today that he intended to fight to retain his post. He said he had been unjustly accused and would take the case to court if necessary.

SAIL FOR OLYMPICS TODAY.

Gymnasts, Oarsmen and Rugby Players to Leave on Transport.

Another batch of American Olympic athletes will sail from Hoboken for Antwerp this afternoon on the United States Army transport Sherman. Gymnasts, oarsmen and rugby players and A. A. U. officials will comprise the party of thirty-six that will sail from Pier 3 at 2 o'clock. There will be four gymnasts, twenty-one rugby players and eight oarsmen. The oarsmen include Paul Costello and Jack Kelly, who will row in the single sculls, the University of Pennsylvania four and its coxswain, manager and a representative of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen. The party will be accompanied by Samuel J. Dallas, President of the Amateur Athletic Union.

EAST WILL MEET WEST IN NET PLAY

DAVIS DEFEATS VOSHELL

Wins Close Match, 11-9, 4-6, 7-5—Miss Zinderstein One of Four Left in Women's Singles.

Special to The New York Times.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 4.—Two Californians and two Easterners filled the semi-final brackets of the invitation single at the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club this afternoon, and the order of names is such that the final round is sure to be an Atlantic-Pacific affair. Roland Roberts and Willis E. Davis survive in the lower half, and will fight for the honor of representing the coast tomorrow, while Watson M. Washburn and Dean Matley divide the hopes of the East in the upper section of the draw. In the women's singles, Miss Marion Zinderstein, Miss Edith Sigourney, and Miss Margaret Grove today joined Miss Eleanor Tennant in the semi-finals.

In addition to the regular contests for individual honors, former national champion, Robert Lindley Murray, played three exhibition sets with Leonard Beekman and showed surprisingly good form, winning decisively at 6—1, 6—1, 6—4. The match of the day, however, and one which attracted far less attention than it deserved, was that in which Willis Davis defeated S. Howard Voshell by the tight score of 11—9, 4—6, 7—5. This battle of volleying servers was staged on the far-end court, away from the grandstand, and only in its later stages did the gallery realize how close the Brooklyn southpaw had come to eliminating the conqueror of Norman Brookes.

If it was a hard match for Davis to win, it was a still harder one for Voshell to lose, for with any breaks of luck the latter might easily have claimed a victory in straight sets. He upset the Californian's service three times in the opener, twice for odd games after deuce had been called, but always something happened to spoil his chances, not the least of his worries being some very questionable linesmanship. A close decision cost Voshell an extra game in the second set, which he won at 6—4, and deprived him of the chance to start the rubber with his own service. At that, the Easterner seemed to have the decision served up when he again twice upset the Davis delivery, with three chances in one game to lift his lead to 5—3. Altogether it would not have been difficult to argue that the better man actually lost through an unfortunate combination of circumstances.

Voshell Plays Consistently.

Certainly Voshell showed more consistent tennis than did Davis. The left-hander constantly had the better of volleying exchanges, and off the ground he was astonishingly accurate. He used less speed on his service than usual, but this was because he found that Davis had more difficulty in handling the comparatively slow, widebreaking twisters. Only when he needed an extra punch to put over crucial points did Voshell show a slight lack of keenness, an indication that he is not yet trained down to the stage necessary for the hardest match play.

Davis gave an in-and-out exhibition, with flashes of great brilliance, interspersed with decidedly mediocre shots, but he possessed the saving grace of being able to summon his best efforts when they were most needed and his fighting spirit throughout was admirable. When behind on the score, however, he was too often satisfied with chopping instead of driving the ball, even though his forehand wallops proved his most effective shots in the pinches. His service was good, but far from irresistible, as is proved by the six breaks against it in the course of the match. He generally used speed on his first ball slowing up for more of a twist on the second. His best volleys came as the result of sure openings made by his delivery. Overhead he had few chances.

Voshell had his first advantage in the opening set, when he broke through for a lead of 3—2, and he sent the score to 4—2 in spite of trailing at 0—40 on his own service. Davis, however, after picking up one game, broke through in turn by driving two of Voshell's deliveries for clean placements, on top of the gift of two volleying errors.

Play Is Interrupted.

A double fault gave Voshell another break at 7—6, but before he could serve out the set play was interrupted by a procession of groundsmen carrying benches, and by the time the southpaw took up the burden he had lost control and threw away the game with a double fault and two other errors, with a linesman's oversight thrown in for good measure.

He immediately repeated his trick of upsetting the Davis delivery, but again lost his own, and after one more alternation of games the Californian came through for an 11—9 victory, bringing up the set-point with a beautiful backhand passing drive.

Voshell was clearly superior in the second session, taking the lead at 4—3 and keeping it to a 6—4 decision. In the rubber they fought it out on even terms up to 3-all. Then Voshell jumped ahead to 4—3 and was three times within a point of the next game, losing finally by the netting of an easy smash. A sailor band began to play while Davis was serving, and after silence had been restored he lost the game, but got it right back on Voshell's errors. It was 6—5 for the Californian after another service game, and when Voshell netted a volley on his own delivery, the match point came up at 30—40. Davis had him in the hole in the ensuing rally, forcing a defensive volley with a fast, low drive. Voshell got his racquet on the next one, but the ball dropped just outside, completing the Davis victory at 7—5.

Clothier in Close Struggle.

William J. Clothier, national champion fourteen years ago, put up an extraordinary battle against the other surviving Californian, Roland Roberts. The new clay-court title-holder won in straight sets, but both were about as close as possible, the games running to 11—9 and 9—7. Roberts tried everything he had in the way of service, volleying and hard driving, but the ball kept coming back in the most disconcerting fashion, Clothier making astonishing recoveries all over the court, and repeatedly passing his opponent with clean drives down the side-lines. Roberts had the odd game several times in the opener but lost his service on each occasion and did not succeed in claiming the set until twenty games had been played.

The second session was similar, with service holding its own up to the 7-all. Roberts then broke through by terrific driving, putting every ounce of energy into his remaining shots. He served like a fiend for the final game, bringing up the match point with a clean ace and then closing out the victory at 9—7 with an overwhelming smash.

The hammer-and-tongs game of Richard Harte, however, fared badly today. He faced once more the inscrutable Watson Washburn, who had played havoc with his reputation in the Church Cup matches early in the season. After two sets, scored 6—1, 6—3, had been decided in the New Yorker's favor, the impression remained that it would take Harte some years to solve that well-rounded and cannily directed science of the court. Washburn did much more than play defensive tennis, but he accomplished all his ends so coolly and easily that the real aggressiveness of his attack was seldom evident. While his ground-strokes were his best weapon, he could come in and volley when the opportunity offered, and he kept a good lob in reserve for emergencies.

Harte scored only when his killing shots carried absolute finality, and too often his intentions were far from being realized. When kept away from the net he was powerless to out-general or even out-hit his steady rival.

Wins Five Straight Games.

The opening set was a slaughter, in which Washburn ran five straight games with the greatest ease before Harte succeeded in scoring his lone tally on service. The Bostonian did better in the second, keeping on even terms up to 3-all, with one break through Washburn's service for a real advantage. But the second half of the set saw him go to pieces again, Washburn twice upsetting his delivery in the last three games, to win decisively, at 6—3.

Mathey had been expected to win from G. Colket Caner, and the Massachusetts champion did well to carry his resourceful opponent to three sets, scored 6—3, 7—9, 6—1. Caner flashed a spectacular backhand drive which earned him many a point after Mathey had apparently out-manoeuvred him. His killing placements, however, were balanced by errors, and after he had barely pulled out the second set at 9—7, Caner was overwhelmed in the rubber, getting only one game in seven.

Frank T. Anderson and Willard Botsford went out of the men's doubles in a blaze of glory after taking one set from the California pair, Roberts and Griffin, recent winners of the intercity championship, the other pairs to reach the semi-finals being Walter Merrill Hall and Leonard Beekman, and Beals Wright and W. M. Washburn.

There was some good tennis in the women's events of the morning and early afternoon. Miss Edith Sigourney scored a real triumph in eliminating Miss Florence Ballin by the close count 6—4, 6—8, 6—4, and after they had finished this wearing struggle neither of the girls had much left for the women's doubles which followed. The Boston team, with Miss Leslie Bancroft as Miss Sigourney's partner, lost a heart-breaking three-set match to Miss Edith Handy and Mrs. E. V. Lynch, after taking the opener at 6—4, while Miss Ballin and Mrs. De Forest Candee offered little resistance to the almost unbeatable combination of Miss Zinderstein and Miss Tennant. The latter pair went right on to the final round by administering another crushing defeat to Mrs. Percy Wilbourne and Mrs. W. H. Pritchard, scored 6—1, 6—1.

Miss Zinderstein took her semi-final bracket in the singles at the expense of Miss Clare Cassel, who had previously disposed of Mrs. De Forest Candee, but was far from her best against the clay court champion, netting too many of her slicing drives when good openings were offered. Miss Margaret Grove completed the quartet through her straight-set victory over Miss Leslie Bancroft at 6—3, 6—3.

The summaries follows:

Men's Singles, Third Round—Dean Mathey defeated G. Colket Caner, 6—3, 7—9, 6—1; Watson M. Washburn defeated Richard Harte, 6—1, 6—3; Roland E. Roberts defeated William J. Clothier, 11—9, 9—7; Willis E. Davis defeated S. Howard Voshell, 11—9, 4—6, 7—5.

Women's Doubles, Semi-Final Round—Miss Zinderstein and Miss Eleanor Tennant defeated Mrs. William H. Pritchard and Mrs. Percy Wilbourne, 6—1, 6—1.

Mixed Doubles, First Round—Miss Marion Zinderstein and W. M. Washburn defeated Mrs. Edward V. Lynch and W. J. Clothier, 6—1, 6—2.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Acting on a report of the Stewards of the Empire City meeting, the Stewards of the Jockey Club at a meeting here today took action to discourage rough riding by continuing indefinitely the suspension of Jockey Zoeller for an offense during the Yonkers meeting. In a race on July 29 Zoeller, who had the mount on Tableur d'Honneur, grabbed the saddle of Under Fire early in the race and was temporarily set down pending investigation. During the meeting today the Stewards also appointed a number of Stewards to act at the various Autumn meetings. F. R. Hitchcock will represent the Jockey Club at Belmont Park, H. K. Knapp will be the representative at Aqueduct, W. S. Vosburg at Jamaica and John E. Cowdin at Empire City.

BAGGS LOSES TO NORTON.

Upset Features Play in Norfolk Country Club Tennis.

Special to The New York Times.

WINSTED, Conn., Aug. 4.—The feature tennis matches played at the country club at Norfolk today were between R. L. Baggs and W. H. Norton and Morris Duane and Hugh L. Nehring. Norton caused quite a surprise by beating Baggs, 6—2, 6—4.

Second Round—M. T. Ackerland defeated A. Iler, 3—6, 6—4, 7—5; M. Duane defeated H. Nehring, 6—0, 2—6, 6—1; A. H. Man, Jr., defeated Leroy Frost, 6—1, 6—0.

Third Round—M. Vernon defeated Cyrus Clark, 6—4, 6—4; M. T. Ackerland defeated M. Duane, 7—5, 6—8, 6—1; H. Norton defeated R. L. Baggs, 6—2, 6—4; A. H. Man, Jr., defeated A. L. Bruheau, 4—6, 6—1, 6—2; C. R. Watkins defeated G. B. Case, Jr., 6—2, 6—2.

YEARLING BRINGS $13,500.

C. W. Clark Pays High Price for Son of Short Grass-Marian Hood.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, Aug. 4.—The first of the yearling thoroughbred sales, conducted here tonight, was a complete success and forecasts big prices for the young horses in the sales to come. C. W. Clark, a son of Ex-Senator Clark of Montana, was an extensive buyer and paid the top price of $13,500 for the chestnut son of Short Grass and Marian Hood—a half brother to Sunbonnet, the Kentucky Oaks winner. He also paid $10,500 for a bay son of Spanish Prince 2d and Junta.

Commander J. K. L. Ross paid $9,000 for a son of Jim Gaffney and Irish Queen. Mr. Clark paid $5,500 for a filly by Short Grass-Intrigue and $5,000 for a colt by Short Grass-Gentlewoman. Other big prices were $9,000 paid by B. J. Brannon for a colt by Sweep-Droll and $5,100 paid by William Garth for a colt by Sweep-Highflown.

Plans Long Race Meeting.

Jim Coffroth, the San Francisco boxing and racing impresario, is making definite arrangements for a long racing meet that will start at Tia Juana about Nov. 15. The last meeting at the Southern California track was the most successful in the track's history. It was a 108 days' meeting.

TWO TEAMS REACH NET SEMI-FINALS

Oelsner and Joliffe, Baggs and Stockton Advance in Hoboken Doubles.

Two more tennis teams reached the semi-final round of the open doubles tournament at the Hoboken Club yesterday, Edward Oelsner and Carl Joliffe defeating the local stars, Stephen V. Brubans and Ralph De Mott, in straight sets, 6—4, 6—3, while Fred C. Baggs and J. P. Stockton won two matches in a row, their hardest fight coming against J. Harry Steinkampf and Charles A. Anderson, who succumbed in three sets, scored 6—4, 4—6, 7—5.

This encounter produced some of the best tennis of the entire tournament, all four players hitting hard, with prolonged and brilliant rallies resulting. Baggs did consistent damage with his skidding chops, which were made all the more effective by contrast with the heavily topped drives of his partner. Stockton's shots carried the greatest speed, but he also contributed his full share of errors. On the losing side, Steinkampf's volleying and overhead hitting stood out prominently, but he received good support from Anderson, who showed a dependable forehand drive, and a puzzling reverse twist service.

Baggs and Stockton won the opening set after a good battle, in which a single break in service decided the issue. They lost the second by the same score, and with the match all square the games alternated on service up to 5-all before Baggs and Stockton were able to put on the extra speed necessary to win the set and match at 7—5.

Their earlier victory over the veterans, Harold Swain and Dr. Brewster, was more decisively scored, the losers getting only three games altogether, two in the first set and one in the second.

Steinkampf and Anderson, however, had a real test in the second round when they met the Terrace-Kings County pair, Frederick G. Anderson and William A. Hartye. The latter combination proved very strong in the first set, which they won at 6—3, and almost held their own to the end of the match. After the count had been tied, however, in a 6—4 session, Steinkampf and his partner showed a little more endurance than their older opponents and managed to win out by a repetition of the same score.

Oelsner and Joliffe won their semi-final bracket by cleanly outplaying Brubans and De Mott, combining very effectively in spite of their lack of practice together. Oelsner was particularly strong on service, and his forehand drive was a terror to the opposition. Joliffe did his best playing close to the net, and let very little get away from him overhead. The Hoboken team led up to 3—2 in the opening set, but was never really in the running after that, winning only one game of the remaining five in this session, and then losing five in a row for a lead, which clinched the second and the match. A belated rally brought Brubans and De Mott three games before the final points could be registered, and this strong finish gave them a good showing on the encounter as a whole.

With Alfred D. Hammett and Embree H. Henderson already in the lower semi-final, the remaining place lies between the Glen Ridge team, S. E. Palmer and F. D. Powers, and another New Jersey combination, Henry Parsons and Thomas M. Day 3d. The former pair came through the second round yesterday by a rather surprising victory over H. B. O'Boyle and Augustin Healy, scored in straight sets, 8—6, 6—2, while the latter eliminated Samuel R. McAllister and George G. Moore, Jr., of the Seventh Regiment Club, also unexpectedly, by the decisive count of 6—1, 6—4.

Palmer and Powers both outsteadied their rivals, and, while they had less speed for ordinary purposes, they were there with the killing shots when the opportunities arose. Parsons and Day played a similar game against the indoor stars, but earned even more of their points by sound and aggressive court tactics.

The summary follows:

Second Round—J. H. Steinkampf and Charles A. Anderson defeated Frederick G. Anderson and William A. Hartye, 3—6, 6—4, 6—4; Fred C. Baggs and J. P. Stockton defeated Harold Swain and Dr. Brewster, 6—2, 6—1; S. E. Palmer and F. D. Powers defeated H. B. O'Boyle and Augustin Healy, 8—6, 6—2; Henry Parsons and Thomas M. Day 3d defeated Samuel R. McAllister and George G. Moore, Jr., 6—1, 6—4.

Third Round—Baggs and Stockton defeated Steinkampf and C. A. Anderson, 6—4, 4—6, 7—5; Edward Oelsner and Carl Joliffe defeated Stephen V. Brubans and Ralph De Mott, 6—4, 6—3.

FAVORITES WIN AT TOLEDO.

Royal Palm, Favonian and George Volo Grand Circuit Victors.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 4.—Three of the four favorites of the Grand Circuit card came through winners today at the Fort Miami track. Thrilling finishes marked most of the races.

Royal Palm, winner at Kalamazoo two weeks ago, took The Toledo Blade 2:14 trot for a purse of $3,000, the feature race of the day, in straight heats, while Favonian won The Legal News stake for two-year-old trotters, after Bogalusa came through in the first heat. All of the three heats were trotted by the juveniles in less than 2:10, making it the fastest race of the season for colts of that age.

Brother Peter, one of the members of the Peter the Great family, and an outsider among the talent, won his first race on the Grand Circuit when Walter Cox piloted him to victory in the 2:10 trot. In the third heat Brother Peter choked, staggered to the edge of the track and fell over, while Miss Perfection, a contender in the previous miles, came through the stretch an easy winner.

George Volo, the favorite, won the 2:09 pace but J. W. S., the pacing pony which was raced over half-mile tracks last Summer, came on and won the second heat for his new owner, Hugh McNichols, who bought him during the week and gave Nat Ray the mount.

Tom Gibbons Seeks Title.

Advices just received from St. Paul state that Tom Gibbons, brother of the famous Mike, has his eyes focused on the heavyweight championship. Tom is much larger than Mike and is of the opinion that by the time the Winter season is in full swing he will be primed to go in quest of the crown now held by Jack Dempsey.

NATURALIST WINS SARATOGA FEATURE

J. E. Widener's Gelding First in Lake George Handicap—Six Favorites in Front.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 4.—J. E. Widener's fine gelding Naturalist, one of the most uncertain horses in racing and also one of the best when he is in condition and willing to extend himself, ran his best race of the year over the Saratoga course this afternoon and captured the Lake George Handicap at a mile from a field of twelve, including some of the top notchers. He finished a length in front of Commander J. K. L. Ross's Boniface, while Samuel Ross's Gnome was third, about four lengths in front of Audacious.

It was an excellent day of sport for those who backed the public choices for all six of the favorites won. This is one of the few times this year when the favorites enjoyed uniform success.

The most impressive thing about Naturalist's victory was that he went to the front at the start, set the pace all the way and was able to stall off the determined challenge of that courageous finisher Boniface. The race was evidence that Naturalist has finally rounded into the form which placed him at the top of the handicap division last year and caused him to have top weight in all events in which he started up to a mile and a furlong.

For several weeks this season Trainer Tom Welsh allowed Naturalist to race himself into condition, but since coming to the Spa, Welsh has taken more pains with the unruly gelding and has worked him with other horses of the Widener stable. As a result Naturalist was at his best today and, though he carried 128 pounds, the high weight of the race, and conceded many pounds to all his rivals, he never left the issue in doubt. He had all the speed from the start, raced Audacious into submission in less than six furlongs and was ready for the final dash of Boniface in the stretch run.

Naturalist the Favorite.

Naturalist was the favorite, but at the last minute there was a rush to back Boniface and his price went down to 18 to 5. Audacious, which never made a better appearance at any time this season, was also well supported, as was A. K. Macomber's Royce Rools, which was played from 20 to 1 down to 8 to 1. Royce Rools has defeated many high-class stake horses, but he ran a dull race today and was never a contender, being content to trail along and finish next to last.

Naturalist popped to the front as the horses came out of the chute in which the mile events are started. Before he reached the first turn he had taken the lead by half a length, with Audacious right after him and Gnome running third.

This trio began to draw away from the balance of the field in the run through the back stretch, and Ensor, on Audacious, made several efforts to get his horse to the front and take the running out of the Widener gelding. But Naturalist resisted each effort with just a little more speed, and, finally, as the horses turned out of the back stretch, Audacious gave it up and began to drop back.

Boniface had started slowly, as he usually does, and was nearly last in the early part of the contest. Sande worked his way up gradually until at the turn he was fourth and moving up rapidly. As Audacious dropped back Boniface made a run at the leader, which was just shaking off Gnome. Boniface had plenty of speed, but, despite the rush with which he came through the stretch, he could never seriously threaten the winner.

Wins Under Hand Ride.

Turner, who rode Naturalist, took no chances on touching the temperamental gelding with a whip, and Naturalist did all that was required of him under a hand ride. Gnome held on gamely through the drive, and it was not until within a hundred feet of the wire that Boniface finally disposed of him, to take the place by a neck.

Audacious found too much speed and class in the race and could not hold out against it. When finally raced into submission he stopped near the end. The balance of the field was badly outrun all the way.

H. P. Whitney's Exodus, which scored a victory in the final race on Monday, came back with another fine race in the second event today and won the five furlong dash for two-year-olds in a field of fifteen starters. Exodus had to be much the best to win as he did, for he had none the best of the racing luck.

Man o' War and Sir Barton May Meet in Saratoga Cup

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Since Sir Barton won the Saratoga Handicap in record time and placed himself at the top of the handicap division there has been a strong demand for a race between him and Man o' War. It seems probable now that Samuel Riddle will consent to such a race for his great three-year-old toward the end of this meeting, perhaps in the Saratoga Cup, a race at a mile and three-quarters, in which the horses would carry weight for age. If these two meet it will be the banner event of the season.

POLOISTS IN SERIES FOR SPECIAL CUPS

Aiken, Myopia and Norfolk Fours Are Winners in Narragansett Pier Tournament.

Special to The New York Times.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 4.—Polo was resumed here today with Dedham winning the semi-final for Overture cups, defeating the Aiken Red Birds, 16 to 7, in a game featured by the all round work of Clarke, who played back for the Massachusetts four. Besides playing a great defensive game he ran the ball up the field repeatedly and his accurate shooting gave his team the victory. A two-goal handicap was overcome in the second chukker and from then on the Aiken team appeared to be disorganized and repeatedly failed to take advantage of the opportunity to follow up its shots.

In the second contest, Myopia easily defeated the Point Judith Freebooters, 16 to 6, in the first round for the Army and Navy Cups. Rice was the star goal-getter, caging 11 goals, and he was ably assisted by McKean, who passed the ball very accurately. The Myopia outfit displayed good team play and completely outrode its opponents.

Another match of the afternoon was played between Norfolk and Bryn Mawr, the former winning, 8 to 5, in a hard-fought contest. This, like the preceding game, was part of the first round for the Army and Navy Cups. The playing of young Rodman Wanamaker and Amory stood out prominently, both displaying clever horsemanship, while their shots carried distance and accuracy.

Dedham plays Myopia Friday in the final of the Overture Cups, and on Saturday the Boston Freebooters play Norfolk, and Point Judith plays Dedham in the second round of the Army and Navy Cups.

Hoofbeats of the Racers.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Two old favorites that were headliners in their days are again in training and may soon be seen under colors. They are S. C. Hildreth's Stromboli and H. P. Whitney's Barrow.

Jockey Buddy Ensor will be seen in the saddle no more during the Saratoga meeting. It was announced today that the Stewards had set him down for insubordination after he had been called to the judges' stand yesterday.

H. G. Bedwell, who trains the horses of Commander J. K. L. Ross, is planning to ship Boniface to Fort Erie to run him in the $10,000 Dominion Handicap at a mile and a quarter, to be run next week. Boniface has traveled more than any other horse this season and still is sound and able to give a good account of himself in any race.

It was discovered after the running of the fifth race today that Thunderstorm had been seriously injured by being kicked while at the post. Tonight Dr. McCully feared the injury was such that the horse would never race again.

Michigan Shooters Strong.

DETROIT, Aug. 4.—In the national rifle matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, this month Michigan will be represented by a team which shows promise of finishing well up in the prize list. Professor C. E. Wilson of Ann Arbor is team Captain and three Detroit men will be on the team. They are C. T. Paugh, Dr. H. L. D. Smith and W. S. Marsden of the Detroit Rifle and Revolver Club. The first two were on last year's team, which finished seventh among the State teams, and the team is confident of bettering this standing this year.

OFFICIALS TO ACT IN YACHTING CASE

Larchmont Regatta Committee to Consider A. E. F.-Soixante-Quinze Controversy.

When the Regatta Committee of the Larchmont Yacht Club meets next week to decide on protests filed by the owners of various yachts for real or imagined transgressions of the rules claimed to have occurred during race week one most unusual case will come up for consideration. Upon the decision of the committee hangs the settlement of a claim for damages one owner alleges his yacht sustained as a result of a collision between his craft and another in the same class a week ago last Saturday, when it blew so hard as to prevent the skippers of Resolute and Shamrock IV. from competing off Sandy Hook.

The Regatta Committee of the Larchmont Club already has received a check from the owner of the other yacht for the amount claimed, and whether that check is to be returned or not depends upon the decision of the committee. The means by which the advance settlement was accomplished has become a topic of general conversation in local yachting circles and is the first case of its kind in the memory of those who have been questioned on the subject.

The yacht, which her owner claims was damaged, is the A. E. F. of the new Victory class, owned by E. G. Potter, while the Soixante-Quinze, belonging to Stewart and Swan, is claimed by Mr. Potter to have inflicted the damage.

When Mr. Stewart with some friends arrived at the Larchmont Yacht Club last Friday to go aboard the Soixante-Quinze for the day's race they discovered that a United States marshal had been aboard and libelled the craft for $600, and it looked as if they would not be permitted to race, thereby losing any chance they may have had to add to their points for the championship of the class.

It was eventually arranged by the owner of the A. E. F. and Mr. Stewart that upon Mr. Stewart's giving his personal check for the amount claimed to the committee, he would be permitted to race the boat, and upon presenting the check it was further reported to have been understood that were the Regatta Committee to decide in favor of the Soixante-Quinze the check should be returned to Mr. Stewart. This is the first time in the memory of the many yachtsmen interviewed that an owner of a yacht has taken such means to adjust a claim that later was to be put up to the Regatta Committee.

Yachtsmen have generally expressed regret that one of their members has felt it desirable to adopt such means to secure redress. It was pointed out that Henry T. Hornidge, owner of the class U sloop Mingo, which was leading in her class and was sunk as the result of being in collision with the sloop Kim, owned by M. E. Hatfield and sailed by George Granbery, had not taken such measures to collect damages.

During race week Soixante-Quinze finished ahead of A. E. F. in five races out of six, not counting the race of Saturday in which the A. E. F. was not reported as having finished. It is reported that the action of Mr. Potter in adopting the means he did to collect damages is to receive the consideration of the Victory Class Organization in the near future.

REPLIES TO CANADIAN.

A. C. Ross Makes Public Word Received from N. Y. Y. C. Commodore.

TORONTO, Aug. 4.—Alexander C. Ross, who recently challenged to compete for the America's Cup in July, 1921, with a Canadian-built yacht, tonight made public a reply received from J. Pierpont Morgan, Commodore of the New York Yacht Club, which has possession of the coveted trophy. It read: "Your telegram of Aug. 4, received. You will note that the deed of gift of the America's Cup requires that a challenge must come from a duly organized yacht club fulfilling certain specific conditions. Should such a challenge be received from one of the clubs you mentioned which may fulfill the required conditions I will submit it to the officials of the New York Yacht Club."

Mr. Ross left tonight for Montreal, where he plans to confer regarding a formal challenge with the commodores of the Nova Scotia Yacht Club and the Royal Cape Breton Yacht Squadron. Construction of the challenger will begin, he said, as soon as the challenge is approved by the Canadian yacht clubs and accepted by the defending club.

McDONALD INJURES THUMB.

ON BOARD THE U. S. PRINCESS MATOIKA, Aug. 4 (By Wireless to The Associated Press).—Patrick J. McDonald, of the New York Athletic Club, America's leading entrant for the 16-pound shot put at the Olympic Games, injured his right thumb while working with the medicine ball during the practice of the American Olympic members who are voyaging on this steamer to the games at Antwerp.

McDonald's thumb was struck in such a way that the ligaments were strained, and it was feared the injury may affect his work in the shot put in the Olympic Stadium.

A two-hour run by the Marathon race entrants was the feature of the routine training of the squad yesterday.

Foggy weather is retarding the progress of the Princess Matoika, but the trainers of the team are still hoping that she will reach Antwerp in time to admit of a tryout for the men on Saturday.

Friday night has been set as the time for the dinner to be given the team by the Captain.

Practice in giving an American cheer has been added to the parade drill of the athletes.

ATHLETES MISS WORKOUT.

Rough Weather Keeps Navy's Olympic Stars from Training.

ON BOARD U. S. S. FREDERICK (Off Land's End, England), Aug. 4 (By Wireless to The Associated Press).—The United States Navy's Olympic athletes today missed their regular workout for the first time since the voyage began. The Frederick encountered bad weather off the South of Ireland and is meeting heavy seas on entering the English Channel.

ATHLETES AT ANTWERP.

Americans Will be Among Last to Arrive for Olympics.

ANTWERP, Aug. 4 (By the Associated Press).—Unless the American transport Princess Matoika arrives sooner than is now expected, the United States athletes will be among the last delegations for the Stadium events to reach Antwerp.

Dozens of athletes of other countries were busily training at the Stadium today. Among them were the Italians, who with Platt Adams, their American trainer, number twenty-one.

Thirty-one members of the Canadian team also have arrived, among them Earl J. Thomson, Dartmouth's hurdler, who holds the world's record in the 120-yard high hurdles.

Among other teams arriving are the Egyptians, South Africans and Greeks. Hannes Kolehmainen, the famous Finnish Marathoner, is also on the ground.

Peter Trivoulidas, winner of the 1920 Boston marathon, who was sent by his Boston countrymen to represent Greece in the Olympic marathon, has arrived, accompanied by his trainer, Peter Hagelman of New York. He was one of the first marathoners to go over the Olympic course.

SURETY CO.'S NAME ON FAKE TELEGRAM

LAWYER REVEALS FRAUD

He Insists on Verification of Wire from New York to Oklahoma City.

The National Surety Company discovered yesterday that the name of the company had been forged to a telegram which was sent to Snyder Owen Lybrand of Oklahoma City, Okla., in the interest of a man named Salisbury, apparently either to save the credit of Salisbury or to stop some proceeding against him.

Because a confederate in this city evidently has sent the false telegram, President William B. Joyce of the National Surety Company, said that he suspected that two or more men had worked out some get-rich-quick fraud, which they hoped to accomplish by the forgery of the name of reputable financial institutions to fake telegrams. He said that this was the company's only recent experience of the kind and that the exact nature of the scheme had not been learned.

The fake telegram was sent on July 27 from the Western Union office at Forty-first Street and Broadway by an unidentified man who paid for it at the time. The telegram was as follows:

New York, July 27.
Snyder Owen Lybrand, Atty.,
609 Terminal Bldg.,
Oklahoma City, Okla.:

Salisbury has asked us to vouch for him. He will have dividends of over Thirty Thousand, Aug. 10. Is victim of circumstances in this matter. Write him fully how much your entire fee will be and we will give him New York draft to cover same. Don't bleed him. Don't wire us.

NAT. SURETY COMPANY.

Mr. Lybrand took the precaution to ask the Oklahoma City branch of the Western Union to verify the telegram. General Manager Joel Rathbone of the Surety Company notified the Western Union that the company had sent no such telegram and then wired to Mr. Lybrand that the message had not been sent or authorized by the company.

"The telegraph used to be widely used by swindlers," said President Joyce of the company, "but, for several years, they seemed to abandon this method. Today there are a great many smart men engaged in dishonest tricks of all kinds, and it would be well for business men to be on their guard against new schemes for making the telegraph an instrument in frauds. I am surprised that its use has not been attempted moe often. There should be some method by which financial institutions would have a check against the fraudulent use of their signatures."

COMMEND VICTORY HALL.

Harding and Cox Send Letters to General George W. Wingate.

Both Republican and Democratic candates for President, in letters made public yesterday, commend the plan for a Victory Hall memorial in Pershing Square. From Marion, Ohio, on July 30, Senator Warren G. Harding, the Republican aspirant, wrote to General George W. Wingate, President of the Victory Hall Association:

"You may be assured that my sympathies and interest will always be enlisted in behalf of such efforts as that of the Victory Hall Association to create fitting memorials to the men who gave their efforts and many of whom gave their lives in the World War. It will never be possible for our nation to pay its full debt of gratitude to these men. I could wish that every American community might have a proper memorial of those men so located that it would always be a reminder to tell the people of our debt to these heroes.

"I wish the Victory Hall Association all success in its efforts to provide suitable memorials as an adornment to our imperial city of New York."

The letter of Governor James M. Cox of Ohio, the Democratic candidate, addressed to General Wingate on July 27, reads:

"The spirit which has caused the undertaking of a memorial to the men who died in the great war is to be commended and the furtherance thereof is to be encouraged.

"Victory Hall will be a splendid monument."

LEGION MESSAGE TO BRITAIN

Celebrates Sixth Anniversary of Her Entry Into the World War.

In celebration of the sixth anniversary yesterday of Great Britain's entry into the World War, Franklin D'Olier, National Commander of the American Legion, sent to Field Marshal Earl Haig and Admiral Sir David Beatty this message:

"On behalf of five million Americans who on land and water became comrades in war of these of the British Empire's fighting forces, I convey to you the greatness of the American Legion on the sixth anniversary of the day Great Britain made the heroic decision that brought the English-speaking people into the great struggle in defense of free institutions.

"Honor to the statesmen who had the courage to make that decision. Honor to the British millions, who with valor unsurpassed and hearts of oak enforced that decision on Britain's many fronts.

"United States forces have had the privilege of service under British high command. Thus, to the multiple ties of race, language, tradition and common institutions which unite the people of our two nations was added the bond of fellowship in war. The memories of the associations of those great days will never perish. They will perpetuate themselves in our hearts and thus serve to perpetuate the indissoluble friendship of the British and American peoples."

ACOSTA REACHES SALT LAKE.

First of New York-San Francisco Fliers Arrives from Cheyenne.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 4.—An all-metal monoplane, one of the squadron blazing an aerial trail for mail planes from New York to San Francisco, arrived here from Cheyenne soon after noon today. It was piloted by Bert Acosta. Eddie Rickenbacker was one of those aboard.

One plane was held here to wait for a motion picture cameraman, who is to "shoot" Cheyenne from the air and photograph important places on the route westward.

Woolen Mill Partly Reopens.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Aug. 4.—Announcement was made today that the Saranac Mill of the American Woolen Company, North Smithfield, closed since July 10, would re-open in part Monday. Work will be resumed in the dry finishing and weaving departments.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday .....8 per cent. for the best names.
Tuesday ......8 per cent. for the best names.
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Buttons Freely Used.

Coat and suit styles being purchased by the retailers for the Fall show a liberal use of buttons. In some of the designs the trimming consists entirely of braided patterns laid on the material. In others, however, buttons are used exclusively, and sometimes there is a combination of braid and buttons. When buttons are employed they are placed in rows to mark the lines of the garment which are to be accentuated. Besides combinations of buttons and braid some use is also made of flat, oblong beads in conjunction with buttons.

Active Millinery Demand Seen.

In commenting on the Fall outlook in millinery, the trade believes that there are several factors in the present situation which will have the tendency of yielding a brisk business. Some seasons have lagged behind and been slow, it is pointed out, owing to the sombreness of the colors shown and worn and also because of the lack of life in the designs presented. For the coming season, however, there ought to be no complaint on these scores. Bright colors, rich fabrics and artistic trimmings feature the new fashions, and the mode shows new and radical changes in form.

More Fur For Trimming.

Now that fur for trimming purposes can be purchased at more reasonable prices, the manufacturers of women's coats and suits are showing a greater disposition to use it. They are handicapped, of course, in the matter of full supplies by the strike in the fur industry. It is thought, however, that the labor trouble will soon be ended. Suits, it is said, do not show so profuse a use of fur as coats. The cape style coat first appeared in popular priced numbers without fur trimming, but now bandings of fur are used. Fur collars are also being placed on plush coats that formerly did not include them.

Gray Goods Prices Wavering.

"Distress" goods again made their appearance in the local market for gray cottons yesterday, spot 38½-inch 60-48s of this description being sold at 13 cents. In the clothing styles some "distress" sales of spot 39-inch 52-120, 3.50-yard sateens were put through at 27½ cents. In the regular order of business spot 39-inch 72-76 and 38½-inch 64-60 printcloths were sold at 20½ and 16½ cents, respectively. August-September business in 39-inch 68-72s was also done at 16½ cents. Sales of sheetings were small and generally without interest. Spot lots of slack-twist voiles brought 18 cents.

Drug Prices Getting Low.

New low prices are reported on crude drugs here, Drug and Chemical Markets will say today, owing to selling pressure following the refusal of the banks to finance large holders. Foreign trade in fine chemicals is improving, but the domestic demand is limited and buyers are filling only immediate wants. Menthol is higher. The essential oils show a tendency to decline, which may continue throughout the month, but improvement is expected in September. Cod liver oil is lower on reports of a large catch of cod in Norway. Trading is at a standstill in intermediates and dyes owing to the coal shortage, lack of transportation and the closing down of textile mills.

Expect Lower Prices.

A short while ago several importers of woolens issued statements in which they explained that no break in foreign prices could possibly occur. For this reason they advised their customers to place their orders because no advantage would be secured by waiting. Now it is understood that quite a few cancellations of foreign orders have been placed by the importers, whose action is said to be based on the expectation of lower prices in the near future. These and other cancellations received by the foreign mills, it is felt, will hasten price reductions abroad, particularly as it is known that the demand there is just as dull as in this country, and may not even absorb the normal amount of goods.

Fur Buyers Marking Time.

Buying of manufactured furs by retailers now in this market is not as active as it has been in recent years at this period. The possibility of being "left" as a result of the fur workers' strike does not seem to cut so much of a figure in the operations of some buyers as the chance of obtaining lower prices by holding off awhile. In the case of some of the larger stores, buyers want to get a line on how the August sales are going to go before they commit themselves for additional merchandise in a large way. Deliveries of finished furs are said to be practically at a standstill. About the only shops that are shipping goods are the so-called "family" ones, in which the work is generally done by the proprietor and his relatives.

An Embarrassment of Riches.

One of the things that is bothering the jobbing trade quite a little at the present time is the receipt of Spring merchandise which has been tied up in transit for long periods. With the retailers now interested almost entirely in Fall merchandise, and with the prospect that prices on goods similar to those now coming in will be cheaper next Spring, the wholesalers are somewhat at a loss regarding how to dispose of them. Many of the retailers, with their eyes on future prices, are unwilling to take the goods on orders placed by them some time ago unless reductions are made. When this is done the retailers, themselves embarrassed somewhat by the late receipt of the merchandise, are passing the price cuts on to the public in order to assure its prompt movement.

Is Not Stabilized Yet.

The prediction that the naming of new and lower prices on bleached cotton would have a stabilizing effect on the market for the goods in the gray had not come true up to late yesterday afternoon. It was based chiefly on the belief that the demand for bleached cloths on the part of the jobbers, growing out of the revisions, would be such as to bring sellers of these goods into the market for contract deliveries of the gray fabrics in an active way. To some extent it had also been expected that the action of the bleached goods houses in guaranteeing prices to the middle of October would stiffen the gray cloth market for spots and nearby shipments. The failure of the jobbers to operate as yet in the active way looked for, however, has upset everything.

Clothiers Have Their Problems.

Later in the week, the representatives of the National Association of Clothiers will meet to take up some of the problems now confronting the industry. Not only has an answer to be prepared to criticism launched at the Fall price guarantee from Government quarters, but the manufacturers feel some steps must be taken to relieve the situation which now exists in the trade. Despite the complaints which have been made of the price guarantee the manufacturers claim they are getting little benefit from it and wouldn't use it if there was a better method of gaining the confidence of buyers. As the season advances and factories are shutting down for lack of orders, the clothiers are beginning to feel that woolen prices have a lot to do with their troubles. A Spring opening, it is pointed out, might cause some revising of clothing prices, but the loss taken in this manner would be less than if a total failure of the Fall season was made.

ORGANIZE TO REPEAL EXCESS PROFITS TAX

GROSS SALES LEVY FAVORED

Details of the New Association Will Be Decided On at Meeting in Near Future.

Plans for a nation-wide organization to procure the repeal of the excess profits tax and to substitute for it a gross sales tax were discussed yesterday at a meeting at the Hotel Astor called by the Tax Committee of the Broadway Association. The new organization will be known as the Tax League of America and its formation is being furthered by the Broadway Association, with the co-operation of commercial and business men's associations all over the country.

The objects of the Tax League of America, according to a statement of the committee, containing an excerpt from the proposed charter, are "educational, scientific and patriotic," and are more particularly described as follows:

"To promote and protect the interests of the citizens in the State of New York and in other States of the United States in matters of taxation; to aid in the formulation and adoption in the various municipalities and States, and in the Federal administration, of systems of taxation which will secure an effective and just distribution of the cost of government; to furnish facilities for and conduct scientific investigations of facts and principles affecting taxation, and promote the diffusion of knowledge concerning these matters; to make generally available for the correct guidance of public opinion, and executive, legislative and administrative action, the best economic and scientific thought and and practical experience on all questions and principles pertaining to municipal, State and Federal taxation.

In like matters and for similar purposes, to study, investigate, promote and secure scientific and economical systems in the expenditure of public moneys, including among other matters budget, audit systems and the orderly correlation of legislative appropriations with administrative and executive action."

The meeting yesterday was spent in a preliminary discussion of the plan. Another meeting, to discuss the details of the new organization, will be held within a few weeks. The members of the Tax Committee of the Broadway Association are: John Williams, Chairman, Vice President Irving National Bank; Horace De Lisser, President Ajax Rubber Company; Walton P. Kingsley, New York Life Insurance Company; Martin Huberth, G. Searing Wilson, Walter J. Salmon and James C. McCreery, James McCreery Realty Corporation.

Want Lithuanian Rolling Stock.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 4.—The Russian Soviet Government has agreed to the Lithuanian demand for the evacuation of Vilna, according to private advices received here. This agreement is made on condition that the Lithuanians place the railway materials necessary for evacuation at the disposal of the Commander of the Soviet Fourth Army.

THIEVES GET $53,000 BONDS

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Police of several cities were seeking today to locate the two Chicago thieves involved with a Cleveland youth in the theft from a Cleveland bank of $53,000 in bonds which were being sent to Toledo.

The names of the thieves were not disclosed, but police said that unless they were found, they would formally arrest the Cleveland youth on a charge of robbery and return to Cleveland.

Police officials said that recently a package containing the bonds was opened by one of the Chicago thieves and the Cleveland youth. The bonds were taken and the package resealed and mailed to Toledo. The Cleveland boy was told later that the bonds, which had been taken to Chicago for disposal, were sold, but that one of the three "had been arrested." He handed over his $5,000 share to assist in cash bail security.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 4.—Fifty-three thousand dollars in Liberty Bonds stolen from the First National Bank here, for the theft of which two young employes of the bank are in custody, lay for two days and nights buried in a vacant lot in Lakewood, before they were taken to Chicago and sold for $12,000, it was learned today.

According to the story told by the police, a Chicago youth came here and obtained a position in the bank. A friend came with him and posed as a newsboy. They won the confidence of a Cleveland youth working for the bank.

The two employes sent to the Post Office with the $53,000 removed the bonds from the envelope. The Chicago youth buried them and two days later the "newsboy" took them to Chicago, where they were sold for $12,000. He returned here with the money, giving $5,000 to the Cleveland youth, who later returned it, to be used as bail in Chicago.

The Chicago boy who worked in the bank is held here, and the Cleveland boy is in Chicago with a Post Office inspector and detectve, looking for the "newsboy."

MRS. ADAMS BEGINS DUTIES.

First Woman Assistant Attorney General of Nation at Her Desk.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Mrs. Annette Adams of San Francisco, the first woman ever to occupy the office of Assistant Attorney General of the United States, began her duties today at the Department of Justice.

She will supervise the work of the Department in the regulation of taxes, revenues, prisons and matters pertaining to shipping.

NEW GAS INJUNCTION PERMITS $2.20 RATE

Judge Hand Forbids Attempt to Enforce 80-Cent Law for Period of Five Years.

Judge Learned Hand of the United States District Court, in an opinion handed down yesterday, enjoined for five years the Attorney General of the State and the Public Service Commissioner for the First District from enforcing or attempting to enforce the 80 cent gas rate.

As a condition of the continuance of the injunction Judge Hand ruled that until March 1, 1921, or until the earlier promulgation of a gas rate applicable to the Consolidated Gas Company by some competent authority of the State of New York, the company shall "neither charge nor collect" more than $1.20 per 1,000 cubic feet.

The opinion, which covers eighty-nine typed pages, was filed on the motion to confirm the report of Abraham S. Gilbert, Special Master, in the action of the Consolidated Gas Company to have the 80 cent gas rate law of 1906 declared unconstitutional on the ground that it is confiscatory.

Special Master Gilbert had indorsed the contention of the gas company and had suggested that it be allowed a return of at least 8 per cent. profit. Following this recommendation Federal Judges Knox, Grubb and Ward gave the gas company permission to charge at the rate of $1 per 1,000 cubic feet pending the outcome of the gas litigation. In his opinion, which added to the amount the Special Master had fixed as a proper charge, Judge Hand said:

"It appears to me that it is within the bounds of possibility that the rate may be fixed so high ($1.20), and since the plaintiff must eventually account with the future rate in any event, I think it fair to protect it against the possibility that it may be so fixed. Any hardship to the public appears to be answered by the plaintiff's inability for any period to escape the jurisdiction of the State authorities."

The opinion stated that "the statutory rate has become unfair and violates the Fourteenth Amendment while present prices continue."

Announcement was made by the Public Service Commission yesterday that it would take legal steps to prevent the Bronx Gas and Electric Company from charging $1.75 per 1,000 cubic feet for gas.

BUSINESS RECORDS

In Town.

A. R. MOSLER & CO.—Judge A. N. Hand has appointed Peter B. Olney, Jr., receiver for A. R. Mosler & Co., engaged in the manufacture and sale of spark plugs for autos, tractors and airplanes, in $25,000 bond in an equity suit brought by Frenchtown Porcelain Co., a creditor for $29,000, and National Folding Box Co., a creditor for $5,753. It is stated that the liabilities are about $437,000, and that the assets, consisting of notes, trade acceptances, accounts receivable, merchandise and materials, amount to about $610,000.

DIAMOND SILK CO., INC.—Judge A. N. Hand has appointed James Mercer Davis receiver for Diamond Silk Co., Inc., office in New York City, with factory in Paterson, N. J., in $50,000 bond, in a suit brought by Joseph Smith, Vice President and stockholder in the corporation to the amount of $70,000. It is stated that the assets are at least $250,000, consisting of machinery in the New York place of business and warehouse $100,000, accounts receivable $100,000, and plant, machinery, &c., $50,000. The company was incorporated in 1919, with an authorized capital of $1,000,000, of which $300,000 is said to have been issued. It is alleged that the plant recently suspended operations and that the company is without capital or credit to resume business. Wolf Amel is President of the company.

WARDROP WEST AFRICAN LINE, INC.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Wardrop West African Line, Inc., shipping and transportation, at 405 Lexington Avenue, by these creditors: Astoria Mahogany Company, Inc., $1,001; Frederick W. Kirch, $460; F. W. Kirch, Inc., $496, and John Chandler Hume, $600. It is stated that the liabilities are upward of $50,000 and that the assets do not exceed $500, office furniture, &c.

WILLIAM DINERSTEIN—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against William Dinerstein, dealer in furs and skins, at 44 West Thirtieth Street, by these creditors: H. M. Cunningham, $3,096; S. M. Cohen, $3,605, and C. W. Clowe, $1,080. Assets stated to be about $40,000.

LOUVRE BAKERY AND RESTAURANT CO., INC.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Louvre Bakery and Restaurant Company, Inc., at 205 West Thirty-fourth Street, by these creditors: J. Lowenstein & Son, Inc., $1,072; Rump Brothers, Inc., $335, and Edward Poppe Company, $210. It is stated that the liabilities are about $29,000 and the assets about $1,000.

JOHN W. KREUTZIGER—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against John W. Kreutziger, provision dealer at 301 East 144th St., by these creditors: Ernest Issler, $175, and Emil Fleischl & Son, $335.

BRESIN & BELIKOFF—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Charles Bresin and Morris Belikoff, co-partners, trading as Bresin & Belikoff, jobbers in silk and woolens at 1,390 5th Av., by these creditors: M. A. Doody, $400; Irving Iscoe, $75, and Samuel Glass, $100.

ABELES & KUSHNER—Benjamin Abeles and Harry Kushner, co-partners, trading as Abeles & Kushner, fur manufacturers, at 52 East 9th St., have filed schedules in bankruptcy with liabilities of $32,235 and assets of $15,804, consisting of stock, $14,304; machinery, &c., $350; accounts due, $650, and deposits, $500. The secured creditors are Buchsbaum & Newitz, $1,767; Brooklyn and New York Fur Dressing Co., $1,764, and Liberty Fur Dressing Co., $503. Among unsecured creditors are Loeb Bros., notes aggregating $15,666; Brooklyn and New York Fur Dressing Co., $2,601, and M. Blumenfeld, $1,542.

BEAD-AD ART CORP., manufacturer of bead novelties at 559 West 57th St., has filed schedules in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $1,670 and assets of $645, consisting of cash, $40; furniture, fixtures, &c., $386; stock, $75; accounts due, $126, and notes, bills, &c., $16. Among the creditors are Andrew Reiener, $500, and David D. Rosner, $500.

AETNA NECKWEAR CO.—Judge A. N. Hand has appointed Julian Hartridge receiver for Adolph Bleiberg, trading as Aetna Neckwear Company, men's neckwear, at 215 Fourth Av., in $5,000 bond. It is stated that certain insurance is payable to Bleiberg by reason of a fire in his place of business on June 15; that actions have been instituted against him; that creditors threaten to attach insurance money, and that his place of business is closed. The liabilities are alleged to be approximately $40,000 and assets about $15,000.

DISCHARGES IN BANKRUPTCY—Judge A. N. Hand has granted discharges from bankruptcy to the following named: Alice K. Roundtree, residing at Hotel Commodore; Morris H. Brockway, residence 301 West Eighty-sixth Street; John A. Rogers, Yonkers, N. Y.; J. G. Swanstrom, Yonkers, N. Y.

BENJAMIN GREENBLAT—Judge A. N. Hand has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed against Benjamin Greenblat, grocer, at 960 Amsterdam Avenue, on settlement with creditors at 50 cents on the dollar, 35 cents in cash and 15 cents in note due three months from July, 1920.

KLEINHAUS & BRENNER—Solomon Kleinhaus and Philip Brenner, manufacturers of furs at 50 West Twenty-ninth Street, have made an assignment to Isidor Doninitz.

For the convenience of Harlem residents The New York Times has a branch office at 2,100 Seventh Avenue, a few steps north of 125th Street, where advertisements are received of births, marriages and deaths, apartments to rent and rented, business opportunities, help and situations wanted, &c.—Advt.

NEW STEEL FIGHT PLANNED BY LABOR

BEGIN DRIVE FOR UNIONS

War on Open Shop Declared—Gompers Indignant Over O'Connor's Pledge to Harding.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 4.—The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, in session here, has ordered that the right of assembly and free speech for union labor organizers and sympathizers, in the steel making territories of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana, is to be made a political issue the coming Fall in every Congressional district where steel workers vote.

The campaign to insure the same freedom for steel and iron workers in respect to public assemblies as is enjoyed by labor bodies elsewhere, aimed specifically at the officials of Braddock, McKeesport and other steel making towns in Western Pennsylvania, is to be a prelude to a movement to unionize the plants of all of steel making companies.

President Gompers, Secretary Morrison and other Federation officials were surprised today when they learned that plans for a drive against the open shop entrenchments at Gary, Ind., and in Western Pennsylvania, on vastly broader lines than the Foster failure, has become known. Upward of thirty unions with several hundred thousand members, directly or indirectly connected with the steel and iron industries, are to be invited to appoint representatives on a committee which will have supreme power in mapping the campaign.

Assurances have been received of the active coöperation of the powerful forces of the Amalgamated Association of Steel and Iron Workers, providing that William Foster is not included in the Board of Strategy.

It is probable that the question of prohibiting labor parades and meetings will be put squarely up to Mr. Harding and Mr. Cox and to Congressional candidates in all steel making States.

Secretary Morrison declined today to make any statement as to the dimensions of the war fund which will be available for the movement to bring the steel industry inside the union lines. He objected also to allusion to the possibility of a great strike of other unions to force the hands of the steel magnates.

"I should hardly say that a strike is contemplated. It would be better to say that organization is the objective," he said.

President Gompers spoke with emphasis today, when his attention was called to dispatches from Marion stating that T. V. O'Connor, chief of the International Longshoremen's Association, had tendered the aid of that body to Senator Harding during a conference with the Republican nominee in Marion yesterday.

"Neither Mr. O'Connor nor any other man has any right whatever to make any political pledges for the American Federation of Labor or any of its branches," said Mr. Gompers.

"No man can pledge the vote of organized labor to any candidate or party. If Mr. O'Connor promised help to anybody, he spoke for himself."

Other members of the executive council believe O'Connor virtually has defied President Gompers and the Federation because of their failure to persuade the Wilson Administration to intervene in behalf of the longshoremen in New York harbor.

San Diego to be Pacific Navy Port.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 4.—San Diego harbor will become the "Hampton Roads of the Pacific," as the result of yesterday's election in which the gift of several parcels of land to the Navy Department by the City Council was ratified, Rear-Admiral C. W. Parks, Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, said here today. A hospital, training station, repair base and warehouse will be constructed on the land. The expenditures this year will approximate $6,000,000.

More Time for Newberry Appeal.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Announcement was made today that under an order issued by Associate Justice Holmes, Senator Truman H. Newberry and the other defendants convicted at Grand Rapids, Mich., on charges of violating the election laws are to be allowed until Sept. 17 to file appeals with the Supreme Court.

Columbia Man Goes to Trinty.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 4.—Dr. Harry T. Costello, lecturer in philosophy at Columbia University in New York, has been appointed Brownell Professor of Philosophy at Trinity College, succeeding Dr. Wilbur M. Urban, who goes to Dartmouth, where he will be head of the department of philosophy.

18 Chauffeurs Jailed; $4,500 Fines.

Magistrates W. Bruce Cobb and Francis X. Mancuso, presiding in Traffic Court yesterday, disposed of 325 cases and collected fines aggregating $4,500. Eighteen chauffeurs, in default of payment of fines, were sentenced to one to five days in jail, and 125 first offenders against speed regulations were fined $25 to $50 each.

LEGAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

No. 00222 of 1920.
IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE
CHANCERY DIVISION
MR. JUSTICE ASTBURY
IN THE MATTER of the UNITED STATES and GENERAL TRUST CORPORATION LIMITED and

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a Petition was on the 5th day of July, 1920, presented to His Majesty's High Court of Justice by the above-named Company to confirm an alteration of the said Company's objects proposed to be effected by a Special Resolution of the Company passed at an Extraordinary General Meeting of the Company held on the 17th day of May, 1920, and confirmed at an Extraordinary General Meeting of the Company held on the 10th day of June, 1920, and which Resolution is in the words and figures following:

That the Memorandum of Association of the Company be varied by inserting the words "or any other part of the world" after the word "Ireland" in sub-clause (1) of Clause 3, and after the words "United Kingdom" in sub-clauses (1) (2) (3) (8) (11) (16) (21) (22) and (24) of the said Clause 3, and after the words "North America" in sub-clause (23) of the said Clause 3.

AND NOTICE IS HEREBY FURTHER GIVEN that the said Petition is directed to be heard before his Lordship Mr. Justice P. O. Lawrence on Tuesday, the 19th day of October, 1920, and any person interested in the said Company, whether as a Debenture Holder, Creditor or Shareholder or otherwise desirous of opposing the making of an Order for the confirmation of the said alteration under the above Act should appear at the time of hearing personally or by Counsel for that purpose.

A copy of the Petition will be furnished to any person requiring the same by the Company's Solicitors, Messrs. Norton Rose & Co., of 57½ Old Broad Street, London, E. C. 2, on payment of the regulated charge for the same.

DATED the 16th day of July, 1920.

REPORTER WINS SUIT AGAINST THE MAYOR

Judge Fawcett Says Press Must Not Be Hampered in Lawful Pursuit of Gathering News.

Supreme Court Justice Fawcett in Brooklyn yesterday continued the temporary injunction in favor of the Brooklyn Union Publishing Company, publishers of the Standard Union, forbidding the Mayor to deprive Clarence A. Worden, a Standard Union reporter, from occupying a press seat at meetings of the Board of Estimate.

The Mayor had Mr. Worden barred from the "well" reserved for the press because he said an article written by Mr. Worden indicating that Tammany had forsaken the Mayor and that his political career was drawing to a close was inaccurate.

"The press is the lever that moves the world as no other earthly power could move it," said the Justice in his decision. "It should not be hampered while in the lawful pursuit of gathering news, or interfered with while honestly disseminating really important information for its readers."

The Court held that the Mayor did not act in accordance with his authority as presiding officer and said it appeared evident that had he permitted a roll call after two members of the Board had objected to barring Mr. Worden the decision of the Board would have been to continue him in his seat with other press representatives.

Meetings of the Board of Estimate are included in the section of the city code dealing with public meetings, said Judge Fawcett, and unless Worden had committed some personal offense he could not be ordered from the meeting. The Board might have removed him, however, from the well or from the meeting, by majority vote.

"Two members of the assembly objected to the ruling of the Chair," said Justice Fawcett. "Their appeal from the decision of the presiding officer to have the matter decided by a vote of the meeting was denied. It does not appear that a majority vote would have sustained the ruling of the Chair."

Justice Fawcett quoted from the code of ordinances, Chapter 1, Article 2, Section 9, to uphold the public nature of the meeting.

Referring to the special privilege by which reporters are allowed to sit in the well, a position from which they are better able to hear the board's discussion than from the seats of spectators, Justice Fawcett said:

"That privilege, having been used in connection with business by all of those who used it, had developed into a revocable right which was a species of property because of the use to which it was being put.

"If the Mayor had a personal difference with Worden or if he took affront at what Worden wrote about the meetings of the board, it did not lie with him to deny the plaintiff's representatives a privilege granted to all members of the press by the board.

"Since Mr. Worden was admittedly not offensive in word or action of any kind, and had no controversy with the board, and did not say or do anything to deserve it, the presiding officer was not exercising any function vested in him as such officer when he denied admittance to the plaintiff's agent to a seat in the reporters' well."

COMMUNIST LEAFLET ATTACKS W. M. WOOD

Circular Scattered Broadcast in Lawrence Also Slurs President Wilson.

Special to The New York Times.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Aug. 4.—Circulars purporting to be issued by the local "Lawrence Communist Party" and bearing an attack on William M. Wood for closing the mills of the American Woolen Company were thrown about the streets today by parties now sought by the police. Copies have been forwarded to the Department of Justice, and City Marshal Timonthy J. O'Brien is directing an investigation in hopes of locating responsible parties.

The circular calls upon its readers to spread the knowledge of Communism and concludes as follows:

"Help us to educate, organize and prepare the working class of America for the coming workers' revolution under the banner of the Communist Party and the Third International."

It further declares that "the workers in Russia have found the way out," and explains that they control everything there, that "the rate of wages is set by labor unions and unemployed workers get full wages from the State during unemployment. In case of food shortage the workers and their families are fed, while parasites of Mr. Wood's class starve."

"Woodrow Wilson, the obedient servant of our trust," the circular says, "broke international law as well as United States laws to blockade Soviet Russia. Western Europe was cut off from its chief supplies of food and raw materials, so that American profiteers could 'feed the world,' double the already high cost of living and get dividends of 1,000 per cent. or more.

"There are still not enough markets. You have produced too much. That's why you have starved amidst plenty.

"In order to abolish unemployment you must abolish capitalism. You must overthrow the present capitalistic Government, establish a workers' Government, organize a Red army for its defense and take over all the industries."

The circular predicts the following:

"The biggest industrial crisis ever seen is on the way. And Mr. Wood will use it to cut your wages; to employ still more children to slave for the grownup parasites and to break up your unions."

COL. HUNT ACQUITTED IN BERGDOLL CASE

Colonel John E. Hunt, former Commandant of Castle Williams Prison on Governors Island, who was court-martialed in connection with the escape of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, slacker, was acquitted by the Military Court which tried him, and the verdict was approved by Major Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, commander of the Department of the East, who reviewed it yesterday afternoon.

This announcement was made early last evening by Lieut. Col. Charles C. Cresson, Trial Judge Advocate, who conducted the prosecution.

The specific charge against Colonel Hunt was that he had not provided sufficient guards for the prisoner. Bergdoll eluded his guards at his home in Philadelphia on May 20 during a trip from Governors Island to Hagerstown, Md., near which place the slacker reported he had hidden a large sum in gold.

On the strength of representations to the War Department by attorneys for the Bergdoll family, Colonel Hunt was ordered to release Bergdoll under guard to make the trip. Two Sergeants of nearly twenty years' service were detailed to guard the wealthy deserter. Since the mission was to be confidential, Colonel Hunt did not order the prisoner handcuffed, it was brought out at the trial.

Fully exonerated, the Colonel was complimented by his brother officers when the verdict was published. Colonel Hunt is a veteran of the Cuban and Philippine campaigns, and during the war served as a prison expert.

OPENS BEDFORD CELLS.

Mrs. Christian's First Act Is to Release Riot Participants.

Special to The New York Times.

BEDFORD, N. Y., Aug. 4.—When Mrs. Frank Christian of Elmira took charge of the State Reformatory today her first move was to arrange to release from prison cells fifty prisoners who participated in the big race riot in Bedford twelve days ago.

Dr. Menas S. Gregory of Bellevue Hospital, who is one of the managers of the reformatory, took Mrs. Christian to the new psychopathic ward, where Dr. Gregory is treating hysterical patients. There Dorothy Jett, Macedias, Lillian Rosenstein and other mischievous and excitable prisoners were found to be serene. They have been receiving the hot bath and ice pack treatment to quiet them. In the prison the girls complained to Mrs. Christian that they had been kept on a bread and water diet for seven days and have not been permitted to leave their cells for exercise in twelve days.

Mrs. Christian promised to let them out for daily exercise immediately.

"I do not expect to remain in charge for more than two weeks," said Mrs. Christian. "I am simply going to get the institution in shape to turn over to some one else. I mean to keep discipline but I will be humane. I favor more recreation for the girls."

HELD IN $100,000 BAIL.

Clerk Accused of Complicity in Disposal of Stolen Bonds.

Bail of $100,000 was fixed by Magistrate Smith in the Tombs Court yesterday to detain Louis Lax, 30, of 1,842 Seventh Avenue, on a charge of complicity in the attempted disposal of bonds amounting to $118,000, stolen on March 29 from Harriman & Co., 111 Broadway.

Detectives Mindheim and Meringolo of Deputy Police Commissioner Lahey's staff asked that Lax be held on suspicion of having acted in concet with Anthony Colonna of 357 East 118th Street in disposing of the bonds, after thieves had taken them from Harry Gardner, 15 years old, a messenger for Harriman & Co. Colonna was held in the same amount of bail, and on a similar charge, when arraigned on Tuesday. He and Lax, who was a clerk in the financial district, will be taken from the Tombs today for examination before the Magistrate.

KING ALFONSO'S PLAN FOR SAVING AUSTRIA

He Meant to Deal Directly with Emperor Carl to Effect Peace in 1917.

HAD REASON TO HATE KAISER

Wilhelm Insulted Him as a Youth of 18—Alfonso Thought the Kaiser Crazy.

MISTRUSTED THE DIPLOMATS

PARIS, Thursday, Aug. 5.—In publishing today the third section of an official despatch detailing the willingness of the King of Spain to make an effort for peace in the Spring of 1917 by seeking to detach Austria from Germany, the Matin says:

"In the second section of the report of the King of Spain's conversation with the French Military Attaché on March 2, 1917, published yesterday, the King developed the real gist of his argument. The Allies, he said, would gain successes on the Western front, but not enough to end the war that year. On the Eastern front the situation was less promising, for, to put it bluntly, they were being betrayed by Russia.

"The King's insistence on the Russian 'treachery' reveals his dominant thought—to convince France that a continuance of the war would be only for Russia's benefit and chiefly at the expense of Austria. Russia did not deserve the Allies' consideration, therefore the Allies had lots to lose and little to gain by continuing the war.

"In the section of the report which appears below the King puts forward his plan for saving Austria, to whose royal family he is closely related. He suggests that instead of continuing the war the Allies should endeavor to dislocate the Teutonic alliance. This could be done by the severance of Austria from Germany.

"In most definite terms the King says, and repeats, that he is ready personally to conduct negotiations to this end.

Protested Giving Russia Too Much.

"The King, going right to the heart of things, discussed with me for three-quarters of an hour the advantages to be gained by dislocating the enemy coalition, after more than half beating it, rather than continue the war, which, carried on à outrance, would only serve certain special interests," continues the attaché's dispatch.

"He explained precisely what he meant by that.

"'The war aims announced by the Allies are perfectly clear,' he said, 'but the practical realization of their projects will not be easy, and may lead you to commit monstrous errors.

"'Have you, yes or no, for your aim to free the world and yourselves from the German tyranny, or do you propose to strengthen this tyranny in doubling it with the Slav tyranny?

"'To give back to Russia all that she has lost, which she herself would never be able to reconquer?

"'To grant her the protectorate over all Poland, some of whose inhabitants will not be particularly delighted by the joys in store for them?

"'To subordinate to her the Czechs, the most intelligent and most instructed of all the Slavs?

"'To make her the moral tutor of new Serbia, which will stretch to the Adriatic?

"'To give her the Straits, with Constantinople, &c. * * * Do you really think of all that?'

"The King let it be understood that that is a big recompense for the conduct of the Soukhomlinoffs, Sturmers and their crew. * * *

"'Austria, shorn of the Trentino, of Trieste, of Croatia, of half of Hungary, of Bohemia, &c., will form, to the great delight of Russia and Germany, a little kingdom, a province, of 20,000,000 inhabitants, who will automatically form part of German Central Europe,' he said.

"'Germany will thus get back the 20,000,000 inhabitants you will have taken away from her in the east and west.

"'The immense Russia, which tomorrow will extend from Vladivostok to the Adriatic, and the Central Europe that you will have carefully reconstructed and whose territories are absolutely intact, will be the final outcome of this war.

"'All the neutrals expected something better from allied clairvoyance.

"'In France, as in most of the allied countries, the penny press has decided that Austria should no longer exist.

"'The different Russian embassies know precisely the cost and the range of these new convictions. But all these manifestations are not reasoning.'

"In brief, the King considers that instead of suppressing Austria we ought to make use of her, in separating her if possible from Germany.

"He added: 'If you would like to utilize me in this direction, I am ready to move when the time comes.

"'Do not think that it will be a very easy operation.

"'You quite understand that I have no idea of a direct mediation with England and Germany. I don't care about trying to separate the grappling bulldogs.

Alfonso's Row with the Kaiser.

"'Besides, I think you know how I feel about the German Emperor.

"'We have looked askance at each other for the last twelve years, since the Vigo business, which some one must have told you, though probably an incorrect version.

"'When I was eighteen, Emperor William appointed me Colonel of one of his regiments. It is the usual thing, and, besides, he thought it would annoy you people.

"'Some months afterward he passes by Vigo. I go down to greet him, aboard his ship, wearing the ordinary field uniform (feld Anzuck) by the advice of his military attaché.

"'On the way I practice all by myself at saluting in a properly stiff and Prussian manner, so as to make a hit with him.

"'When I set foot on the deck I saw that the whole crowd were in full dress around him, and I realized what a break I had been led to make. But, worse still, when I came before him I forgot all my stiffness, all the fine practice I had been having, and I burst out laughing. * * *

"'He made an awful fuss, called me down before his whole staff—and mine—and you know how I like that sort of thing. He called my attention to my casual attitude, the incorrectness of my attire, &c.

"'When one comes to salute the German Emperor, one should wear full dress. Thou shouldst not have forgotten it," I was told.

"'"But it was thy own military attaché who gave me the wrong advice."

"'"What! 'Thy' military attaché! Did I perchance permit thee to use thee and thy with me?" he said. "And did I ever give thee that authorization?" &c., * * * and the scene continued in the same tone. * * *

Told Kaiser He Was Crazy.

"'Since that date there's no dirty little trick he hasn't tried to play me, especially during my first visit to Germany.

"'Three weeks ago he sent me, through my cousin, the Emperor of Austria, the text of the German note on the blockade, two days before its publication. He asked me to give him my private opinion of it, just as a friend and comrade. I simply answered:

"'"I think thou art quite crazy."

"'A week later my Government sent him a longer and more studied reply, which he can't have liked any more than the former.

"'The intermediaries of whom I can make use in regard to the Central Empires are not very numerous.

"'My Ambassador at Berlin, Polo de Barbare, is a worthy functionary, but entirely "boche," and you can imagine I'm not going to take him into my confidence.

"'My Ambassador at Vienna sees things more clearly, but he has unfortunately lost most of his credit over there.

"'He managed to get hold of a Russian woman as mistress, whom he kept in Vienna after the declaration of war, and whose husband was condemned to death by the Austrians for espionage.

"'That's a fine business, and you can guess that they are naturally a bit shy of him.

"'I don't want, either, to take the Pope into my confidence. He doesn't know sufficiently what he wants, now alliophile to the limit, now bochophile. I think you don't keep him sufficiently well informed.

"'In Madrid, you can well understand, I don't want to confide my business to Ratibor (German Ambassador), who is quite off his head, and who besides ought to be kept quite in the dark, in virtue of his position and his nationality.

"'As for Furstenberg, the Austrian Ambassador, I won't tell him anything either. He is headstrong, lacking in judgment and does everything wrong. I can well do without him.

Would Deal with Carl and Hungary.

"'If ever I took up anything of the kind I would deal directly with the Emperor and the Hungarians.

"'The Emperor Carl is no eagle, as you are aware. But there is no need for him to be one.

"'I say what I think about him because family considerations have never prevented me from calling men and things by their names.

"'The Court of Vienna is a hotbed of intrigue, in the midst of which the new Emperor can't move easily. But he has good-will, and he can be helped.

"'I know his Court better than he does, and my mother knows it better than I.

"'I knew the former Archduke, Francis Ferdinand.

"'He used to laugh in his sleeve at the trick he was going to play on his nephew Carl, the present Emperor; by grabbing his crown in favor of his own boy, who, as you know, couldn't legally inherit.

"'I marked the successive elevations in rank of the Duchess of Hohenberg, whom I had known as a simple lady in waiting, during one of his visits to Madrid, &c. * * *

"'Through my uncle, the Archduke Frederick, we are kept informed about everything. I have been cultivating for some time my connections with the Court of Vienna for any purpose that may be useful and without exposing my hand.

"'I have been carefully studying the distribution of the German and Austrian Armies on the eastern front.

"'The Germans have mingled a part of their army with that of Austria, but this mixture is by no means inseparable.

"'I keep myself well informed, and study the question passionately, but for the present, as I said, I am chiefly occupied in improving our connections with the Austrian Court, so as to make them closer and mobilize influence.

"'At the right moment, when France gives me the signal, I will go to Vienna, perhaps passing through Paris on my way.

"'All that must be thought over and carefully weighed in view of future possibilities.'"

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Secretary Tumulty will leave Washington tomorrow for Dayton to attend the notification of Governor Cox. It is expected that he will take part in conferences over the conduct of the campaign with Governor Cox and his campaign manager, George White. It is believed here that Mr. Tumulty goes as the personal representative of the President.

A copy of his notification speech was sent by Governor Cox to President Wilson, who has read it. There is reason to believe that the President approves the stand taken by the nominee on the League of Nations issue and is generally pleased with his exposition of Democratic principles and policies.

The fact that Mr. Tumulty is leaving Washington at this time was mentioned today as additional evidence that the President's health is improving.

Mr. Tumulty will travel by automobile with John Barnett, former Committeeman of Colorado; Dr. J. W. Coughlin, former Committeeman of Massachusetts, and Angus McLean, Committeeman from North Carolina.

PRESS CONFERENCE WILL OPEN TODAY

THEY FIND CANADA LOYAL

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 5.—The Imperial Press Conference delegates left for Ottawa this afternoon to hold their business meetings. They were entertained and shown points of interest, including a trip through the harbor and shipbuilding yard up to the moment of their departure.

At a luncheon given by the Canadian Club to the visitors here today Sir Gilbert Parker, who was one of the speakers, asserted emphatically that none of the Dominions would ever become republics. There was some republican sentiment in Canada, he said, but it was not representative of the true Canadian.

"We are going out to the Canadian West," he said, "and I feel that we will find the same loyalty there as here.

"I have unbounded faith in the Dominion of Canada. No Britisher or French-Canadian wants the kind of Constitution to exist here that exists in the United States. There has never been a Constitution as free as that one granted to the French-Canadians in 1759. Whatever may be the faults of England, and they may be many; whatever may be the faults of England's statesmen, and there are many, that act of 1759 is a glorious tribute to the splendid intellect of the statesmen of that day."

Canada must stand with England, not behind her, he said. The future was bright with promise and hope.

Lord Burnham, Chairman of the conference, referred to the harmony existing between the French and English speaking races in Canada.

He could not forget that he was speaking on the 4th of August, a day consecrated for all time in history as marking the beginning of the union of nations in the World War.

Speaking of conditions overseas Lord Burnham said that they had done better than some feared, and not so well as some had hoped. "We have not yet got back to work," he said, but he did not attribute that fault to any one particular cause. War weariness, perhaps, was largely responsible. The workmen had had the lesson of chronic unemployment and were beginning to realize the gravity of the industrial problem. He believed that with good will of purpose the problem would be solved, but not unless the mother country could depend upon the cordial co-operation of the Dominions.

Seek Cheaper British News Cables.

OTTAWA, Aug. 4 (Associated Press.)—Government subsidy for cable companies and lower cable rates to insure the fullest interchange of news and opinion within the British Empire will be urged in a resolution to be presented at the Imperial Press Conference here tomorrow.

The Governments of the empire will be asked to lay down new cables and make increased grants to cable companies, with the understanding that the control of news services must always remain in the hands of newspaper men and not be subjected to official influence.

SHOOT AT PRISONER IN BROADWAY CHASE

Three Autos Collide Near Path of Speeding Car Bearing Drug Agents.

Five shots were fired and three automobiles collided trying to get out of the way of a speeding automobile carrying four revenue agents and three prisoners in a chase after an alleged drug seller near Lincoln Square near Broadway last night in which hundreds of persons joined.

The excitement began in Lincoln Square Park where Revenue Agent McCarver arrested Frederick White of 346 West 46th Street, on a charge of violating the Drug act. He was taking his prisoner to an automobile in which there were three other men, just arrested, when White slipped out of his coat and made a dash for liberty. After running a few feet he stumbled and fell. McCarver fell on top of him, but White managed to get up first and started off again with McCarver hard behind.

At Broadway and Sixty-third Street McCarver, who was followed by a large crowd, drew his revolver and fired five shots in the air, but White kept on running.

Internal Revenue agents who were guarding the other prisoners in the auto ordered the chauffeur to hasten in the direction from which the shots came. It was while the car was making high speed down Broadway that three automobiles, in attempting to get out of the way, collided. White was caught by McCarver as he was about to leap over the Central Park wall.

The three other prisoners were Michael Burns, 21 years old, of 206 East Fifty-ninth Street; James McKeun, 32 years old, of 301 West Fifty-ninth Street, and Albert A. Willson, 33 years old, of 133 West 151st Street. According to the police, the last two were "runners" for White. The agents said they gave Burns a marked $1 bill to buy some narcotics from White and the latter did so. All four prisoners were charged with violating the Harrison Drug Act.

BELIEVE FRENCHMAN COUGHLIN KIDNAPPER

Postal Inspector Says Prisoner, August Pascol, Is Well to Do and Prominent.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—August Pascol, a Frenchman who has been in this country but a short time, is the man arrested by the Pennsylvania State Police at Egg Harbor, N. J., on Monday in connection with the kidnapping of Blakely Coughlin and the subsequent extortion of $12,000 from the infant's parents.

Further arrests are deemed certain either tomorrow or Friday. "The crank," as Pascol has been called, will be brought to Philadelphia within forty-eight hours, and arraigned soon afterward.

Major Lynn G. Adams, commandant of the State Constabulary, and Mr. Leonard are convinced that Pascol is not only the blackmailer who obtained the $12,000, but is also the actual abductor.

"There is no question in my mind but that the man knows where the baby is," said Mr. Leonard tonight. "I believe that we could convict him today on the charge of kidnapping on the strength of the letters which he wrote. But what we want now is to recover the baby and we are bending every effor in that direction."

Pascol appears to be well educated, but blisters and callouses on his hands give evidence that he has recently been engaged in manual labor.

The inspector added that Pascol, who the Pennsylvania State police and the postal authorities say they believe is the man wanted, is well to do and prominent in the community where he said he lived. Leonard declared he believes the child is in charge of persons in Philadelphia who do not know it is the kidnapped baby.

Ponzi Refuses Inquiry to Show His Assets; Run on His Boston Office Practically Ended

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Charles Ponzi rejected today the plan of J. Weston Allen, Attorney General of the State, that the latter should put an auditor at work on Ponzi's accounts to ascertain the exact amount of his assets.

"There is no law which can force me to show all my assets," he said. "My accounts are in the hands of Mr. Pride to reveal my liabilities and they are going to stay in his hands until he gets through with them. When my liabilities are established, then I will produce enough cash to cover them, and no more."

The offices of the Securities Exchange Company, conducted by Ponzi, continued throughout the day to honor all notes presented by an ever diminishing line of investors. At the close of the eighth day the run appeared to have reached the end.

Holders of notes were paid off today at the rate of sixty an hour, and at no time were more than 100 waiting in line, as compared with hundreds on previous days.

Ponzi and his wife attended a theatre tonight, and his appearance was the signal for shouts and cheers from the audience, to which he responded by bowing from his box.

Edwin L. Pride, who is auditing Ponzi's accounts for the Federal authorities, had a private conference today with Daniel A. Shea, Assistant United States Attorney. The accountant had with him two bundles of Ponzi's certificates, which had been redeemed yesterday. He estimated that they represented payments of about $500,000. The examination of the accounts was progressing, he said, but considerable time would be required to complete it.

PRESIDENT THANKS MINERS FOR OBEYING

Lewis, Who Receives Message, Sends Word to Kansas Workers to Return.

ATTACKS HOWAT BY WIRE

State President Flatly Refuses to Heed National President's Directions.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 4.—President Wilson has expressed to John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, his gratification over the prompt action taken by Lewis in directing the striking coal miners of Illinois and Indiana to return to work. Lewis received this letter from President Wilson today:

"Your action in response to my statement urging the striking miners to return to work has gratified me very deeply indeed. It is the action of a patriotic citizen and a man of vision and prescience. I am glad that you feel as I do in urging the men to return to work. I was speaking in their interest as much as in the interest of the general public and of the industrial energy of the country."

President Lewis sent telegrams today to thirty local unions in Kansas ordering the striking miners there to return to work. According to Mr. Lewis, 488 miners are on strike in the Kansas field. In his message President Lewis declared that the strikes were in violation of a contract between the United Mine Workers and the Southern Coal Operators' Association.

Mr. Lewis also sent a telegram to Alexander Howat, taking him to task for fostering the trouble in the Kansas field. In his message he said:

"A continuation of the mad course you are pursuing in Kansas will bring further condemnation to your organization and stamp you as a man devoid of principle and destitute of honor. The miners of Kansas, through the incessant and continuous strikes which you have directly ordered or sanctioned, are gradually being reduced to a state of poverty and woe which is tragical and most indefensible. This office is in receipt of appeals from many members of the organization in Kansas pleading for the intervention of the international union to save them from your ruinous government. For this reason I can no longer ignore your stultifying actions. I propose that the provisions of the joint agreement between the miners and operators in District 14 shall be carried out in just the same manner as is done in every other district within jurisdiction of our union. The childish wails of defiance which will doubtless emanate from you upon receipt of this message will not in any manner affect the situation. The miners of Kansas shall not be permitted to be sacrificed to the whims and caprices of a demagogue."

Lewis then informed Howat of his telegrams to the local unions ordering them to return to work. He also informed the Kansas President that he had directed a committee of the International Executive Board to make an investigation of the "intolerable conditions" in the Kansas district and make a report of their findings.

Production in the Indiana fields was practically normal again today. Most of the miners returned to work at the beginning of the week, following receipt of Lewis's message ordering them to end the strike, which last week caused an almost complete suspension of mining in Indiana and Illinois.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Aug. 4.—Alexander M. Howat, President of the Kansas Mine Operators' Union, sent a telegram tonight to John L. Lewis, President of the International Union, refusing to abide by the instructions received from Lewis today that striking coal miners in Kansas return to work immediately.

Howat styles the Lewis dispatch "a direct insult," and he adds:

"The cowardly insinuation you have made that I have called the miners on strike at this time is without the least semblance of truth and is in conformity with many other statements you have made."

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Conditions at the Illinois coal fields were reported today as improved and operators began to take a more optimistic view of the situation. Mining, they said, was slowly being resumed.

Many of the miners who voted Monday to remain on strike in spite of union orders to return are expected to reconsider their vote and go back to work within two or three days.

DRAFT OBJECTOR ON HUNGER STRIKE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Benjamin J. Salmon, conscientious objector, whose release has been asked by Parley P. Christensen, the candidate for President of the Farmer-Labor Party, is now a prisoner in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, near Washington, where he is under observation to determine whether he is of sound mind. Salmon, who arrived at St Elizabeth's last week, is on a hunger strike and is being forcibly fed.

Salmon was tried originally at Camp Dodge, Iowa, for desertion, disobedience of orders and for distributing literature to soldiers tending to influence them not to accept any kind of service in the army and tending to induce insubordination and disloyalty among them. His original sentence of twenty-five years was reduced to five years in April, 1919. Since July, 1919, he has been serving a sentence at Fort Douglas, Utah.

The prisoners confined at Fort Douglas have not been required to do any work except that connected with their own upkeep.

In April Salmon announced in a letter to the War Department that he did not intend to do any more labor, even of the kind required of him in connection with preparing his food. The authorities did not discover that Salmon was failing to do his share of the work until about July 14. It seems that another prisoner, whose sentence expired July 12, had been doing Salmon's work as well as his own. The other prisoners reported that they would not cook food or do labor for this man, who refused to do his share. Salmon was then furnished his ration daily and was given the opportunity to cook it if he so desired. He refused and went on a hunger strike.

He was examined each day by the surgeon, and after eleven days' strike he was taken into the hospital for observation and treatment. Forcible feeding was then resorted to.

SOUTHERN IRISHMEN ASK DOMINION RULE

COMMONS SHOWS INTEREST

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The case for dominion home rule in Ireland was argued by a deputation of Irish business men, Unionists and Nationalists together, from Dublin and Cork, before Premier Lloyd George and other Ministers at Downing Street today. The deputation was appointed at a conference of professional and business men held at Cork yesterday, and undertook a hurried journey to London in order to make representations to the Prime Minister on the subject.

Members of the deputation claimed that they embraced both Unionists and Nationalists, Protestants and Catholics. They argued that the present Home Rule bill was not desired by any section in Ireland and would do nothing to ally present discontent. They urged that the Irish problem could be solved in an acceptable manner only by an immediate grant to Ireland of a dominion status within the empire, and appealed for generous financial treatment "in view of the overtaxation of Ireland in the past."

The effect of the Prime Minister's reply was that the deputation spoke for only a limited number of Irishmen, and that if proposals of that kind were to receive consideration they must be made to the Government by a body representing a much larger section of Irish opinion.

LONDON, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—The Premier's reception twice of the Cork and Dublin deputation was the cause of the greatest interest in the lobby of the House of Commons. Here the belief was expressed that the views of men of such high standing in South and West Ireland, many of whom formerly were opposed to Home Rule, could not have failed of careful consideration by the Ministers.

"The Irish volunteers are being led by professional soldiers—men who served in the British army and are disgruntled, either respecting their pay or as regards nationalism," says a dispatch to the Daily Mail from Dublin.

"The men who shared the rooms of General Lucas (who recently was kidnapped but later escaped), as guards during his captivity were well educated and trained officers of this type, who now are holding posts as senior officers in the Sinn Fein volunteers.

"Nearly all the noncommissioned men of the volunteer force also served in the British Army during the war."

Bar Youths from Emigrating.

DUBLIN, Aug. 4. (Associated Press).—The decree of The Dail Eireann ("Irish Republican Parliament") prohibiting emigration from Ireland probably will have the effect of preventing the departure of many Irishmen for America and Australia, which at present are the most popular destinations for emigrants.

The Sinn Feiners for some time have been discouraging young men from leaving the country, and this official action did not come as a surprise. Women have constituted the majority of Irish emigrants for several months.

The Sinn Fein movement is conducted almost entirely by young men, and the decree has their support, as well as that of the extreme Laborites.

Propaganda to discourage emigration has taken many forms, including moving pictures and popular songs which compare the advantages of Ireland to those of the countries to which Irishmen usually emigrate, to the disparagement of the latter.

All Ireland Watching Mannix.

DUBLIN, Aug. 4.—All Ireland is closely watching the fate of Archbishop Mannix. No question is more eagerly canvassed than whether he will succeed in visiting this country. Public opinion is convinced that the diversion of liners from Queenstown to Liverpool is not due to navigation difficulties, but is a subterfuge directed against the Roman Catholic Archbishop.

Charleville and Kilmallock, scenes of recent disturbances, are proclaimed to be under the curfew law from Friday next. It is pointed out that the former town is the birthplace of Dr. Mannix and that one of his first public engagements in Ireland was to open a fête there.

De Valera in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Eamonn de Valera, "President of the Irish Republic," says his future moves "are somewhat indefinite." When asked today if there was any special significance in his sudden arrival in Washington he said there was none.

"There have been so many reports about my planning to sail for Europe," said de Valera, "that the people of the United States are laughing at them."

De Valera arrived in the city yesterday, and, accompanied by Rossa F. Downing, President of the Padrias H. Pearse Branch of the Friends of Irish Freedom, visited the tomb of Washington at Mount Vernon.

WOUNDED DOUGHBOY JUST OUT OF RUSSIA

14 MONTHS IN HOSPITALS

Suffered from Cold, Hunger and Lack of Treatment—Freed by Soviet, He Reaches Finland.

VIBORG, Finland, Aug. 1 (Associated Press).—After seventeen months in Soviet Russia, where he was twice wounded and captured by the Bolsheviki on the Archangel front on March 1, 1919, Corporal Arthur Prince of the 339th United States Infantry arrived at the Finnish frontier yesterday evening. On the train with Prince, whose home is in Detroit, came 300 French, Danish and Swedish refugees from Russia, who are being repatriated by their respective Governments.

Prince was one of four Americans sent out on this refugee train by the Bolshevist authorities at Moscow. Among the other Americans who arrived were two correspondents, who crossed Russia from Vladivostok, and Mrs. Emily Sarman of New York City, a refugee from Samara.

Thirty other Americans who have gathered at Moscow from various points in Russia and Siberia are awaiting in the Bolshevist capital for permission of the Soviet authorities to leave the country, and all are anxious for the American Government to take steps to obtain their release.

In tattered clothing and worn shoes given him by Americans in Moscow, a cripple from his wounds and a broken leg improperly treated, convalescing from a kidney disease and suffering from loss of weight as a result of fourteen months of scant diet in Russian hospitals, Corporal Prince has entered for a two weeks' stay at the Quarantine Camp on the Finnish frontier in accordance with the regulations imposed upon all persons leaving Russia. After his stay in quarantine he will report to the American Consulate in Helsingfors for communication with the American army authorities as to where he is to report for duty.

Capture by the Bolsheviki.

Seventeen months ago, while leading a patrol through frozen North Russia 250 versts (166 miles) southeast of Archangel, over a snowshoe trail four feet deep in the snow, eight Americans were ambuscaded by the Bolsheviki. Prince was hit in the knee and his leg was broken at the hip, while another bullet struck him in the side as he was crawling toward the American line. The Corporal was captured and placed on a sleigh which started on a 250 versts trip, requiring five days in zero weather, to Kotlas, without knowledge of the people who had made him prisoner or their language.

No Americans knew of his presence in Russia until more than a year later, when Prince recovered sufficiently to go to the Bolshevist Foreign Office and ask how to get home. When the Americans in Moscow learned of his presence they cared for him until permission was received for him to take the refugee train to the border.

From Kotlas, where Prince first received medical attention, he was removed by hospital train to Kostrama, in Middle Russia, where he underwent seven months of intense suffering and three operations necessitated by the attempts of the Russian surgeons to treat his broken leg, the tendons of which had become taut as a result of improper attention on the long journey from the front.

On Sept. 28 last Prince was discharged from a hospital and sent as a prisoner to the Tula concentration camp, composed of anti-Bolshevist prisoners. Here after ten days his wounds suppurated afresh, necessitating his again going into a hospital. There he remained for a month, when he was transferred to Moscow, 120 miles to the north.

Worst Suffering in Moscow.

At Moscow Prince says he experienced the worst sufferings of his entire stay in Russia. The hospital was heated only two hours daily in the November weather, there were untrained nurses and only a few doctors in the hospital, and also a shortage of medicine. The food conditions were bad. Through the friendship of an English Jew, a Bolshevist soldier, who had been wounded while fighting on the southern front, Prince learned of an international hospital maintained by Hungarians in Moscow, where conditions were reported to be better.

Permission was obtained for his transfer to this hospital, but in three weeks the hospital authorities had not been able to furnish transportation for him across the city of Moscow. Finally his friend, whose wounds did not prevent him from walking, went to the hospital officials and told them that he had a revolver and five bullets in it and that he would kill four Russians and then himself unless conveyance was obtained for himself and Prince. The transportation was secured. Prince went to the hospital from which he was released May 22.

Then he was taken to a home formerly maintained by the British in Moscow, and under the better treatment and food he had improved so much in four months that he was discharged and sent to a concentration camp for Austrian prisoners arriving from Siberia for repatriation. The French Red Cross here issued him rations, which he cooked himself.

During his fourteen months in hospitals Prince said he lived on a daily ration of a quarter of a pound of cooked grain, three-quarters of a pound of black bread, which often was so full of straw that he was unable to eat it; salt herring soup, imitation tea and an ounce and a half of sugar. He received a pound of tobacco monthly.

HUGHES SAYS MANNIX HELPED THE ENEMY

Also Stirred Up Sectarian Bitterness in Australia—Hints the Prelate May Not Return.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Aug. 3.—W. A. Hughes, Premier of Australia, speaking here today, attacked Archbishop Daniel J. Mannix, who is now on his way from the United States to the British Isles after having been notified he would be barred from Ireland by the British Government. The Premier's speech was virtually a reply to a statement made public in New York City by Archbishop Mannix on July 29, in which he vigorously denounced Mr. Hughes.

"Demonstrations in America favorable to Archbishop Mannix," said Mr. Hughes, "were carefully stage managed in a manner similar to that pursued in those arranged in Australia, and the people who acclaimed him there were Sinn Feiners, possibly leavened with Bolsheviki or other wild fanatics. Archbishop Mannix does not represent Australia on the Irish or any other question, and is the acknowledged Sinn Fein leader in this country.

"When he arrived in Australia seven years ago," the Premier continued, "Australia was freer from sectarian bitterness than any country in the world. Spurred by boundless personal ambition and hatred of Great Britain, Archbishop Mannix has fanned the dying embers of religious bigotry into a fierce blaze, gathering around him every fanatic alien and Sinn Feiner in the country. He worked incessantly during the war to prevent recruiting, and to help the enemy defeat the Allies, working great harm to Australia."

Referring to an alleged threat by Archbishop Mannix to "deal with Hughes" upon the prelate's return to Australia, the Premier said:

"He may, but, first of all, he has to return."

Relieved the Naval Governor Who Banned Guam Whistling

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Captain W. W. Gilmer, Naval Governor of Guam, who recently issued an order making whistling on the Island punishable by $5 fine, has been relieved and Captain John C. Wettengel appointed to the Governorship. Secretary Daniels in announcing the relief of Captain Gilmer said the whistling order had no bearing on the action taken.

Mr. Daniels announced that Captain Waldo B. Evans had been ordered to Samoa to become Naval Governor, relieving Commander W. J. Terhune.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 4.—The American State Department has informed the Mexican Government that passports of all Americans who cross to Lower California in order to help Governor Cantu, in his revolt against the Federal Government, will be voided.

The Mexican Foreign Office has been informed that the American Government has no idea of asking for the extradition of Villa, and that it would appreciate de la Huerta keeping Villa under close survillance in order to prevent new difficuties, both international and in the interior.

The shake-up in the de la Huerta cabinet means the elimination of all military officers except the Secretary of War. General Trevino, head of the Department of Industry and Commerce, will be sent to France as minister; Miguel Covarrubias will be sent to England. Jose Innociente Lugo, a former Senator and well known lawyer from the State of Guerrero, is appointed Secretary of Gobernation.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—Mobilization of 3,000 men, under the command of General Abelardo Rodriguez, for the campaign against Estaban Cantu, the insurgent Governor of Lower California, has been ordered by the Government, according to a statement issued last night by General P. Elias Calles, Secretary of War. He declared that more troops would be sent to Lower California if necessary, and would be led by General Angel Flores. It was indicated that the Government does not consider the rebellion there of great importance.

Chinese and Japanese residents of Lower California have sent an appeal to the United States Government, asking that they be given permission to cross the frontier into California during the campaign against Governor Cantu.

EXISTENCE IN MOSCOW A ROUND OF MISERY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Aug. 4.—What life in Moscow is like at the present moment is vividly portrayed in a letter from an Italian war correspondent, Luciano Magrini, who accompanied the Italian Socialist deputation there on a special mission of inquiry for the Milan Secolo newspaper.

Unlike Petrograd, Moscow counts a population as numerous as ever, only it is in a much filthier condition. The public services are less well organized and official corruption is far more widespread. Street sweepings and rubbish from private dwellings are piled and burned in the middle of the roads. There are fewer street cars, but more cabs than in Petrograd, and fares are cheaper. You can drive through the city for half an hour for the comparatively modest sum of 2,000 rubles.

The postal service between the city and country districts is gratuitous, but writing paper and envelopes are practically unprocurable. So scarce is paper that the Government allows only three daily newspapers to publish, the Isvestia, Pradva and Economiska. There should sell at two rubles apiece, yet it is extremely difficult to obtain a copy for anything under 20 rubles.

Each inhabitant is entitled to 300 grammes (about 10 ounces) of bread every second day, besides the supplementary rations fixed for three categories of workers. In reality, distribution of provisions is subject to constant stoppage. On account of habitual bread robberies people have sometimes to make 300 grammes last out a whole week.

Small, dirty cafés exist where it is possible to get served with a glass of milk and three biscuits for 1,000 rubles. Magrini discovered a tiny restaurant where he was able to obtain soup, a slice of meat, potatoes, two pieces of white bread, a glass of lemonade and a cup of tea for 4,000 rubles. Vodka may be had on the sly at 25,000 rubles a bottle.

The Muscovites think and talk about the coming Winter with a terror which it pitiable to witness. "For us," they whisper, "it means a Winter of death." Already their city has undergone vast damage in the quest for wood. Shops and private residences whose contents had been officially confiscated have since been stripped of every scrap of woodwork. Scaffolding surrounding buildings under repair has suffered a like fate and not only wooden dwellings, but even the great sheds attached to factories of every kind have likewise been demolished and consumed. The current Summer price of firewood stands at 22,000 rubles per ton.

There is a notable revival in religious practices. As much praying is going on in museums as in churches. The grand statues to Emperor Alexander and Nicholas I. have been torn from their pedestals at the Kremlin Palace and in place of the fine equestrian monument to Skobeleff in front of what was formerly the Governor's palace the futurist sculptor Kognonko erected a huge woden polychrome memorial to Stienka Razin, a famous brigand of the Volga. When Lenin came to inspect it he found it so outrageously ultra-futuristic that he ordered it to be removed at once and shut up in the courtyard. The brigand has now been replaced by a stone obelisk adorned with the figure of a woman outstretching her arms to liberty.

ACTION INVOLVES 26 FIRMS

REVIEWS STUTZ CORNER

Members Who Voted to Expel Him Had Sold Motor Stock They Did Not Own, Says Complaint.

Allan A. Ryan yesterday filed suit in the Supreme Court against William H. Remick, as President of the New York Stock Exchange, and members of the Governing Committee to recover $1,000,000 for damages, which he alleges he suffered through a conspiracy on the part of certain of the defendants, in connection with the barring of the stock of the Stutz Motor Car Company from the lists of the Exchange, and subsequently in causing his expulsion from the organization. The members of the Committee whom Mr. Ryan charged with having sold Stutz stock "short," and were either obligated to make deliveries or had borrowed Stutz stock to do so, were Henry G. S. Noble, Robert R. Atterbury, Herbert T. B. Jacquelin, Allen L. Lindley, Jay F. Carlisle, Donald G. Geddes, Jerome J. Danzig, Bayard Dominick, Howard F. Whitney and Arthur Turnbull.

Mr. Ryan alleged that fifty-eight firms or individuals were short of Stutz stock at the close of business on March 31, either having borrowed stock which they were obliged to return on demand or had obligated themselves to deliver the same to him.

"De Coppet & Doremus, a co-partnership, of which the defendant Henry G. S. Noble, of the Governing Committee and a former President of the Exchange, was a member, and which had borrowed of the plaintiff 500 shares of Stutz stock and was obligated by contract to deliver to plaintiff, in addition thereto, 100 shares of Stutz stock sold 'short' by the said firm.

"Dominick & Dominick, a co-partnership of which the defendant Bayard Dominick of the Governing Committee was a member, which had borrowed of the plaintiff 300 shares of Stutz stock.

"H. N. Whitney & Co., a co-partnership of which Howard F. Whitney of the Governing Committee was a member, which had borrowed of the plaintiff 200 shares of Stutz stock:

"Carlisle, Mellick & Co., a co-partnership of which Jay F. Carlisle of the Governing Committee was a member, which was obligated by contract to deliver to the plaintiff 100 shares of Stutz stock sold 'short' by said firm:

"Post & Flagg, a co-partnership of which the defendant Arthur Turnbull of the Governing Committee was a member and which had borrowed of the plaintiff 100 shares of Stutz stock."

Tells History of Company.

Mr. Ryan recited how he developed the Stutz Motor Car Company from a comparatively small enterprise into a large and profitable automobile manufacturing company. Until the first of April, he said, he was President of the company and from then Chairman of the Board of Directors. Continuing the complaint read:

"Prior to the 31st day of March, 1920, a deliberate campaign of 'short' sales of Stutz stock was inaugurated on the exchange. The persons effecting such 'short' sales sold stock which they did not own or possess, in the expectation that their own and other sales of Stutz stock would so depress the market value thereof that they could later purchase Stutz stock for delivery or return to persons from whom they had borrowed such Stutz stock at lower prices than they had secured upon their own sales."

Mr. Ryan alleged that the defendants "on or before the 31st day of March, 1920, in disregard of the high standard of commercial honor and integrity which the exchange was organized to maintain, and in flagrant violation of just and equitable principles of trade, and in order, among other things, to relieve themselves of their obligations to return or deliver the said Stutz stock borrowed or sold by them aforesaid, and to secure protection in such violations of their said obligations, and to injure the plaintiff, willfully and maliciously formulated, made and entered into an unlawful plan and conspiracy for the doing of the several acts hereinafter set forth, with the wilful and malicious intent to impair the value of the plaintiff's holding of Stutz stock, to embarrass him in cornnection with his financial commitments and generally to injure him in his business, property, holdings and estate."

Questions Authority for Ruling.

These defendants, Mr. Ryan alleged, induced other defendants, the Secretary and members of the Governing Committee, to join with them in promulgating the ruling whereby Stutz Motors was indefinitely suspended from the floor of the Exchange. The complaints continued:

"As a further proximate and contemplated result of the willful and malicious action of the said defendants, pursuant to said plan in suspending trading in Stutz stock, as aforesaid, various banks and banking institutions gave notice that they would no longer advance money upon loans secured in part by Stutz stock and demanded that the same be forthwith withdrawn and that other collateral be substituted in place thereof; and the plaintiff was thereupon compelled to withdraw said Stutz stock as aforesaid and arrange for the deposit of other collateral as security for said loans or to cause the same to be paid and to withdraw funds from various of the plaintiff's operations in which the funds of the said plaintiff were earning for him large and substantial profits; and the plaintiff's borrowing capacity has thus been seriously impaired and his business injured."

The full list of defendants mentioned in the summons and complaint, in addition to those already named, were Winthrop Burr, Edwin M. Carter, Henry K. Pomroy, Siegfried S. Prince, Edward Roessler, Erastus T. Tefft, Blair S. Williams, William T. Floyd, Louis E. Hatzfeld, William W. Heaton, Walter J. Johnson, Peter J. Maloney, Fuller Potter, William B. Potts, Edward H. H. Simmons, George B. Thurnauer, James C. Auchincloss, Oliver C. Billings, Dexter Blagden, Robert Gibson, William A. Greer, Richard T. H. Halsey, James B. Mabon, Samuel F. Streit, Hamilton F. Benjamin, Seymour L. Cromwell, Arthur J. Rosenthal, Newton E. Stout, Willis D. Wood, Edgar Boody and Warren B. Nash.

Neither the Governors of the Stock Exchange as a whole, nor any of the forty members of the Governing Committee, would comment yesterday on the Ryan suit. Mr. Ryan was not at his offices at 111 Broadway yesterday, and the only person who could be seen there professed to have no knowledge of the action.

NEXT WINTER'S HATS PASS GRAND REVIEW

MANY NEW COLORS SHOWN

The Retail Millinery Association gave its Fall fashion show last night at the Hotel Astor before a gathering of 2,000, made up of buyers and members of the association from all over the country. It was the most pretentious show ever held by the association. In addition to the styles that will predominate this season, more than a dozen new colors were shown.

This is to be the season of the feather, and in view of this fact a special curtain of ostrich feathers on a background of tennis netting served as the setting for the show. More than $100,000 worth of feathers were used for the curtain, and the new shades were employed in carrying out its design. The models appeared before the curtain and proceeded down a runway and passed among the spectators.

While the colors are not as bizarre as those of some seasons past, the vivid tones still have their place and unusual color effects, so familiar in Paris, are receiving much attention by American designers. Some of the new colors which will find favor this season are folly, a bright cherry; flamingo, a deep coral, carefully reproduced from the feathers of the bord of the tropics; cochin, a golden brown; copri, a deep Venetian blue; ochre, a shade between Nile green and olive; lapis, cinder and copper. Many new tones of brown and some verging into orange and its kindred shades were shown most effectively.

The hats shown were either large or small. In this respect the designers have made no compromise, except when, by means of trimming or an oddly cut brim, the hat gives the effect of being medium sized. The evening hats remain quite as large as ever, with drooping brims, and are shown in either velvet or tulle. They have little trimming and one distinctive specimen's only adornment was a wide band of tulle and ribbon, which fell through the slightly cut brim, back of the head and around the throat, serving as scarf.

Feathers and embroidery made up the trimming for the smaller hats. The toques and turbans were embroidered with wool, silk and silver and gold in elaborate designs, usually fashioned after the gowns, which were also heavily embroidered. The tam, held in place over a shape which made it more conventional than the tam as it is always considered, will be very popular this season, and the turban still holds its place among the well-established types. One smart turban shown had the crown of white ostrich feathers and the brim was of white fur with ostrich fancies on either side. Very few of the hats were trimmed high, and on the small ones the plumes and softer feathers fell over the shoulders. There was a marked absence of ribbons as trimming.

Particular attention was given to hats for children, which are becoming more elaborate as the seasons advance. For one of the scenes a group of youthful dancers, ranging from four to twelve years of age, acted as models. The hats for the youngsters are not confined to simple shade or design, but vary quite as much as the grown-ups. The most attractive of these were the modified turbans embroidered with silks.

There was also an educational demonstration, showing the correct clothes for the stout and the thin woman. The models were first shown in incorrect attire, and later appeared quite transformed in gowns and hats which were in keeping with their distinctive styles. Twelve importations from leading houses in Paris by the association were shown and auctioned. They went to Adelson & Co. for $2,500.

The show closed with a burlesque on the milliners, portraying styles as they would appear were their enthusiasm given full play. The hats were of enormous size, covered elaborately with vegetables, ribbons, feathers, and the final one was of a conglomeration of trimmings that in the wildest fancy might be employed to make a millinery season successful.

WILLIAM ARCHER HERE.

British Critic Comes to See Winthrop Ames About a New Play.

William Archer, the British dramatic critic and author, arrived yesterday on the Holland-America liner Nieuw Amsterdam from England to confer with Winthrop Ames about the play the latter is to produce in December.

"This is the first real play that I have ever written," Mr. Archer said, "and naturally I am very anxious that it should be a success. It deals with an imaginary kingdom in Asia located at the other side of the snowclad Himalayas. I have not named the play yet nor the kingdom where the scene is laid. There are plenty of Indian names I could select from, but I do not want it to be associated in any way with India. Many of the native Princes in that part of the world are very fine characters in every sense of the word, and the Prince I have in my play is a different sort of potantate.

"The play is a fantasie, romantic melodrama, and when I wrote the first act it was my intention to have had the leading rôle played by H. B. Irving, but his untimely death caused me to give up having it produced in England, as there is no actor there that could fit the rôle.

"It is a pathetic thing," Mr. Archer continued, "that the family of the late Sir Henry Irving has died out so far as the stage is concerned. There is only one member living, Lawrence Irving, the son of H. B., and he has no inclination for it in spite of the fact that his mother, who was Miss Dorothy Baird, the original Trilby, was a very clever actress. Mr. Ames intends to put my play into rehearsal at the end of November.

"There is no real slump in the theatrical business in London now. The good plays are doing well and the others have been withdrawn. The war is over and the people are becoming normal again in their expenditures."

Mother Killed Saving Child.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Immodest Violet," a comedy by David Carb, is soon to be produced out of town by William A. Brady. Marie Goff, last seen here in "At 9:45," will have the leading role.

Lionel Barrymore will be seen here in December in a dramatization of Ibanez's novel, "Blood and Sand." It is possible that Mr. Barrymore will have the opportunity to act another role later in the season.

Alan Dinehart will be Florence Reed's leading man in "The Love Woman," which will open the new Times Square Theatre next month.

Molly McIntyre and Cyril Keightley will head the cast of "Adam and Eve" when that comedy begins its Chicago engagement next month.

SWISS GLOBE-WALKER HERE

Dr. Maxime Leuret, member of the Touring Club Helvetia of Berne, who does not claim to be the champion globe-trotting walker, but who says he has walked 31,000 miles through Europe and North and South America, arrived here yesterday on his way to San Francisco. He expects to walk there. He began his expedition in January, 1914, and does not know when it will end. So far he has walked through France, Spain, Portugal, Morroco, Brazil, Uruguay, Argentina, Chile, Bolivia, Peru, Ecuador, Colombia, Venezuela and Panama, where he took the steamer to Tampa, Fla. He walked here from Tampa.

Dr. Leuret explained yesterday that although he was making the trip under the auspices of the Touring Club Helvetia, he had worked his way thus far. He said he was working in a Broadway restaurant as a waiter. In Bolivia he shined shoes for a few days. In other countries he sold papers and postal cards.

His record for twenty-four hours' walking, the globe-trotter said, was 184 kilometers, or 115 miles. He carries a change of clothing in a knapsack and a brief case containing the record of his trip. He has made a stout leather cane from the boots he has worn out since 1914, of which he was wearing the 102d pair when he reached this city, he said.

Dr. Leuret said that he was a graduate in medicine of the University of Berne, and expected to practice again when he had finished his trip. He speaks French and Spanish, but no English. He plans to go to Panama from San Francisco, he said, there to embark for Europe.

ACCIDENT REVEALS WHISKY.

Truck Laden With Liquor Kills Auto Tourist's Daughter.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Aug. 4.—Twenty cases of whisky are guarded by troopers at Gedney Farms, White Plains, the headquarters of Troop K of the State Police. Purely by accident the whisky was confiscated this morning by Sergeant Faber, and Charles Paramissi of New Britain is being held on a charge of transporting liquor without a license.

Helen Westerholz, 6 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Westerholz of Pittsfield, Mass., was struck and killed by a motor truck operated by Paramissi as it was passing through Armonk, N. Y. Her parents had stopped to get some gasoline and oil at a garage and she ran in front of the truck. When Sergeant Faber took charge of Paramissi and the truck pending the arrival of the Coroner he discovered the odor of alcohol.

U. S. SHIP OFF FOR BREMEN.

Susquehanna Is First American Vessel Used in Direct Service.

The first passenger steamship flying the American flag to sail from New York direct to Bremen is the Susquehanna of the United States Mail Steamship Company, which left Pier 74, foot of West Thirty-fourth Street, yesterday at 2:45 P. M. News of the advance of the Bolshevist forces in Poland caused many steerage cancellations.

The Susquehanna, formerly the North German Lloyd liner Rhein, will be moored at the North German Lloyd piers in Bremen. She is commanded by Captain George Dundas.

The New Rochelle, formerly the Powhatan, now owned by the Baltic Steamship Company, sailed late yesterday for Danzig with a fair number of cabin and steerage passengers. The French liner Leopoldina will leave this afternoon for Havre, with the entire first cabin reserved for the Knights of Columbus.

FATHER AND SON SHOT.

One Dead, the Other Dying, After Battle with Kentucky Posse.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 4.—Zachary Saylor was killed and his son, Austin, was fatally wounded in a battle fought, Indian fashion, between the Saylors and a posse of officers in the mountains of Harlan County, according to dispatches received here tonight. The scene of the fight was thirty miles back in the hills and details are difficult to obtain.

Frank Taylor, Deputy Sheriff, Britt, Howard, John Payne and Walter Taylor, all deputized by Frank Taylor, are alleged to have done the shooting. It is said the trouble arose over the Saylors shooting along a public highway and terrorizing the inhabitants. They are also alleged to have threatened the life of John Payne.

Taylor and his posse attempted to arrest the Saylors, who opened fire from behind rocks and trees, and a general battle followed.

Navy Club Benefit.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 4.—A three-act comedy, "Stop Thief," was presented this evening in the Monmouth Beach Club by the Navy Club Players for the benefit of the Navy Club, 13-15 East Forty-first Street, New York. The U. S. S. Tennessee band, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh N. Camp, played after the performance, while the junior members of the social set danced in costumes of Oriental, Colonial and modern types. Mrs. William H. Hamilton, Mrs. J. Frederick Tallcott, Mrs. J. Prentice Kellogg, Mrs. Lewis Waring, Mrs. Harry I. Riker, Mrs. Thomas N. McCarter, Mrs. William Nelson Cromwell and Mrs. Charles A. Boston assisted. The receipts will go for a permanent club in New York for enlisted men of the navy and Marine Corps.

Mrs. Codman Foils Newport Thieves

NEWPORT, Aug. 4.—The first attempt this season to rob a home of a summer resident was fustrated this morning. The break was at the home of Miss Martha C. Codman, on Bellevue Avenue. The burglars cut glass from one of the lower windows, got inside of the house and cut the telephone wires. These wires were part of an extension set and when Miss Codman was awakened she called the police on the main wire. They were unable to find two men who, Miss Codman says, she saw run across her estate or a third who joined them.

The burglars tried to enter the bedrooms of Mrs. Codman and her daughter but both doors were locked.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Dealings in stocks yesterday developed numerous soft spots in the industrial list, but prices were steady on the whole and there were fresh indications of accumulation of railroad issues. The market gave a better account of itself than might have been expected, in view of the Polish situation and a drastic break of sterling exchange in the morning. The resiliency of the rails under moderate buying orders the day before evidently instilled caution into professional operations for the decline, and an easier call money position was undoubtedly an influence in heading off considerable pressure against the manufacturing company shares. The renewal rate was 7 per cent., in contrast with 8 per cent. on Tuesday, and shortly after the money market opened 6 per cent was quoted. For the time being brokers are finding the demand money supply more than equal to their needs, a result in part of the liquidation of stocks in the last four or five days.

The stock market contained no outstanding leaders, although sugar and rubber issues were selected as marks for the bears to shoot at in the early trading. There have been signs this week that speculative programs were undergoing something of a change, more attention being paid to the possibilities of rail stocks rising under the beneficent influence of the rate increase than to the chance of industrial stocks falling further. It is hardly the time, however, to attempt to point toward a permanent alteration of the trading scope, for no one may say whether the industrials have discounted the decline going on in commodity prices and the results to grow out of the rate advance are still the subject of many and varied estimates. In final analysis, nothing has developed to show that credit conditions will not overshadow all other factors for some time to come, and there are no signs of permanent monetary ease despite an accumulation of call funds at the moment. The reflection of this situation is seen in the reluctance of traders to stir up a real forward movement with a call loan rate which would have excited happy thoughts when the brief rise of stocks was on early last month. At the close of yesterday's session fractional advances were widely spread about, together with a number of a point or more and several declines which reached 2 to 4 points.

Sterling exchange slumped sharply at the opening under pressure of grain and cotton bills, which denoted hurried unloading by exporters. There was probably a large quota of short sales then and later, but when the selling of actual bills slackened the shorts began to take cover and a substantial recovery occurred. At the minimum level of 3.55¼ for sight drafts, a gross recession of 7¾ cents occurred, making the fall from Monday's close more than 15 cents to the pound. Yesterday's last quotation was 3.62. The Continental quotations were shaken, particularly French francs, which got down to 7.07, but the afternoon rally was general and the market was, if anything, steadier in final transactions than the day before.

The steel and iron trade reviews reported a moderate increase of buying orders since the freight rate decision was handed down, and pig iron production indicated a strenuous effort on the part of producers to overcome transportation difficulties. The Iron Age's figures on output during July showed that an average production of 98,937 tons per day had been maintained, which was about 2,500 tons less than in June, but 2,600 tons more than in May and 7,600 tons in excess of the April average. The Iron Age Review notes that additional orders are foreshadowed in a report that the railroads will shortly place contracts for 3,000 passenger and 10,000 freight cars, together with 2,000 locomotives, as part of a three-year rehabilitation program involving $6,000,000,000. If a campaign as comprehensive as this has been discussed by the roads, the bankers have not yet been informed of plans for raising the necessary capital.

Midvale Steel Shows Big Gain.

The quarterly report of the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company for the period ended June 30, 1920, shows a surplus after charges and war taxes amounting to $4,349,498. This was the equal of $2.17 a share earned on the $100,000,000 capital stock of $50 par value, and compared with 75 cents a share on the stock in the preceding quarter. In the corresponding period last year 47 cents a share was earned on the stock.

RAIL RATE BOOST STIMULATES STEEL

Manufacturers Hope for Large Orders in Near Future—See Effect on Prices.

2 ROADS MAKE CONTRACTS

Iron Trade Review Discusses Report That Carriers Will Spend $6,000,000,000 for Equipment.

The steel and iron trade has been stimulated by the railroad freight rate decision, according to current reviews of the industry. Hopes are expressed of large railroad orders in the near future. The question whether or not the increased tariffs will be reflected in higher prices for steel products has not yet been answered definitely, although the belief is voiced in some quarters that an increase cannot be avoided. New inquiries for cars include 3,500 for the Missouri, Kansas & Texas. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul is expected to close contracts this week for 1,000 box cars and 2,000 gondolas.

Optimism over the altered position of the railroads because of the rate decision is voiced by the Iron Trade Review in the discussion of a report that the carriers will "immediately place orders for 3,000 passenger cars, 10,000 freight cars and 2,000 locomotives as part of a three-year rehabilitation program involving $6,000,000,000." Business of this magnitude has not been discussed with railroad bankers, as far as can be learned, although the financing of comprehensive equipment purchases is under discussion. The outlay for the cars and locomotives mentioned would be in the neighborhood of $145,000,000.

"The good effect of the rate increase is unmistakable," says the Iron Age, "and whether related to it or not, there has been active buying in some lines in the last four days, particularly in pig iron. At the same time the industry takes a more cheerful view of the transportation outlook, and has found some actual though not great improvement. In the Pittsburgh district one large interest reduced its piled-up stock of finished material about 20 per cent.; but the Carnegie Steel Co. reports little or no progress, having 500,000 tons yet to move.

"Pig iron production in July held up better than was expected in view of the railroad blockades. The total was 3,067,043 tons, or 98,937 tons a day, against 3,043,540 tons in June, or 101,451 tons a day. The falling off was thus about 2,500 tons a day. But July ran 2,600 tons a day ahead of May and 7,600 tons a day more than April. There was a net loss of nine furnaces last month, and the capacity of the 293 furnaces active on Aug. 1 was 93,965 tons a day, against 101,500 tons a day for 302 furnaces on July 1.

"The coal situation in Illinois and Indiana again took a serious turn this week, many mines failing to start up. The strike has already been costly to iron and steel and machinery producers around Chicago and further curtailment is threatened."

"Higher freight rates are welcomed by the iron and steel industry," says the Iron Trade Review, "because in them lies hope for the ultimate solution of traffic problems. Probably more thought is being given to obtaining relief from present restrictions than to the fact that about $125,000,000 will be added annually to the cost of steel by the new tariff. While hope is expressed among a number of steelmakers that higher prices of iron and steel can be avoided, it is certain that in the main the increased rates will necessitate advanced quotations.

"The tonnage of piled raw, semi-finished and finished material is increasing, indicating that the traffic situation is more serious than a week ago. About 15,000 cars for loading steel are made available by the action of the Interstate Commerce Commission in amending Order No. 9, so that the term 'coal cars shall not include flat bottom gondola cars with sides less than 38 inches high."

Adirondack Power Co. Issues Bonds.

Harris, Forbes & Co., Coffin & Burr, Inc., and E. H. Rollins & Sons offered yesterday $5,620,000 Adirondack Power and Light Corporation first and refunding mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds, due March 1, 1950, at prices to yield over 7¼ per cent. The company does the entire electric light and power business in Schenectady, Amsterdam, Watervliet, Oneida, Saratoga Springs and other communities.

681 FAILURES IN JULY.

The tendency toward increase in the country's business mortality, which has been noted in recent months, was again in evidence in July, when there were more commercial failures than in any month since December, 1918. July also showed the heaviest indebtedness, except that of June of this year, of all months back to January, 1916. The 681 failures carried liabilities of $21,906,412, according to the reports of R. G. Dun & Co. In July, 1919, there were 452 insolvencies, involving $5,500,000. Remarking upon the situation, The Dun Review says:

"Last month's failures are more than 50 per cent. greater in number and nearly 300 per cent. larger in amount of indebtedness than those of July, 1919, although numerical reductions are shown in comparison with the July returns of all other years since 1899, and there is a decrease of fully 60 per cent. from the 1,739 defaults of July, 1915—the high point for the period. A distinctive feature of the July statement is the marked increase in large failures, those for $100,000 or more in each case numbering forty-eight and aggregating $14,901,937 altogether. Most of the large insolvencies occurred in manufacturing lines."

American Light & Traction Report.

The report of the American Light and Traction Company for the year ended June 30 last, showed gross earnings of $4,162,515 and net of $3,894,234, which compared with $4,211,398 and $3,971,717, respectively, in the corresponding period in 1919. Alanson P. Lathrop, President of the company, in commenting on the cut in the common dividend from 2½ per cent. in cash and scrip to 1¾ per cent. quarterly, said: "The reduction in the common stock dividend, as compared with previous quarter, was deemed advisable in consequence of the decreased earnings due to the abnormal advances in cost of material and labor, and to the necessity of conserving cash to take care of extensions and betterments required by the subsidiary companies to meet franchise requirements."

Rubber Profits Rise $3,059,490.

The United States Rubber Company reports net sales amounting to $129,588,986 in the six months ended June 30, an increase of $30,099,615 over the result in the corresponding period last year. The net income, after deducting interest charges and providing for depreciation and Federal taxes, was $13,690,924. The profit for the period was $3,059,490 larger than in the first half of 1919.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Break in Exchange.

Sterling, which had been weak for some time, plunged into new low ground yesterday morning, when sight bills were quoted down to $3.55¼, which was 7⅝ cents down from Tuesday's closing and 12¼ cents from that day's high. Later there was a substantial recovery which carried the rate back to $3.62¾, and the final price was $3.62, for a net loss on the day of only 1⅛ cents. The explanation, according to the dealers, was that the pressure of sales, which had been great in the forenoon, apparently expended itself, and on moderate buying late the market rose sharply. In other words, the ordinary technical situation became such as to make for a reaction on the upward side. The market yesterday, it was said, was much broader than had been the market of Tuesday, which was unusually narrow, and, as a result, susceptible to light offerings. Yesterday there was a good inquiry, and, as frequently is the case, when the buying began the selling ended. Other European exchanges also improved in the afternoon dealings, French francs moving up from an early loss of 23 points to a late net gain of 1½ points, while German marks closed at an improvement of 5 points, net. Belgian francs and Italian lire were slightly lower.

Cotton Bills.

At this time of year usually a great number of cotton bills are pressing on the exchange market. The planters in the South sell their export cotton in terms of sterling, and as soon as sales are completed they sell "long sterling" against them. Thus, in August sterling is sold against cotton which will be shipped in October or November, or possibly later, and as the weight of long sterling develops there is a sentimental influence on cables and sight bills which, while it does not cause the bills of relatively near maturity to decline exactly as much as the ditsant maturities, has some bearing on the market. And when conditions abroad are upset, as they are at present, there is apt to be a somewhat greater load of long sterling than would be the case if conditions were good. This seems to be the situation now.

State and Municipal Finance.

While the total of State, city and general municipal governmental security issues for the first seven months of 1920 considerably exceeds the total for the same period in any other year for the last decade, the sales for the single month of July, which were $50,717,202, were far smaller than the sales in the same month of 1919 and for July, 1917. According to the Daily Bond Buyer, the July total for this year also fell below the June total, which was $53,787,224. Commenting on the recently noted falling off, the publication says: "The sale of municipal bonds has been seriously hampered * * * by the sudden and extensive drop in the market. Selling values have depreciated so much that hundreds of issues have been made unmarketable. The largest cities in the country are now compelled to issue 5½ to 6 per cent. bonds to meet the market rate on loans of this character, and with many places either unwilling to pay such a rate or prevented through lack of authority to do so, the output of new bonds has been substantially reduced. Had it not been for unfavorable market conditions, the sale of State and municipal bonds this year would in all probability have reached the billion dollar mark."

Car Movement Efficiency Record Set.

When the railroad executives pledged themselves to attain an average car movement over their lines of 30 miles a day per car there were several students of traffic conditions who shook their heads and intimated that it looked like "shooting at the moon." The railroad men said little at that time but they came to the front with statistics at the close of last month which showed that the average in July was 25 miles per car per day. This was the extent of their statement but statistics for 1919 show that the average in the corresponding period then was only 23½ miles, while in July, 1918, during the heaviest movement resulting from war pressure, the average was only 24⅝ miles. The July figures established a new record for car movement and even the most skeptical observers are inclined now to admit that concentration and co-operation may result in the railroads attaining the goal they set. As a further comparison statistics show that the average movement per car per day during the period of the switchmen's strike last Spring was 19¼ miles. In conservative operating circles it is now the belief that no commercial organization will be able to blame decreased production in 1921 to inability to obtain coal and raw materials because of transportation congestion.

Another Important Event.

When the Interstate Commerce Commission begins its hearing in Washington on Friday morning on the subject of the express company contracts with the carriers another important phase of the American transportation problem will be started toward a solution. So far representatives of a majority of the carriers have indicated their willingness to subscribe to a fair contract with the express companies or the American Railway Express, the merged concern. This has been interpreted as favorable and some express men look into the future with less trepidation than was apparent three or four months ago. The railroad problem has been handled in a broad way and a situation which looked almost hopeless at the close of 1919 has been greatly clarified. Because of this they are inclined to the belief that the express problem will also be cleared up within a reasonable length of time.

Tariff Preparation.

The conference of traffic men from a great many of the different railroads and systems in the Eastern section of the country with the Traffic Section of the Rate Committee of the Association of Railway Executives, held in the New Haven Board room yesterday, gave evidence that the carriers are losing no time in digging into the immense task of preparing new tariffs to coincide with the recent rate increases granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Traffic Section of the association's Rate Committee had just returned from Washington, where it absorbed the meaning of the commission's ruling and where it also absorbed the interpretations by the commission of that ruling. Technical details of tariff making were the points discussed but the meeting was taken to mean that the railroads do not intend to make unnecessary mistakes and lose valuable time in inaugurating the new schedules.

Coal Revenues Up 35 to 40 Per Cent.

In railroad quarters yesterday it was estimated that the increases in freight rates on both hard and soft coal announced by the Interstate Commerce Commission would result in an increase of revenues to the roads from this source of between 35 and 40 per cent. Anticipating a substantial increase in rates the coal roads prepared a skeleton of new schedules and it now appears that the results will be about what was expected.

That Cheap Money.

The idea that call money is a very special kind of money, which it most assuredly is, seems to be getting around in stock market circles, for yesterday when call money duplicated its 6 per cent. low of the previous day very little notice was taken of the fact. People simply noted the occurence and let it go at that. They did not, as on many occasions in the past, become excited over it, but offered thanks for whatever good it might imply, and then turned their attention to other things. Time money, which existed in quotation but probably not in fact, was not changed, and there was none, or virtually none, to be had, while the other forms of borrowings, such as commercial paper and acceptances, also were not altered.

CONSORTIUM NAMES PEKING MANAGER

F. W. Stevens, Formerly of J. P. Morgan & Co., to Represent American Group.

OTHER NATIONS YET TO ACT

Appointee to Sail in October After Conference to Develop General Policy.

Frederick W. Stevens, of Ann Arbor, Mich., formerly a member of the staff of J. P. Morgan & Co., has been appointed resident representative at Peking, China, of the American group of the international consortium for China. The news that Mr. Stevens had been appointed and had accepted was made public by Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co., yesterday.

Mr. Stevens will sail for the Orient in October, after the conference which is to be held between representatives of the American, British, French and Japanese groups at New York on October 11. This will be the first meeting of the consortium and it is expected to develop a general policy for the consortium's activities.

The resident representatives of the other groups have not been finally determined upon. British interests are being attended to by A. G. Hillier of the Hingkong and Shanghai Bank; those of the French by M. Baylan, Director of the Bank of India in China, while the Japanese group is represented by K. Takenchi of the Yokohama Specie Bank.

Mr. Stevens's position at Peking will be a responsible one. He will act as representative of the American group in transactions in which the consortium is concerned, and it is expected that he will become a dominating figure in American operations with the Orient in general. As expert adviser to the American group, his place in Chinese affairs is likely to develop extensively, for the American group, since the events of the World War brought America to the fore, is now one of the chief members of the international association of bankers, as witness the fact that Mr. Lamont, representing the American interests, presided at the first meeting at Paris last year, and later went to Japan and China to weld together the several factions.

At the meeting in October all of the groups will be represented and at that time a general policy will be outlined. A permanent organization will then be created and a definite understanding among the bankers of the four nations will be formulated. It is probable that the chairman of that meeting will be selected from among the representatives of one of the foreign groups.

Mr. Stevens, for several years prior to 1915, resided in New York and was an associate of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., principally in connection with railroad and other corporate matters. He was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1887, and for twenty years after that time he practiced law in Grand Rapids, and later in Detroit, being general counsel for the Pere Marquette Railroad Company. After severing his connection with J. P. Morgan & Co., in 1915, he travelled extensively in the Orient and has since been active as a director of several companies and in the reorganization of others.

Steel Company's Surplus $1,154,734

The report of the Wickwire Spencer Steel Corporation, reporting for the first half of this year, shows a surplus after Federal taxes and charges of $1,154,734. This was equal, after dividends on the preferred and Class "A" common stocks, to $2.93 a share earned on the 250,000 shares of no par value stock outstanding.

BRITISH RAIL RATE INCREASE PREDICTED

100 Per Cent. Advance in Passenger Fares and 112 Per Cent. in Freight Tariffs Likely.

BANKER TELLS CONDITIONS

British railroads are likely to receive permission to increase both passenger and freght rates considerably more than the American roads have been authorized to increase them by the recent action of the Interstate Commerce Commission, according to views expressed yesterday by John H. Needham, foreign representative in London for the Irving National Bank, who has just returned to the United States after a residence of three years in England.

The Rates Advisory Committee of the Ministry of Transport, Mr. Needham said, is now working in conjunction with British railway officials on new passenger schedules approximately 100 per cent. higher than before the war, while in the matter of freight rates the increase which the railroads have requested is about 112 per cent. above the pre-war levels.

Moreover, there is little seeming likelihood of the railroads being returned to their owners by the Government for a long time to come, as the proposal to nationalize the transportation system and the mines is being urged by the strong labor organizations of the country with such vigor that a thorough thrashing out of the subject is assured before its final disposition.

"The railroad situation," said Mr. Needham, "is one of the most important before the British public, even as it has been here. The railroads unquestionably need aid. During the war they were subjected to an enormous burden in the handling of troops, supplies and domestic traffic, and it must be said that even in the darkest days of the war the service afforded to the public was put out of gear only in a slight degree.

"During the period of great stress the Government was not able to adequately keep up the condition of the roads, with the same result as in the United States, that their operation has been many times more difficult than before the war. Under Government management there has been a deficit of from £50,000,000 a year upward, and it has not been possible to make replacements.

"A Government bill now is under consideration which would simplify and confirm the control which the Ministry of Transport exercises over the railroads. Adoption of this measure would involve many radical changes in the management of the roads. It provides, for instance, for seven regional districts in the islands, with one railway system in each district. This would mean practical amalgamation of the roads in several sections, and its effect would be to make even more remote the time when the roads may be taken from the Government's control.

"Rate increases, while necessary, of course, to meet advances in the cost of labor, coal and other supplies, are being bitterly opposed by the business men, especially the exporters. The latter see in them an additional handicap in their competition with the merchants of other nations in world trade. The coal mine owners are fighting the increase because on advance of 2s a ton had been requested on coal. These men who prefer that the railroad deficit be made up indirectly out of the pockets of the public who pay the taxes.

Atlantic City Wants Damages for Oil-Messed Beach.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 4.—Resort officials started an inquiry today to ascertain whether Atlantic City has a valid claim against the United States Shipping Board, because of the action of the skipper of the Board's steamer Cabrille in messing up the bathing beach here when she discharged hundreds of tons of crude oil to free his ship from the Brigantine Shoals several weeks ago.

After shore scavangers today had cleaned up the beach, it was stated that 168 loads of mixed sand and oil had been collected and carried away in trucks to make the strand presentable again. Ventnor, Margate and Long Port were similarly affected and traces of oil were found also at Ocean City, it is said. The possible claim for reimbursement does not take into consideration damage to the feelings and apparel of many bathers who came into contact with the oil. Some of the bathers found it necessary to subject themselves to a scrubbing in gasoline to rid themselves of the sticky stuff.

NET DEFICIT OF $1,041,169.

Gaston, Williams & Wigmore, Inc., Report on Year's Business.

The report of Gaston, Williams & Wigmore, Inc., for the year ended April 30 last shows a net deficit of $1,041,169. In the preceding year net income amounted to $1,262,402. The profit and loss deficit for the company was $4,931,196, but attention is called in the report to the fact that this was after previously undetermined losses had been provided for, many of which had been incurred from the time the company originated.

George A. Gaston, President of the company, in his remarks to stockholders, said in part:

"Full provision has been made for all doubtful accounts, and bills receivable and reserves have been provided which are considered sufficient to cover possible losses on investments in and advances to associated companies. Deficit of $4,931,197 follows the writing off of all previously undetermined losses incurred from the inception of the company to April 30 last. These losses include those which occurred in Russia, the break in foreign exchanges and those which might be expected in the readjustment from a war to a peace basis, particularly in view of unsettled foreign conditions."

Due March 1, 1950 Callable in whole or in part on any interest date on or before March 1, 1925, at 107½ and interest, thereafter, to and including March 1, 1930, at 106½ and interest, and so on reducing 1% every five years, to and including March 1, 1949. Thereafter at 101½ and interest. Interest payable March 1 and September 1, at The Liberty National Bank of New York. Guaranty Trust Company of New York, Trustee.

Issuance authorized by the New York Public Service Commission, 2nd District

TAX PROVISION: The Company agrees to pay interest without deduction for any Normal Federal Income Tax to an amount not exceeding 2%, which it may lawfully pay at the source.

For further information regarding these bonds attention is called to the letter of Mr. J. Ledlie Hees, President of the Adirondack Power and Light Corporation, copies of which will be furnished on request, and which states that:

The Adirondack Power and Light Corporation does the entire electric light and power business in Schenectady, Amsterdam, Watervliet, Oneida, Saratoga Springs and many other communities in this intensely industrialized region. The company also furnishes, under long time contracts, all of the electricity used by the distributing companies in Troy and Mechanicsville and by the electric railway systems in and about Albany, Schenectady, Troy, Utica and Rome, including practically all the interurban roads in the territory. In addition, the company does the gas business in Schenectady, Saratoga Springs and Oneida. It serves directly and indirectly a population of approximately 700,000.

The principal hydro-electric plants of the company are on the Hudson and Hoosic Rivers and East Canada Creek, and have a total present installed capacity of over 50,000 K. W. The company is in a peculiarly favorable position to take advantage of the large undeveloped hydro-electric resources in this territory.

Gross earnings year ended May 31, 1920, $4,139,975, and net earnings over 2.3 times interest charges on all mortgage bonds.

The First and Refunding Mortgage Gold Bonds are secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a first mortgage on property having a value, based on pre-war prices, in excess of the face amount of these Bonds. They are further secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a mortgage on the remainder of the property of the company subject only to a closed divisional lien of $5,000,000.

The General Electric Company owns approximately 50% of the common stock of this Corporation.

We recommend these bonds for Investment

Price 84½ and Interest, Yielding Over 7¼%

RING TRADERS' DAY IN COTTON MARKET

October and December Up at Close—Later Months 13 to 18 Points Off.

PRICES DECLINE AT START

Short Covering Brings Turn, but Advance Is Checked by Evening Up Process.

There was not much to yesterday's cotton market. Most of the activity and excitement attendant upon the publication of the Government's condition report and crop estimate had expended itself and it was mainly a traders' affair, with little, if any, outside interest manifested. In the forenoon there was a repetition of the morning's events of Tuesday. The ring sold the market freely and forced prices down 20 to 45 points, with the far months losing the most. Then there was a turn in the movement, induced mainly by short covering of the profit-taking variety, and this advance was not checked until prices stood at levels which showed gains of 44 points for October, 35 for December and 5 to 16 for the more distant options.

Weather news was not quite so good as it has been and the weekly report of the Government was less highly colored than most of the recent reports have been. From this there was an idea engendered that the crop might deteriorate somewhat from now on and a bullish argument was builded which one may expect to hear more of later. How much basis there is for it remains to be seen.

Some of the bulls also tried to make capital out of the reports of heavy selling of long sterling by Southern cotton planters, arguing that this forecasted huge sales for export, but the recent action of most of the Southern spot markets, which have been heavy and have showed some loss in price, seems to be against this just yet.

In the final trading those who ventured to buy the staple for the turn around midday cleared their decks and in the process prices came back from the high levels of the day and finished irregular, with October up 19 points, December up 3, and the months after December off 13 to 18 points on the day.

Liverpool cables: Spot cotton was hardening at 25.98d for middling. Sales: 8,000 bales, of which American 6,000. Imports, 9,000 bales; none American. Future opened quiet, but steady; down 3 to 8 points, and closed very steady, unchanged to 76 points up in the day. Prices: Aug., 24.36d; Oct., 22.52d; Dec., 21:53d; Mch., 20.75d. Manchester: Yarns were quiet, and cloths were in good demand from India.

WHEAT MARKET DECREASES.

Excited Selling Brings About General Drop in Prices.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Excited general selling brought about a sensational smash in wheat prices today. The market opened 8 to 13 cents lower, with December $2.16 to $2.21 and March $2.21. Most of the selling was said to come from country holders anxious to turn their wheat into cash. In a few minutes, however, the market rebounded as much as 11 cents in some cases.

For the first time since trading in futures was resumed, the pit was filled with traders. Business was on a big scale. The rush to sell appeared based largely on unfavorable financial reports, especially from the Southwest.

There had been a severe fresh break in sterling exchange, and, contrary to expectations the British Royal Commission was said to be still absent from the export market.

In some cases as much as 14½ cents a bushel was temporarily cut from values, March delivery falling at one time to $2.18. Camparative steadiness, though, returned to the pit before the end of the first hour, with the market then about 4½ to 5½ cents under yesterday's finish.

Assertions that domestic millers were active buyers helped to strengthen the market later. So did reports of Canadian crop damage. Dispatches telling of increased gravity of the European diplomatic and military outlook were also influential toward a reversal of sentiment. The early losses were virtually all wiped out, and the market closed nervous at about yesterday's finish, ½c. net lower to 1c. advance, with December $2.29 to $2.30 and March $2.32.

The Farms of France

THE FARMS of France are rapidly being restored to their former fertility. In the work of reconstruction France requires large supplies of farm machinery, 75 per cent. of which she has always imported. The tractor has been successfully introduced, and the modern plow is supplanting the older type.

American business men shipping machinery or other goods to France will find this Bank, which has a fully equipped branch in Paris, an unusual aid in facilitating all matters of finance and credit.

PRODUCE EXCHANGE BUILDING

Should the Investment Banker abandon the Liberty Bond Buyer?

BOND men agree that the Liberty Loans created many new investors:—people who formerly invested their money locally were for the first time introduced to the broad, national investment market.

> Should these new investors be abandoned to the "get-rich-quick" promoter or to the "one-call" man, who have neither the investor's interest nor the interest of American business at heart?
>
> Should they get their investment education (?) from promoters and self-styled investment houses that have little or no reputation at stake?
> Should they be lost to the Nation at this time of great need for new investment capital?

No! They should be educated in the fundamental principles of sound investment. It is time to go back to fifteen years or more ago and tell repeatedly the story of what bonds and stocks and mortgages are in the plain language of such men as Mr. N. W. Harris, Mr. F. W. Rollins and Mr. N. W. Halsey.

The leading investment banking houses of to-day should tell this story. They should lead in the education of our new investors. They should save them from the "get-rich-quick" promoter and the irresponsible banker or broker. They should turn their hundreds of millions of dollars into the financing of legitimate business.

This can be done through well-directed campaigns of educational advertising on the part of investment banking houses of established reputation. A few of them are already doing this—with surprisingly satisfactory results. They are rendering a real national service.

The Quality Group Magazines (Atlantic Monthly, Century, Harper's, Review of Reviews, Scribner's, and World's Work) have for years been spreading the gospel of Sound Investment and have been co-operating with leading investment houses in this important work. It is to such magazines that new investors, as well as old investors, naturally turn for reliable leadership. The Investment Department of The Quality Group will be glad to tell responsible investment houses what it is doing and what they can do in this new investment situation. Appointments for interviews are requested.

The Railroad Rate Advance
St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co.

We own and offer a limited amount of Adjustment Mortgage Gold 6% Bonds
Series "A", Due 1955
At 61½ flat, to yield about 10% and if held to maturity
to yield about 11%

This is one of the few roads which in 1919 earned more than the government guarantee. The estimated net operating income for the first six months of 1920 shows an increase of about 25% over the corresponding period of 1919.

Interest has been paid in full on these bonds since their issuance. We recommend the bonds at the above price, and will be glad to furnish further information upon request. This offering is made subject to prior sale or change in price.

AMERICAN TOBACCO DECLARES DIVIDENDS

Three Per Cent. Payable in Scrip for Both Classes of Common Stock.

BEARS 8 PER CENT. INTEREST

Stockholders to Vote on Increasing Class B Common from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000.

The Directors of the American Tobacco Company have declared a dividend on both classes of common stock of 3 per cent., payable in scrip, bearing 8 per cent. interest and convertible into Class B common stock, March 1, 1923. The dividend is payable on Sept. 1 to stockholders of record Aug. 14.

It was also announced that a special meeting of stockholders will be called for the purpose of authorizing an increase in the Class B common stock from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000. If the increase is ratified, it was said, it is not the intention of the company to sell any of the additional stock. The present authorized common stock is $100,000,000, divided equally into common and Class B common. Of the old common stock there is unissued $9,757,600, and of the Class B less than $800,000 is unissued. The purpose of the desired increase in the Class B common is to take care of the scrip dividend and to provide the usual reserve of unissued common stock which the company has been accustomed to carry.

Declaration of the present dividend in scrip was done to conserve the company's cash resources. The company has $3,333,000 in notes maturing in November, and these will be paid out of earnings. No new financing, it is understood, is contemplated.

"The company's business and earnings are in a very satisfactory condition; its volume of business for 1920 to July 1 as compared with the same period of 1919 shows an increase of more than $12,500,000, or more than 20 per cent.

"In the same period the business of our subsidiary companies in which we have a whole or part interest has increased more than $11,000,000. Raw materials and Federal taxes continnue abnormally high. Delays in transportation and the increase in our business make necessary more working capital.

"With the volume of business and the profits satisfactory as they are, our stockholders are entitled to continuance of reasonable dividends, but with the present and prospective financial needs we do not feel that there should be a diminution of the cash resources of the company by the distribution of cash dividends."

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Eastman, Dillon & Co. and Eldredge & Co. have bought an issue of $500,000 City of Richmond (Va.) 4½ per cent. street and park bonds. The issue, which matures July 31, 1930, is being offered at 93¼, to yield about 5.40 per cent.

Estabrook & Co. are offering a new issue of $400,000 South Bend (Ind.) water works 6 per cent. bonds at prices to yield 5¼ to 5½ per cent., according to maturity. The issue falls due serially in installments of $100,000 each on Sept. 1, 1925, 1930, 1935 and 1940.

E. E. Gardner, Jr., and James Watt, Jr., have formed a partnership under the name of Gardner & Watt, 51 Exchange Place, for a general brokerage business in unlisted securities and foreign exchange.

The eighteenth monthly distribution on Cities Service Company bankers' shares, payable Sept. 1, will be 42 cents per share.

Douglas Fenwick & Co. have issued a circular containing the statement of the Central Petroleum Company for the year ended April 30 last. The Union Oil Company of Delaware recently bought control of this company from the Texas Company.

The Standard Oil Company of Indiana has declared, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent., an extra disbursement of 5 per cent., both payable Sept. 15 to stockholders of record Aug. 16.

The Indian Refining Company increased the dividend on the common stock yesterday, when 5 per cent. quarterly was declared in addition to the regular 1¾ per cent. disbursement on the preferred stock. Both are payable Sept. 15 to stockholders of record Sept. 8. The company had been paying 3 per cent. on the common.

DIVIDENDS

THE AMERICAN TOBACCO COMPANY,
111 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.
August 4, 1920.

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Directors of THE AMERICAN TOBACCO COMPANY, at a meeting held to-day, authorized and directed that there be a pro rata distribution of common stock B (or common stock) of the Company to the holders of common stock and common stock B as they appear on the books of the Company at the close of business August 14, 1920, to the extent of three per cent. (3%) of their respective holdings at par;

That the said distribution shall be made in the following way, to wit: Each holder of common stock and common stock B, as appears on the books of the Company at the close of business August 14, 1920, shall receive on September 1, 1920, a dividend certificate setting forth the amount at par of common stock B (or common stock) to which he is hereunder entitled, which dividend or certificates is to be exchanged for such stock on March 1, 1923, the holder in the meantime being entitled to an amount equal to eight per cent. (8%) of the par value of such dividend certificate annually, payable semi-annually on March 1 and September 1; the said dividend certificate shall have provision for registry and transfer at the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, and provision shall be made in such dividend certificate that certificates of stock for fractional shares shall not issue, but certificates of stock shall issue for whole shares which may be arrived at by an aggregation of fractional certificates. Such dividend certificate shall further provide that stock so to issue in accordance with the Board's resolution and with it, shall be common stock B, if there exists at the time, to-wit: On March 1, 1923, authorized and unissued common stock B of the Company sufficient to cover all dividend certificates of whatever series then outstanding; otherwise the stock so to issue shall be common stock.

Notice is further given that a dividend of one and one-half per cent (1½%) has been this day declared on the preferred stock of The American Tobacco Company payable in cash on October 1, 1920, to stockholders of record at the close of business August 14, 1920.

CLOSING OF COMMON AND PREFERRED TRANSFER BOOKS.

The preferred and common transfer books of the Company were ordered closed at the close of business August 14, 1920, and reopened at the opening of business September 16, 1920. J. M. W. HICKS, Treasurer.

THE J. G. WHITE ENGINEERING CORPORATION
43 Exchange Place,
New York.

FINANCIAL NOTICES.

July 14th, 1920.

To the Common Stockholders of SOUTH PORTO RICO SUGAR COMPANY:

At their special meeting held in Jersey City on July 1st, 1920, the stockholders approved and ratified the proposed increase of the common stock of this Company to $12,500,000 and the appropriate amendment of its Amended Certificate of Incorporation; the certificate required by law to effectuate such increase of stock has been filed in the office of the Secretary of State of New Jersey.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held this day, the Board adopted resolutions providing for the transfer from "Reserve for Working Capital and Improvements" account to "Common Capital Stock" account of $5,602,800 (in order to capitalize a part of the earnings of the Company invested in the La Romana sugar factory and other improvements and development) and the full payment of 56,028 shares of the new common stock thereby. The Board also adopted resolutions providing for the distribution of said 56,028 shares of new common stock (full-paid and non-assessable) to the common stockholders, pro rata (one share of new stock for each share now outstanding), such distribution to be made on August 6th, 1920, to common stockholders of record on July 24th, 1920.

Certificates for this new stock will be mailed to stockholders on or about August 6th, 1920, and said stock will carry dividends for the current quarter, beginning July 1st, 1920, and ending September 30th, 1920.

Application will be made for the listing of this new stock on the New York Stock Exchange.

The common stock transfer books will not be closed.

By order of the Board of Directors.

CRAIG MAKES PLEA FOR CITY EMPLOYES

DEFENDS HIS 20% PLAN

Blames Legislature for Action in Closing Hours, Declaring Fidelity Penalized.

Controller Charles L. Craig made public in detail yesterday the salary increases allowed in city, county and State offices by the last Legislature and which is said to have been the "greatest salary grab in the history of the State." The Controller sought to show that his plan of allowing a flat increase of 20 per cent. for those city employes who would benefit by the $5,000,000 allowed by the Legislature and which was vetoed by the Mayor after it had passed the Board of Estimate and the Board of Aldermen was inconsequential in comparison to the increases allowed in other offices, many of which ranged from 12 to more than 100 per cent. He charged that fidelity was being penalized.

The Controller pointed out that the salary increase which was quietly rushed through during the closing hours of the Legislature affected Borough Presidents, Judges, District Attorneys and many other employes. Borough Presidents Curran, Riegelman and Bruckner, he pointed out, got a 33 1-3 per cent. increase when their salaries were raised from $7,500 a year to $10,000, while Borough Presidents Connolly and Van Name gained 100 per cent. when their salaries went from $5,000 to $10,000. The District Attorney of Kings got a 50 per cent. increase, his salary going from $10,000 to $15,000, while the District Attorney of New York County had to be content with a mere 20 per cent. increase when his salary was increased from $10,000 to $12,000. Seven assistants got a 33 1-3 per cent. increase, their salaries being increased from $7,500 to $10,000 each.

	Old Rate.	New Rate.	Inc.	Perc't-age.
10 Justices of the City Court, N. Y. City	$12,000	$14,500	$2,500	20 5-6

"The most striking increases in salaries authorized by the Legislature," said the Controller, "were those in relation to the educational system of the State, benefiting upward of 40,000 teachers, principals, superintendents and other employes. In many cases the increases allowed to teachers exceeded 100 per cent."

Mr. Craig said that if all city employes getting $5,000 a year or over were deprived of increases employes receiving less than $3,000 per year each would receive about $6.60 per annum.

SYNDICATE GETS NEW ISSUE

Equitable Trust and Blair & Co. to Float Union Tank Car Notes.

The formation of a syndicate was announced yesterday by the Equitable Trust Company and Blair & Co. to purchase $12,500,000 10-year 7 per cent. equipment notes of the Union Tank Car Company. The offering of the notes will be made by the syndicate within a short time at a price to yield about 7½ per cent. and will carry a sinking fund of 10 per cent. a year which will be used for redemption purposes provided any of the issue can be purchased under par. These notes are to be secured by approximately 4,000 tank cars to be purchased with funds realized from the sale of these notes, plus approximately 2,000 additional new cars which have been recently completed and which will be pledged as security for this issue.

NEW POST OFFICE NEAR TIMES SQUARE

WILL REPLACE TEN HOUSES

Projected Building Has Been Leased for Twenty Years at a $3,500,000 Rental.

In one of the largest transactions of the year the United States Government acquired for the Post Office Department a big site in the Times Square section which will be utilized for the erection of a new structure to meet the tremendous business growth of this territory.

The new Post Office will be located at 223 to 241 West Thirty-eighth Street, 160 feet west of Seventh Avenue, and will replace ten old-time private houses bought four months ago by the Landcourt Realty Corporation, A. E. Lefcourt, President, with a view to erecting a twenty-story structure to house A. E. Lefcourt & Co., cloak and suit manufacturers, now at 140 Madison Avenue. The Landcourt company, however, has since agreed to change its plans and build a three-story structure for the exclusive occupancy of the Post Office.

The site measures 195.5 feet front and 100 feet in depth. The proposed building will have a floor area of 57,000 square feet, making it one of the largest branches in the city. It will be from plans of John Dunn, architect, and it is expected to have the building ready next February. It will represent an investment of about $1,000,000 by the Landcourt Realty Company. The new structure will be erected under the supervision of Louis Haas.

The Government will pay a rental of about $3,500,000 for the property, for a twenty-year period. The brokers in the deal were John Hill and S. D. Cooper.

The tremendous growth of the Pennsylvania and Times Square zones within the last two years and the great improvements now under way forced the postal authorities to take this action. They agreed that the facilities of the uptown General Post Office would soon be inadequate to handle the business of the two zones and they decided that a sub-station would have to be built to take care of it. After carefully going over the district they chose the Thirty-eighth Street plot and entered into negotiations for its lease.

The cloak and suit manufacturers are to locate in a group of large buildings being especially erected for them on and adjacent to Seventh Avenue, north and south of the Pennsylvania depot. Their removal from the Fifth Avenue shopping district was accomplished after several years' work on the part of the Save New York Committee, of which John H. Burton is Chairman. It will mean a greatly incresed business population for the district lying between the Pennsylvania depot and Times Square.

A few months ago the brokers in the present deal, in conjunction with the Wood, Dolson Company, closed a similar lease with the Government on Twenty-third Street, providing new quarters for the Madison Square Branch of the Post Office, now in the Metropolitan Life Insurance Building.

BROOKLYN SALES.

Realty Trust sold for the Artee Realty Company a block of forty-four lots on the western side of Nineteenth Avenue, between Fifty-first and Fifty-second streets, to the General Paper Goods Manufacturing Company, William A. Gray, President. The paper company, which is now located in the Bush Terminal Buildings, will erect on the block purchased a reinforced concrete warehouse, having a railroad siding into the basement floor from the Long Island Railroad Company tracks, which runs along the western boundary of the plot.

Bulkley & Horton Company have sold 253 Myrtle Avenue, corner Navy Street, a two-story and store brick flat building, for Edward Ball to a client for investment.

The Meister Builders, Inc., sold the four-story brick apartment house on a lot 25x100 at 338 Fourteenth Street to Antonio Bartalotta for investment.

Henry Pierson & Co. sold to Florence Meyers 124 Lincoln Place, a three-story dwelling, on a lot 20 by 100.

The McInerney Klinck Realty Company sold the three-story brick and limestone business and apartment building located on the northwest corner of Underhill Avenue and St. John's Place for Antonio Sisario to a client for investment. The building covers a plot 35 by 90 feet.

Tenement Deals.

Rachel Lowenthal sold to David Solomon the four-story tenement, with store, at 2,001 Second Avenue, northwest corner of 103d Street, on a lot 25.5 by 75.

Sadie Multz and Sadie Klein bought from James W. Halstead and another, trustees, 476-478 Houston Street, near Goerck Street, a six-story tenement, on a plot 50 by 68.6.

The Pokrok Realty Company sold to Anton Kotek the five-story tenement 513 East Seventy-fifth Street, 25 by 112.3.

The six-story tenement, on a lot 25 by 100, at 96 Columbia Street, near Stanton, has been sold by Rose Wolf to Max Winkler.

Louis Ortner sold to the Gerbach Realty Company the northeast corner of Lexington Avenue and 128th Street, a five-story flat, on a plot 99.11 by 30.

New Building Plans.

Plans have been filed for the construction of a twelve story store, showroom and loft building on the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-sixth street. It will have a frontage of 38.9 feet on the avenue by 216.9 feet on the street by irregular. The Realty Managers, Inc., of which Frank Segrisch is the president, is the owner of record. Randolph H. Almiroty, the architect, has estimated the cost at $2,000,000.

A FINE HOME, CHEAP

Because a client for whom we finished it cannot complete the financial part of his contract, we offer at less than cost today a very attractive, pretty Colonial cottage type of suburban home, located in a beautiful, strictly residential section, near New York, specially built for comfortable year-round occupancy. The desires of the neighbors as to personality of buyer will be respected. The house itself is in perfect condition and contains ten very large rooms and two tiled baths. There is also a completely equipped garage, corresponding to the house in architecture. The plot consists of about one-third acre, with 100 ft. street frontage. Unusual care and taste have been used in landscaping the grounds, which are beautifully shaded and contain many shrubs and flowers. The elevation is about 700 ft.; wonderful scenery, very healthy living conditions. The railroad station is within easy walk. Commuting facilities to the city are of the best. Immediate occupancy and title can be had on payment of $4,000, and the balance may remain on mortgages at convenient terms. Complete details and pictures can be obtained from Developer, P. O. Box 1107, City Hall Station, New York City.

The Civil Service.

City.

The following list for architectural draftsman, Grade B, is announced: Herrmann A. A. Hornburger, 85.50; Vincent Iarrobino, 81.30; Abraham Grossman, 77.10; Lester L. Baker, 75.10.

United States.

The commission announces for Sept. 7 an examination for building estimator, male, age 25 to 50, at the Picatinny Arsenal, Ordnance Department at Large, Dover, N. J., at $1,800 to $2,000 a year. After six months' satisfactory service appointees may be allowed the increase granted by Congress of $20 a month. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on physical ability, 10; training and experience, 90. Applicants must have graduated from a four years' high school course or have completed a course of study equivalent to that required for such graduation, and have had at least three years' experience in construction work or general contracting or in the builders' supplies business; and, in addition, at least two years' experience in estimating on construction work. Each completed year of an architectural or engineering course in a college or university of recognized standing will be equivalent to not more than nine months of general experience. Additional credit will be given for experience as bookkeeper, accountant, cost accountant, or statistician. Age limits do not apply to persons entitled to preference because of military or naval service. To be entitled to retirement with an annuity employes in this position must reach their seventieth birthday and have served fifteen years.

LEGAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

EVANS, STILLMAN & CO., CERTIFICATE OF FORMATION OF LIMITED PARTNERSHIP.

We, the undersigned, having formed a limited partnership pursuant to the provisions of the Partnership Law of the State of New York, do hereby certify:

1. That the name of the firm under which said partnership is to be conducted is Evans, Stillman & Co., and the County wherein the principal place of business is to be located is New York County.

2. That the general nature of the business intended to be transacted is that of buying, selling and dealing in bonds, stocks, notes and other securities.

3. That the names of all the general and special partners interested therein, all of whom are of full age, and their respective places of residence are as follows: Walter N. Stillman, general partner, 163 East 74th Street, New York City; Lynford M. Dickinson, general partner, Noroton, Connecticut; Howard A. Plummer, general partner, 106 East 85th Street, New York City; Langley W. Wiggin, special partner, 144 East 36th Street, New York City.

4. That the amount of capital which the specila partner, Langley W. Wiggin, has contributed to the common stock is one hundred thousand ($100,000) dollars in cash.

5. That the time at which said partnership is to begin is the first day of July, 1920, and the time at which it is to end is the thirtieth day of June, 1921.

Dated, June 28th, 1920.

WALTER N. STILLMAN,
LYNFORD M. DICKINSON,
HOWARD A. PLUMMER,
LANGLEY W. WIGGIN.

STATE OF NEW YORK, COUNTY OF NEW YORK, ss.: On this 28th day of June, 1920, before me personally came Walter N. Stillman, Lynford M. Dickinson, Howard A. Plummer and Langley W. Wiggin, to me known and known to me to be the individuals described in and who executed the foregoing certificate, and they severally acknowledged to me that they executed the same. (Notarial Seal.) Wm. P. Carroll, Notary Public, Kings County, No. 52. Certificate filed in N. Y. Co., Clerk's No. 58; New York County Register No. 2021; Kings County Register's No. 2037. Term expires March 30, 1922

STATE OF NEW YORK, COUNTY OF NEW YORK, ss.: WALTER N. STILLMAN, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he is one of the general partners named in the foregoing certificate; that the sum specified in said certificate to have been contributed to the common stock by the special partner, Langley W. The Weather.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Air pressure is high throughout the Eastern States and the great central valley and normal in other regions. No disturbance of importance appears within the field of observation.

There have been showers, however, in the South Atlantic States, extreme Upper Mississippi Valley and the central Rocky Mountain region.

Temperatures are above the normal over the Northwestern States and the Pacific States and normal in other parts of the country.

The outlook is for unsettled weather and local showers in the South Atlantic and East Gulf States and the upper lake region and for generally fair weather elsewhere east of the Mississippi River during Thursday and Friday.

No important temperature changes are indicated.

FORECAST FOR TODAY AND FRIDAY.

Northern New England—Fair Thursday and probably Friday.

Southern New England, Eastern New York and New Jersey—Partly cloudy Thursday and Friday; not much change in temperature.

Western New York—Generally fair Thursday and probably Friday; not much change in temperature.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

MAYOR PROMISES MONEY FOR SCHOOLS

'Every Dollar Possible' Pledged for Construction of New Buildings Asked For by Prall.

ATTACKS THE GARY SYSTEM

Accuses Rockefeller Foundation and Its Followers of Aiming at Training Children for Mills.

While Commissioner of Accounts David A. Hirshfield was examining Eugene A. Nifenecker, Director of the Bureau of Research, Reference and Statistics of the Board of Education yesterday, to determine "just what work Nifenecker and a high salaried force of assistants are doing," Mayor Hylan made public a renewed attack on the Rockefeller Foundation and the Gary system.

The Mayor's attack was in the form of a reply to a letter from President Anning S. Prall of the Board of Education regarding the need for additional funds for the construction of school buildings. Mr. Hylan promised every dollar possible and said the people had had enough "of extravagance and visionary experimentation in the public schools, due to the usurpation by the educational ring of functions properly belonging to the Board of Education."

"The educational policy of the Rockefeller Foundation, which is familiarly known as the Gary system," said the Mayor, "is to educate the children of the masses for the fill and factory instead of fitting them for the higher professions. Likewise, it is the policy of certain powerful industrial interests in this country not to educate the people. These same industrial interests are making the assertion that by educating the masses to too high a degree we are interfering with the industrial system of the country.

"Those in control of the educational policy in our city, and even in our State, seem to be inoculated and in sympathy with such policies. The best possible evidence of this is that when any of their agents or sympathizers are given a little jolt by the members of the Board of Education, whose sympathies are with the people, a tremendous howl goes up that the schools are being controlled by Tammany or some other political agency.

"Many instances of the determination to fit children for the mill and factory can be cited. Such an instance is the neglect in the years gone by to build a sufficient number of schools to keep pace with the annually increasing school population. Another is the holding back of the brighter children with the less progressive, thereby keeping the schools crowded and increasing the necessity for more school buildings, while at the same time less attention is given to the backward children. Still another are the frills and fancies costing the taxpayers a great deal of money.

"Business men of our city have complained that children coming from the public schools are often unable to spell ordinary words. There is no good reason for this."

The examination of Mr. Nifenecker was in pursuance of Mr. Hirshfield's avowed purpose of learning whether any economies can be effected in the education budget, which is said to be likely to run over $100,000,000 next year. The examination was conducted by Deputy Commissioner of Accounts W. D. Loudon when Mr. Nifenecker appeared in response to a subpoena which, Mr. Hirshfield said, was served after the witness had refused to appear voluntarily and had induced District Superintendent O'Grady to telephone the Commissioner's office and ask particulars as to the matters about which he was to be questioned.

3 DETECTIVES ARRESTED.

New York Central Men and Boat Owner Held for $32,000 Theft.

Three New York Central detectives and a boat owner were arraigned before United States Commissioner Hitchcock yesterday on the charge of stealing merchandise in Interstate Commerce from the railroad. The boat owner was William Young, 38 years old, of 518 West Fifty-first Street, and the three detectives were William J. Ryan, 25 years old, of 2,275 Vyse Street, the Bronx; William Rappalye, 25 years old, of 133 Third Place, Brooklyn, and Vincent Redeni, 22 years old, of 146 East Fiftieth Street.

The four men were arrested by Detective Monroe Hollstein, a New York Central detective, and New York police detectives on the charge of stealing furs and silk worth $32,000 from a freight car on July 17. According to the detectives, stolen goods were found at the homes of some of the men arrested.

King Victor Knights C. H. Macdowell

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—C. H. Macdowell, President of the Armour Fertilizer Works, of Chicago, has been knighted by King Victor Emanuel for his work as director of the Chemicals Division of the War Industries Board, it was announced today. The insignia of a knight of the Crown of Italy will be conferred as soon as the royal edict reaches the local Italian consulate.

LIPTON'S GUESTS DEPART.

Lord Dewar and Others Sail on Olympic—2,335 Passengers.

Among the 600 first cabin passengers who sailed for Cherbourg and Southampton yesterday on the White Star liner Olympic was Lord Dewar, who has been the guest of Sir Thomas Lipton on the yacht Victoria during the races for the America's Cup.

During his stay in New York Lord Dewar said he had paid attention to the prohibition laws, and, in his opinion, the American people had had something passed that is too drastic for the majority.

Sir John and Lady Ferguson, also members of Sir Thomas Lipton's party, sailed on the Olympic very pleased with their visit to New York. Sir John, who is the general manager of Lloyd's Bank, London, said that the people in America were spending too much money and that the extravagance on every side in New York had astonished him.

Charles Nicholson, the designer of Shamrock IV., and William Fife, the Scotch yacht designer, also were on the Olympic. Other passengers in the first cabin were William J. Mulligan, Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus, who sailed a day in advance of the main party of the Knights, who will leave this afternoon on the French liner Leopoldina for Havre, and Charles Steele of J. P. Morgan & Co.

In addition to the first class, the liner had 635 second and 1,100 third class. The Olympic was commanded by Commodore Sir Bertram Hayes, D. S. O., R. N. R.

DR. CANTOR'S FIANCEE LANDS

Ex-Commissioner of Charities John A. Kingsbury returned yesterday on the Holland-America liner Nieuw Amsterdam from a three months' visit to Eastern Europe as Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Serbian Child Welfare Association. Through the generous contributions of Americans, Mr. Kingsbury said, the little Balkan kingdom is rapidly reclaiming its juvenile population which for a time was threatened with obliteration.

Another passenger on the Nieuw Amsterdam was Miss Irma Abramowicz of Lyov, Poland, who was to have married Dr. Bernhard Cantor of Flushing, L. I., the representative of the Joint Distribution Committee of the Jewish Relief societies who was killed in the Ukraine recently. Miss Abramowicz went a short distance with Dr. Cantor and Dr. Israel Friedlander and then returned as her mother did not think it was safe for her to go any farther with the party, who on July 5 were attacked by bandits and all of the Relief Committee's representatives killed. Miss Abramowicz said that the bodies of Dr. Cantor and Dr. Friedlander had not been recovered when she left Poland 18 days ago.

Bishop G. Mott Williams of Annapolis, Md., better known as the Bishop of Marquette, who attended the Lambeth Conference in London, also returned on the liner, which brought 2,300 passengers in all classes.

MANY WOULD AID MOTHER.

Nellie Kelly, 24 years old, and her five-weeks-old baby were sent to St. Zita's Home yesterday, when the mother was arraigned before Magistrate Tobias in Washington Heights Court on a charge of vagrancy, preferred on Tuesday because she slept all night in a small uptown park with her baby, warmly wrapped, in her arms. The mother said she had no place to go.

Her detention at the home will be merely long enough to allow the Children's Society to investigate offers of help which were showered on her yesterday. Magistrate Tobias said a business man had offered to establish the girl in a home of her own in the country, and another, a neighbor of the Magistrate's at his Summer place in Riverside, Conn., had offered to help her. Horace Bernard, 139 West 108th Street, who has five children and an invalid wife, offered to take the girl and her baby into his home.

FIND LEPERS IMPROVING.

Massachusetts Medical Commission Reports Favorably on New Treatment.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Examination of two patients at the State leper colony on Penikese who have been undergoing treatments with Chaulmoogra oil, a product of an East Indian fig tree, has shown unusual progress toward recovery, but the men have not been wholly cured, according to a report of a special medical commission.

Dr. M. Victor Sanford, Chairman of the commission, said that tests had shown the presence of bacilli in the blood and the release of the patients was inadvisable at this time. Medical experts throughout the country have been watching the treatment in the hope that a cure for leprosy would be discovered.

Committed to State Hospital.

After living alone for months in his home on Fresh Pond Road, Glendale, Queens, former Municipal Court Justice Alfred Denton, 41, once a law partner of Mayor Hylan and later Public Works Commissioner of Queens, has been committed to the State Hospital at Central Islip, L. I. He was declared insane by County Judge Burt Jay Humphrey of Queens, upon application of his brother, Jacob Denton.

Keeps Hair In Curl On Hot or Windy Days

Here's a hair curling secret that is decidedly "worth while." Just apply a little liquid silmerine before doing up the hair in curlers, using a clean tooth brush for the purpose, drawing this down the hair from crown to tip. In three hours you will have as beautiful curls and waves as you could wish for. The waviness will look so natural no one will guess it was artificially acquired. And it will last ever so long, regardless of heat, wind or dampness.

You can obtain liquid silmerine at any drug store and a few ounces will last a long time. It is neither sticky nor greasy and is pleasant to use. It is doubly useful because of also serving as a beneficial dressing, keeping the hair soft, silky and lustrous.
